WEST SOMERSET BRANCH: SPRING MEETING.

THE spring meeting of this Branch was held at the Railway Hotel, Taunton, on Tuesday, April 3rd, at 5 P.M.; H. P. OLIVEY, Esq., President, in the chair. Twelve members were present.

Representative of the Branch on the Committee of Council.—It was resolved that J. Pranker, Esq., of Langport, be appointed as a second honorary secretary, whose sole duty as such shall be that of representing this Branch on the Committee of Council.

Representatives of the Branch on the General Council.—It was resolved that the President, H. P. Olivey, Esq., the President-elect, J. D. Adams, M.D., with the second honorary secretary, J. Pranker, Esq., be the representatives of this Branch on the General Council for the ensuing year, 1883-4.

The Medical Act Amendment Bill.—A petition in favour of the Medical Act Amendment Bill now before the House of Lords was signed by all present.

Question for Discussion.—The following question, of which due notice had been given to every member, was put from the chair and discussed:—"In what doses do you usually give the following drugs? : Aconite, alcohol, bromide of potassium, calomel, digitalis, hydrate of chloral, iodide of potassium, opium, quinine." Written answers from Dr. Cordwent and Mr. Cornwall, who were unable to attend, were read to the meeting.

Medical Provident Society.—Mr. SINCOCK (Bridgwater) read a paper advocating the formation of a Medical Provident Society. He pointed out the benefits which, he considered, would accrue from belonging to such a society, and stated his views as to its formation, constitution, cost of working, etc. His estimate of the probable annual payment, which would have to be made by a man of middle age for securing any given sum per week in sickness, was twenty-five per cent. added to the week's sick pay. Thus, for securing £6 a week sick pay, he estimated the annual premium should be £7 10s. He thought that a form of life-assurance should be combined with the society, by each member having to pay a small sum on the death of a member. He concluded by moving: "That this meeting cordially approves of the steps that are being taken to establish a Medical Provident Society, and is of opinion that it should be instituted in conjunction with the British Medical Association."—Mr. WINTERBOTHAM seconded the motion; and, in supporting that part of it which advocated the society being instituted in conjunction with the British Medical Association, he stated that he thought not only might the offices and organisation already existing properly be utilised in the undertaking, but that some of the large accumulated funds of the Association might also be devoted to establishing and working the society.—The motion was carried, and all present authorised their names being added to the list of those who were desirous of establishing a Medical Provident Society.

Plaster-of-Paris Splints.—Mr. RIGDEN exhibited specimens of plaster-of-Paris splints, as used at the Taunton and Somerset Hospital, in cases of diseased joints and fractures. He also explained and demonstrated the ready mode in which they could be made.

Syphilitic Endocarditis.—Mr. HENSMAN narrated the history of a case of this disease now under his care in a young soldier, and brought the patient before the meeting to be examined.

BATH AND BRISTOL BRANCH: ORDINARY MEETING.

bers took part: Messrs. J. G. Swayne, M.D.; E. L. Fox, M.D.; F. T. B. Logan; C. Elliott, M.D.; E. A. White, M.D.; E. C. Bousfield; S. Craddock; E. W. Aust Lawrence, M.D.; N. C. Dobson, and the President.

NORTH OF ENGLAND BRANCH: SPRING MEETING.

THE spring meeting was held in the Talbot Hotel, Bishop Auckland, on Friday, April 27th, at 2.30 P.M. The President, DENNIS EMBLETON, Esq., M.D., F.R.C.P., occupied the chair, and about thirty members were present.

Papers, etc.—The following papers were read.

1. Dr. Philipson read a paper on Visceral Gout; after which a spirited discussion took place on the subject of gout, in which the President, Drs. Gibson, Eastwood, E. C. Anderson, Foster, Fielden, Gibbon, and S. W. Broadbent took part. Dr. Philipson replied.

2. Mr. J. F. LePage read a paper on Hæmorrhage and its Treatment by Storing and by Intrafusion, with cases. The paper was discussed by the President and Drs. Anderson and Lyon. Mr. LePage replied.

3. Dr. E. C. Anderson read a paper on Septic versus Antiseptic Midwifery.

4. Dr. Foss read a paper on Pneumonia Coincident with Surgical Injury.

5. Dr. Drummond showed some specimens—a cast, and skull with tumour attached, and drawings from a case of Perforating Tumour of the Dura Mater.

6. Dr. Fielden showed a patient (a woman) from whom he had removed the tongue four months previously, for Epitheliomatous Disease. There was no appearance of recurrence of the disease, and the patient had almost entirely regained the power of deglutition and speech.

Dinner.—After the meeting the members and their friends dined at the Talbot Hotel. About twenty-eight sat down to dinner. The chair was occupied by the President, and the vice-chair by the Secretary.

SOUTH-EASTERN BRANCH: EAST KENT DISTRICT.

A MEETING of the above district was held on Thursday, [March 22nd, at Deal. Dr. DAVEY of Walmer, who very kindly entertained the members to luncheon, took the chair.

Communications.—The following communications were read.

1. The President exhibited three interesting cases: 1. A Female Child, aged 4 months, with an Extroverted Bladder; 2. A Female Child, aged 6 weeks, with Spina Bifida, and an opening into the rectum immediately in front of the tip of the coccyx; 3. A Male aged 22, with right complete Inguinal Hernia, reducible; below which was a globular, tense, thick-walled cyst, unconnected with the testicle, irreducible, and containing fluid blood. There was a history of a lump appearing after a strain twelve months ago, which had enlarged very slowly during the last ten weeks.

2. Mr. Raven read a paper on Acute Pneumonia occurring in otherwise healthy subjects; the points indicated by the Collective Investigation Committee were followed.

Collective Investigation.—A very interesting discussion followed on the use of Card No. 1, and the Etiology, Pathology, and Diagnosis of the Disease. It was suggested that each card should have printed on it the date and page of the JOURNAL referring to the "memorandum" on the disease under investigation, that the special points required might not be lost sight of.

Dinner.—Twenty-two members and visitors afterwards dined together at the Royal Hotel, Deal.

The Next Meeting will be held at Canterbury, on May 24th, when it is proposed to discuss Card No. 3 of the Collective Investigation Committee.

All extant cards and explanatory memoranda can be had by application to the honorary secretary of the Local Committee, who is desirous of receiving names of intending debaters at the May meeting.

METROPOLITAN COUNTIES BRANCH: SOUTH LONDON DISTRICT.

A MEETING was held at the Royal Hospital School, Greenwich, on Friday, May 11th, at 8 P.M.; Mr. HENRY W. ROBERTS in the chair.

The Coroner's Court.—Dr. ALEXANDER FORSYTH read a paper on 'Experiences in the Coroner's Court.' In the course of his paper, Dr. Forsyth showed the inefficiency, uselessness, and expensiveness of the court. He objected to the manner in which the coroner was elected, the jury collected, and to the employment of private medical men as medical jurists, especially in cases where the practice of rival practitioners was called in question. He held that special officials should be appointed to examine all cases brought under their notice by the proper authority, probably the police. All his points were illustrated with examples, and he concluded by recommending a system like the Scotch, where the Procurator Fiscal inquired into and disposed of trivial cases, without cost; or, better still, the thorough Prussian system, explained by Casper in his book on Forensic Medicine.

Obscure Disease.—Dr. R. E. CARRINGTON reported five cases of somewhat obscure disease occurring simultaneously in the same family, living under very unfavourable hygienic conditions.

Secretary.—Dr. R. E. CARRINGTON was unanimously elected as Honorary Secretary to the district, in place of Mr. Nelson Hardy, who resigned office in October last.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

Bradley Memorial Prize.—Cotton District Convalescent Fund.—Thought-Reading.—Southern Hospital.—Birth and Death Rate in Manchester and Salford.—Throat Hospital.—Medico-Ethical Association.—Victoria University.—Appointment at the Royal Infirmary.—Drainage of Manchester.—Bequest to Manchester Medical Society.—Meeting of Lancashire and Cheshire Branch.

WE are glad to announce that, as the result of an effort to perpetuate the memory of the late Mr. S. Messenger Bradley, for many years Surgeon to the Royal Infirmary, the committee have reported that subscriptions have been received amounting to £533 1s. 6d., which have been invested in the names of two trustees, viz., Dr. Cullingworth and Mr. Walter Whitehead. A resolution was adopted, authorising the interest on this sum, amounting at present to £20 per annum, to be placed at the disposal of the honorary medical staff of the Infirmary, for the purpose of offering an annual prize, to be called the Bradley Prize in Clinical Surgery, to such students as are attending the surgical practice of the Infirmary.

At a meeting of the governors of the Cotton District Convalescent Fund, recently held under the presidency of the Earl of Derby, the Hospital Committee reported that they expected the contractors for the new home at Southport to hand it over in July; that they had come to a provisional agreement with the trustees for the existing hospital for joint management; and that the trustees were erecting buildings to connect the two homes, which were to be rented by the governors. The beds at the new home are to be allotted as follows: one hundred to the affiliated hospitals in the cotton district, and fifty to be kept at the discretion of the hospital committee of the governors. The committee further reported the patients in the various hospitals at the cost of the funds during the past three months of the year as follows: at the Barnes Home, Cheadle, 66; Devonshire Hospital, Buxton, 53; Children's Sanatorium, Southport, 21; making a total of 140 patients.

The Rev. E. H. Sugden, B.A., B.Sc., recently delivered a lecture, with experiments, on thought-reading before the members of the Medical Society. He divided the phenomena into two classes; viz., those in which there was contact between the reader and the patient, and those in which there was absolutely no contact. After performing several experiments, such as finding hidden articles, ascertaining figures on a bank note, etc., Mr. Sugden said he was satisfied that the explanation of what they had seen was to be found in unconscious muscular action. It was not that the patient actually led the operator to the place where the thing was, or guided the hand in the case of figures, which was a more delicate experiment; it was rather that the operator followed what he might call the line of least resistance. As to the second class of phenomena, in which there was no contact, it had been discovered that some people possessed the power of finding out certain things that were thought about by other persons, without receiving any sort of indication through the ordinary sense-channels. He had found that children could do this well. Was this an indication of a development of this power of thought-reading, or the remnant of a power which the race had gradually lost? He was inclined to take the latter view. There was no doubt that the lower animals possessed some sort of power of thought-reading. If the human race had this power originally, as spoken language became developed, the race would lose it, just as other unexercised powers were lost. With regard to the scientific explanation of the phenomena, he suggested that with every thought there was a certain vibration of the molecules of the brain, and that this vibration in one brain might affect another, just as the magnet would affect a piece of soft iron. Dr. Leech (the President), Professor Boyd Dawkins, Dr. Simpson, and others, took part in the discussion.

The Committee of the Manchester Southern Hospital have issued a circular asking for funds to make certain extensions. They state that the hospital, which has now been established for over sixteen years, stands greatly in need of some alteration and extensions, in order to enable the work in it to be carried on more efficiently. In particular, there is occasion for an operating-room, private ward for special cases, and a bath-room upstairs. The number of beds at present—viz., thirteen for children and six for women—is below the requirement of the charity, and the number of beds for women requires to be doubled. A mortuary is also required. The estimated cost of these alterations is about £1,000. Classes for midwives have been established, and some medical students are gaining experience at the hospital. Four midwives are engaged in poor districts in connection with the maternity department. We sincerely hope there will be a hearty response to this deserving appeal.

The Committee of the Sanitary Association furnish the following comparative statement, compiled from the weekly returns of Mr. Leigh and Dr. Tatham, medical officers of health, for the quarter ending March 31st.

		Manchester.	Salford.
Total births	...	3,083	1,796
Average birth-rate	...	36.1	37.0
Total deaths	...	2,437	1,092
" under five years of age	...	875	450
" under one year of age	...	481	284
Average death-rate per quarter	...	28.5	23.0

The deaths from zymotic diseases were 8.2 per cent. of the total in Manchester, and 9.2 per cent. in Salford. The deaths under five years of age were 35.9 and 41.2 in Manchester and Salford respectively.

At the last monthly meeting of the Board of Management of the Hospital for Consumption, the following resolution was passed: "The Committee of Management of the Hospital for Consumption and Diseases of the Throat having expressed a wish for the sympathy and support of this board in aid of the establishment of a hospital for consumption, at Bowdon or elsewhere, containing much greater accommodation than at present exists, so as to enable them to more effectually afford relief to sufferers from that disease, this board desires to record its sympathy with and approval of the step about to be taken by the committee of the Hospital for Consumption towards providing in the neighbourhood of Manchester increased accommodation for the large number of consumptive patients. The board are only too cognisant of the fact that a considerable number of consumptive patients who seek admission to this infirmary are necessarily rejected, as, by the rule of the institution, they are inadmissible; and they earnestly hope that the efforts now being made to provide more adequate hospital accommodation to meet the pressing requirements of such cases may be attended with success." The appointment of Mr. Priestley as Assistant Physician to this hospital has given general satisfaction. His excellent training as Assistant Lecturer on Physiology to the Owens College will be of the greatest service to him in his new sphere.

At the last meeting of the Medico-Ethical Association, Dr. Buckley read a paper on an Epidemic of Puerperal Fever from an Ethical Point of View. He related the history of an epidemic of five cases that had come under his notice as medical officer of health, all of which occurred in the practice of an untrained and unqualified midwife, and all of which terminated fatally. This woman, in addition to her ordinary calling as midwife, was in the habit of washing and laying out dead bodies; and Dr. Buckley was of opinion that the infection had been transmitted in this way. He expressed a strong opinion, in which the meeting heartily concurred, that no one should be allowed to practise midwifery for gain without being properly trained and duly licensed.

The following gentlemen have accepted appointments as external examiners in connection with the medical faculty of the Victoria University: Medicine and Pathology: Professor W. T. Gaillardner, of the University of Glasgow; Surgery: Professor Lister, King's College;

EXAMINATIONS.—At the recent first examination for degrees in Medicine and Surgery, and at the examination for certificate of proficiency in Sanitary Science, held at the College of Medicine, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, on April 23rd, 24th, 25th, 26th, and 27th, 56 candidates presented themselves. Of these, 55 entered for the first M.B. Of these 55, two came up for Chemistry only, having previously passed in Anatomy, Physiology, and Botany; and both men satisfied the examiners. Fifty-three entered their names for all the subjects, viz., Anatomy, Physiology, Chemistry, and Botany; of these 53, 19 satisfied the examiners in all the subjects, two taking second-class honours. Thirteen were rejected in all the subjects; 8 in Chemistry only; 4 in Botany only; 1 retired from the examination; and 8 failed to present themselves for examination. There was one candidate for the certificate of proficiency in Sanitary Science, and he succeeded in satisfying the examiners.

MEDICO-PARLIAMENTARY.

HOUSE OF LORDS, Friday, May 11th.

Contagious Diseases Acts.—Lord ORANMORE and BROWNE called attention to a paragraph in The Times of the 3rd inst., relative to orders stated to have been given by Her Majesty's Government to the police not to enforce the Contagious Diseases Acts at Chatham and other places; and inquired whether such was the case; and, if so, on what grounds Her Majesty's Government had discontinued to carry out an Act of Parliament. The paragraph to which he referred stated that the intelligence that the Acts were not to be enforced had been received with dismay at Portsmouth, Plymouth, Chatham, and other stations.—The Earl of NORTHBROOK said that the paragraph referred to by the noble lord was substantially correct. It had been considered no longer desirable to employ the Metropolitan Police in carrying out these Acts. Some parts of the Acts were optional, others compulsory, and the Government intended to bring in a Bill to carry out the optional measures only.—The Earl of HARDWICKE did not believe there would be the smallest probability that such a Bill as the noble earl mentioned would be passed this session. Those Acts had been most beneficial to the community at large, and he thought it most unwise and indeed most illegal for the Government to abrogate the most useful part of these statutes. The noble earl read letters from a naval officer of distinction residing at Portsmouth, in which the operations of the Acts were highly approved, not only for the physical advantages that resulted from their application, but for their great moral effect. He concluded by expressing a strong hope that Her Majesty's Government would in the discharge of a great public duty give earnest consideration to the question whether they should not further inquire into this matter before they attempted to repeal these Acts.—The Duke of CAMBRIDGE: I do not desire to prolong the discussion upon this painful though most important subject. I must, however, say that these Acts have done far more good than people out of doors suppose, and that the physical and moral benefits which they have conferred upon the community at large as well as upon the navy and army are enormous. It is perfectly true, as has been stated, that public opinion in all places where these Acts have been applied is uniformly in favour of their continuance. That being the case, it appears to me to be an extraordinary thing that it should be proposed to sweep away these Acts at once without more full discussion on the subject. I frankly admit that the question is a most difficult one, but I pray your lordships not to allow these most beneficial measures to be swept away simply because there has been a discussion in the other House which has led to a vote which it now appears will do away with the compulsory powers of the statutes, and thereby effect a change in them which will greatly modify their usual effect. I am aware that this is a very disagreeable subject to speak upon, but I must repeat that more good has resulted from these Acts than is generally supposed, and I trust therefore that they will not be repealed without the fullest further consideration. I can assure your lordships that I do not advocate the continuance of these Acts merely on the ground that they are most beneficial to the service with which I am connected, but because I conscientiously believe that they are of immense advantage to the community at large, and more especially to the unfortunate creatures who come under their operation, numbers of whom have been rescued from their unhappy life solely through the medium of these statutes. I should wish it to be thoroughly understood that the moral effect of the Acts has been very great.—The LORD CHANCELLOR remarked that the Government were fully justified in not making use of the police to carry into effect those parts of the Act which had been condemned by the resolution of the House of Commons.—The Marquis of SALISBURY said he was a little surprised at the doctrine laid down by the noble and learned lord on the woolsack. If that doctrine were correct, it was obvious that a vote of the House of Commons might practically suspend the whole criminal law of the country, so far as it depended upon the action of the police to set the provisions of the law in motion.—The LORD CHANCELLOR said that the Government had not power to prevent the police in these parts of the country from taking such measures as they might think fit to bring charges before the magistrates. What the Government had power to do was to abstain from taking active measures on their part to induce the police to make those charges.—The Earl of HARDWICKE thought the noble and learned earl did not understand what the Government had done, because the result of their action was the withdrawal of the Metropolitan police, who were the people appointed to investigate what was going on. That was the whole gist of the matter.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, Friday, May 11th.

The Contagious Diseases Acts.—Mr. J. TALBOT asked the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether it was correct that a protest had been sent to him from the Medway Board of Guardians against the withdrawal of the Metropolitan police from Chatham; and, if so, whether he had any objection to lay a copy of this document upon the table of the House, and further to state what action he proposed to take in the matter.—Sir W. HARCOURT: I have received the protest, but there is no object in laying the document on the table of the House. I have already explained to the House the course that the Government have felt themselves bound to take in consequence of the vote to which the House has come. I suppose the House was fully aware that the local authorities in places where the Acts were in operation were in favour of them. I do not see that a protest of this kind alters the situation at all. The action the Government has taken is consequent upon the vote of the House. The police generally will be withdrawn, but a limited number of inspectors will remain, so far as may be necessary for carrying out the Acts as to those who voluntarily submit themselves. This is almost a ministerial duty on the part of the inspectors of police.—In reply to Mr. Hopwood, Sir W. HARCOURT said the Act provided that the superintendent of police must sign a document in each case. The action of the Government would be restricted to giving effect to the vote of the House which had reference to compulsion.—Sir H. WOLFF asked the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he would delay the withdrawal of the metropolitan police from the districts protected under the Contagious Diseases Acts until Parliament had been enabled to decide on the Bill for the protection of young girls, announced to be brought forward by the Government.—Sir W. HARCOURT said he was afraid that the course suggested by the hon. gentleman would not be consistent with the view which the Government had taken. The Government wanted to carry out strictly the recommendations of the Lords' committee. A Bill would be introduced into the House of Lords, the effect of which, it was hoped, would be to diminish the serious evils of juvenile prostitution. That was not the direct or immediate object of the Contagious Diseases Acts, though the administration of those Acts have tended indirectly to that object. (Hear, hear.)—In answer to further questions from Sir H. Wolff and Mr. Puleston, Sir W. HARCOURT said that, in order not to terminate the operation of the Acts too abruptly, the withdrawal of some of the inspectors would be postponed.

The Army Hospital Corps.—Col. ALEXANDER asked the Secretary of State for War if it was true that the officers of the Army Hospital Corps are now receiving lower rates of pay than any other departmental officers in the army; and if so, whether he could state the reason why.—The Marquis of HARTINGTON replied that officers of the Army Hospital Corps are paid at the same rates as quartermasters of the infantry. Their pay had only recently been augmented, and he did not see any ground to make any further change to put them in a better position than quartermasters of infantry.
