Brown-Séquard, M.D. It was resolved that a conversazione should be given during the year. The finance report was adopted. The report on protection from fire was referred to the Committee. The Recommendations III and IV of the Council report were considered, and the following were adopted: 1. That the examinations on Hygiene and State Medicine be conducted by special examiners appointed by the College. 2. That registered practitioners be admitted, under conditions, to the examinations on Hygiene and State Medicine, in order to qualify for a distinct diploma or certificate of proficiency on that subject. ## THE MEDICAL ACT AMENDMENT BILL.

AT the Special Meeting of the Council of the British Medical Association in Birmingham, on Thursday, the 17th instant, Dr. WATERS moved "That the President, the President of the Council, and the General Secretary of the British Medical Association, together with the members of Council, sign the petition to the House of Commons in favour of the Medical Act Amendment Bill, presented by the Lord Privy Seal, as providing for the direct representation of the profession in the Medical Council, and for the compulsory formation of one Conjoint Board of Examination in each division of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, for the examination of all candidates for the medical profession." He said that he simply moved the resolution as embodying the two remaining principles with which the Association started fifty years ago, and which now seem likely to be recognised.

Dr. DE BARTOLOMÉ: I second the motion.

Dr. McVail: Do I understand that this petition commits the Association in any way to the special construction of any single Board? [No. no.] With that understanding, I assent to it.

The motion was put and carried; and the petition was signed by all the members of the Council present.

THE subcommittee appointed by the Council of the Metropolitan Counties Branch to examine the Medical Act Amendment Bill have decided to apply for the following amendments.

In Clause 9, division 9, the insertion of words to prevent women from occupying seats on the Medical Boards.

In Clause 18, the insertion of a provision that medical schools shall not be compelled to admit women to their medical classes.

In Clause 27, division 4, the absolute prohibition of unregistered persons from practising medicine in any of its branches for gain.

In Clause 34, the alteration of the clause in such a way as to prohibit the issuing of their lowest diplomas without examination by the medical authorities. It is considered that the clause, as it at present stands, favours the creation of "bogus" diplomas, over which the Medical Council would have no control.

In Clause 36, provision for a compulsory annual audit by professional accountants.

In Clause 44, the increase of the quorum of the Privy Council from two to five members.

The Committee have applied to Mr. Mundella to receive a deputation from the Branch on the subject of the Bill.

WE are asked by the Honorary Secretaries of the Metropolitan Counties Branch to request those gentlemen who have not yet signed and returned the form of petition sent to them, to be good enough to do so without delay.

REPORT OF SUBCOMMITTEE APPOINTED BY THE COMMITTEE OF COUNCIL ON THE REPRESENTATION OF BRANCHES IN COMMITTEE OF COUNCIL.

AT the annual meeting of the Council held at Worcester in August, 1882, the questions of the constitution and government of the Association were raised by the following motion, of which due notice had been given, viz.

Moved by Mr. Hugh Ker, seconded by Dr. Ward Cousins.

"That the Committee of Council be requested to consider in which way direct representation of the Branches can best be secured."

From this point of view the matter was discussed by the Council, and the above resolution was carried.

In response to this resolution, and after due consideration, at a meeting of the Committee of Council on October 18th, 1882, it was determined to refer the matter to a subcommittee, with instruction to report to the Committee of Council at its next meeting; and a subcommittee was appointed consisting of the President of Council, the President, the Treasurer, Dr. Alfred Carpenter, Dr. Ward Cousins, Dr. Alexander Davidson, Dr. Grigg, Dr. Holman, Mr. Arthur Jackson, Dr. Parsons, and Dr. A. P. Stewart.

On November 19th, 1882, the subcommittee held its first meeting, and, after carefully considering the subject referred to it, came to the conclusion that its first duty was to ascertain the mind of the Association generally concerning the matter in question. With this object in view, it was determined to issue, through the President of Council, a series of questions, together with a circular letter, addressed to the president and secretary of every home Branch of the Association, asking for information on the subject. The following is Hillary Place, Leeds, November, 1882. Dear Sir,—For some time past a feeling appears to have been growing up in the Association, and is said, by some, to be already of widely spread extent, that, whatever may have been the case in former years, the Branches of the that, whatever may have been the case in former years, the Branches of the Association are not now properly and adequately represented on the Committee of Council. At the recent annual meeting at Worcester, this feeling found expression not only at the general meetings, but also at the meeting of the Council, and that body, the Council, passed a vote requesting the Committee of Council to consider the question: and if, after ascertaining the mind of the Branches on the subject, it should be found that any grievance really existed, it would consider and report upon the way in which the evil could best be remedied. The existing by-law of the Association on the subject reads thus.

By-law 25. "The Committee of Council shall consist of the President, the President-elect, the President of the Council, to Vice-President of the Association, the Treasurer, and of the Honorary Secretary for the time being of each Branch, who shall be, explicit, members of the Committee of Council, as hereafter described."

In 1879, in consequence, probably, of the rapidly increasing growth of the of twenty members of the Council, to be elected by the Council, as hereafter described."

In 1879, in consequence, probably, of the rapidly increasing growth of the Association, a feeling, similar to that now supposed to exist, having made itself heard, the question of the representation of the Branches on the Committee of Council was considered, and the following resolution was passed at the meeting of October 15th, 1879.

That every Branch be informed that it is competent to it to appoint more than one secretary, and to prescribe the duties of each so that one may be required to discharge no other duty than that of representing the Branch on the Committee of Council.

It was argued that the honorary secretaries were men who received their appointments because they had sufficient leisure at their disposal to give to the local duties of their office, and had good personal knowledge of all the members of their Branches, but who had often neither the means nor the time at their disposal to act as the representatives of their respective Branches at the meetings of the Committee of Council, and were so placed at a disadvantage. And yet it was neither ignored nor forgotten that much of the real success of the Association was due to the exertions of the honorary secretaries, a body of men who have never ceased to use their utmost endeavours to advance the interests yet it was neither ignored nor forgotten that much of the real success of the Association was due to the exertions of the honorary secretaries, a body of men who have never ceased to use their utmost endeavours to advance the interests of the Association, and who have never received any adequate reward for their labours, and it was felt that to deprive them, when they wished to use it, of the right to attend the meetings of the Committee of Council, would be not only a hardship, but a decided injustice. But few Branches have availed themselves of this power, and yet the feeling of insufficient representation is not allayed, and, consequently, the Committee of Council has appointed a subcommittee to reconsider the entire subject, and to report to it as speedily as possible whether any, and what, further steps are advisable. In order that a definite conclusion may be arrived at, the subcommittee so appointed desires to ascertain the opinion of your Branch, and requests that you will kindly consider this matter as an urgent and an important one, and that you will send in your reply, if possible, by December 31st next.—Believe me, dear sir, yours very truly, C. G. WHELLHOUSE, President of the Council and Chairman of the Subcommittee.

QUESTIONS.—1. Is your Branch satisfied with its present method of representation in the Committee of Council by honorary secretary expficio? 2. Has your Branch, having the power to elect a special honorary secretary to represent it in the Committee of Council, availed itself of that power? 3. What is the total number of members of your Branch, and what is the income of your Branch from Branch subscriptions? 4. Are the travelling expenses of your honorary secretary to the meetings of the Committee of Council defrayed by the Branch? 5. Is there any feeling in your Branch of inadequate representation? 6. Is the attendance of your branch from payment, or non-payment, of his travelling expenses? 7. Have you any other suggestions to offer to the subcommittee with regard to the representatio

This circular letter was also published simultaneously in the JOURNAL, and a short paragraph was appended directing the attention of the members of the Association generally to the subject (see JOURNAL, December 2nd, 1882, page 1111), and requesting those who were unable to attend any meeting called to consider the question, to communicate their views to the President or Secretary of who were unable to attend any meeting called to consider the question, to communicate their views to the President or Secretary of their Branch. The following is a copy.

The Representation of Branches on the Committee of Council.—It will be seen by reference to our "Association Intelligence," that the Committee of Council has lost no time in grappling with the question referred to it at the annual meeting at Worcester, as to the alleged deficiency of representation of the Branches on the Committee of Council, and we are asked to call attention to the steps which have been taken. At its first meeting subsequent to the annual gathering, the Committee of Council, recognising the importance of this question, appointed a subcommittee to investigate it, and to report, at as early a date as possible, the result of its deliberations. The subcommittee that its first meeting on Tuesday, November 21st, and, after very careful deliberation, starting from the desire to arrive at the real wish of the Association at large, determined, in the first instance, to issue a "circular letter" from the President of Council to the president and secretary of every Branch, and, through them, to the Branches, stating what the grievance is said to be, and seeking their assistance to probe it thoroughly. To effect this end, the subcommittee appends to the letter a series of "questions" calculated, it believes, to elicit the wishes of each Branch on the subject. The letter and the questions appended we publish today; and we hope that, after perusing it, any member who takes an interest in the inquiry will, without delay, place his views before the president or secretary of his Branch, and thus assist them in their official replies to lay those views before the subcommittee. The subcommittee asks that the replies may be handed in at as early a date as is possible, in order that time may be given for their classification and consideration, and for the formulation of a definite scheme of reform to be submitted to the deliberations of the Comm

It was hoped that every member would thus have an opportunity to make himself directly heard. It will be observed that, in this circular letter, information is sought upon several topics which were not, strictly speaking, included in the reference made by the Committee of Council to the subcommittee, viz., "To consider in what way direct representation of the Branches in the Committee of Council can best be secured."

It was apparent that possibly the outcome of the inquiry might lead to some alteration in the constitution of the Committee of Council, consequent on the introduction of new elements; and involve, perhaps, a reconstruction of the entire executive machinery of the Association itself. In the preparation of a comprehensive scheme of this nature, it was felt that a broad view, not only of our present wants, but also of our possible future needs, would have to be taken; and that any information which the subcommittee could accumulate, bearing on these points, would certainly prove most useful and important in any discussion of the subject which might hereafter ensue.

This report, therefore, consists of two parts: 1st. The subject specifically referred to the subcommittee; and 2nd. Pertinent-if somewhat extraneous-matters. This leaves it open to the Committee of Council to deal with the two parts separately if it thinks fit to do so.

By January 16th, 1883, replies had been received from a large majority of the Branches, and on that day the subcommittee held its second meeting, and proceeded not only to consider the replies, but also to formulate the principles on which this report should be based.

It seemed clear to the subcommittee that, in a majority of the Branches of the Association, no dissatisfaction with its existing constitution had been felt; but that in some—chiefly the larger Branches-a decided opinion in favour of some change was expressed.

The results obtained by the replies to the circular letter are difficult to summarise.

If the answers to question No. 1—"Is your Branch satisfied with its present method of representation in the Committee of Council by honorary secretary ex officio?"—be taken as the basis of calculation, it will appear that twenty Branches are content with the status in quo, and that these Branches comprise, in round numbers, about 4,064 members; that seven Branches are in favour of direct and proportional representation; and that these Branches comprise, in round numbers, about 1,671 members. Five home Branches, numbering 306 members, have made no reply; and five colonial Branches have not been consulted.

But if the replies to question No. 5-"Is there any feeling in your Branch of inadequate representation?"—be taken as the basis, the result comes out differently thus:

			No. o	f Members.
Eleven Branches say "Y	'es"	•••	•••	3,047
Fifteen Branches say "1	No"	•••		2,504
Six Branches send no re	ply		•	490
Unattached members nu				2,889
Foreign Branches		•••		486
Tota	1			9.416

The replies to the questions were given in some Branches by the president or secretary alone; in some Branches by the Council of the Branch, called specially to consider them; and in a few cases by the Branches themselves in general meeting. Your subcommittee is unable to say whether, in any instance, other possible changes in the constitution of the Committee of Council were considered, or whether only the specific change which has been placed under our consideration was discussed.

There is also, besides the members of the Branches, a large number (about 2,889) of members of the Association who are not Branch members, but who have a voice in the general meetings, and of whose opinions the subcommittee has still no knowledge, as in no instance has any unattached member communicated his views to the subcommittee.

Should the principle of direct representation be adopted by the Association, the following is the plan which your subcommittee would suggest:

That there be one representative for every Branch.

2. That such representatives be elected "directly" by the Branches.

That they be elected annually.

4. That the larger Branches should have the right to elect out of their members additional representatives on the following scale, viz., that in Branches numbering more than 200 members, there shall be one additional representative for every 200 members.

Your subcommittee desires, in the second place, to refer to certain considerations, some of which, though incidental to the matter specifically referred to them, are not, or may not be, considered to be strictly comprised within the reference.

1. A record of attendance shall be kept and published annually in the Journal.

2. It appears to your subcommittee, from the replies received to the questions published with the circular letter, that many of those who have now the right to attend the meetings of the Committee of Council habitually fail to attend. This it conceives to arise, in the main, from a combination of causes, amongst which are—(u) the distance to be travelled; (b) the time to be devoted to the business; (c) the expense to be incurred. And it is of opinion that, under the proposed constitution, there will still be a large proportion of members who would remain habitual non-attendants, especially as regards the more distant Branches.

In view of this difficulty, your subcommittee discussed very fully the advisability of allowing such Branches to elect, as representatives, members of the Association outside their own limits. By a large majority, it was held that such provision would soon result in an overwhelming balance of power being given to members of Branches in or near the metropolis, and it was felt that it would be impossible to define strictly what was, and what was not, a "distant Branch," and therefore that this privilege, if conceded to one Branch, must be conceded alike to all.

3. It appears to your subcommittee that, if the plan of proportional representation should be adopted, it would be undesirable to maintain the present dual system of government in the Association. The election of representatives on the executive would cease; the executive would cease to be, in any sense, a "Committee of Council," which body would no longer have any share whatever in appointing it; and the annual report would be made direct to the Association by the executive; the choice of place of annual meeting might also be properly left entirely to the "executive."

4. The Council, and therefore the Committee of Council, would cease to exist, and would be replaced by the new governing or executive body.

5. On full consideration, it was determined to recommend that the payment of travelling expenses should be left to the Branches.

6. Your subcommittee has reason to think that the Association would not desire to remove the Vice-Presidents from the executive. Their removal was not requested by any Branch; was earnestly protested against by one; and their retention was recommended by another, and that the largest Branch in the Association; but it suggests that the right of attendance should lapse in the case of any Vice-President who should fail to attend a meeting for two consecutive years. It was of opinion, however, that it might be well to reserve to the Association the power to restore this forfeited right to any Vice-President who should at any time express a desire to resume active co-operation in the work of the Association.

C. G. WHEELHOUSE, President of the Council (Chairman)

occasion—1879—there was a feeling that the Branch should be more frequently represented in the Committee of Council. The question of appointing a special secretary has never been before the Branch; why, I do not know. One suggestion as to this way of meeting what is, I believe, really felt to be a weak point; it seems to me that members who have the time and means to attend the Committee of Council probably do not care to appear as Secretaries to Branches. I think we could get members who would represent us with fair regularity whom we could not ask to appear under this denomination. 6. Should think not: rather the loss of time and length of journey involved. 7. That either of the honorary local secretaries may represent the Branch at meetings of Committee of Council, was that Committee might alternate its place of meeting with other large centres. †Alexander A. As to the Council of the Association: We are of opinion that the business arrangements of the Association would be facilitated and simplified, and its interests equally as well cared for, if the Council were abolished. As to the Committee of Council: We recommend that this body should be called the "Executive Council." and should consist of—The President of the Association; the President-Elect; the Treasurer; such Vice-Presidents as consent in writing to act; the Honorary Secretary of each Branch laving seventy-five members and upwards (who shall be ex officio members); and other elected members, to be elected by the various Branches, in the following proportion, according to their numerical strength, that is to say: Branches of 150 to 300 members, one representative; Branches of 300 to 600 members, two representatives; Branches of 600 members and upwards, three representatives. Where the members of Branches do not amount to seventy-five, it shall be competent to two or more of such Branches to coalesce so as to bring up the number to seventy-five, and entitle them to send one of their honorary secretaries as their ex officio representative on the Executive Council. We recommend, further, that the travelling expenses of honorary secretaries who attend the Executive Council, should be paid out of the funds of the Association. In forwarding these recommendations, I think it well to make a few explanatory remarks. As the duties of the Council are practically performed by the Executive Council, we think it would be a saving of time and labour if the latter body were reported direct to the Association, and, in reality, did all the present work of the Council. (The Council only meets at the annual gathering, and, from my experience, is rather obstructive than otherwise.) Seventy-five members is mentioned as the lowest limit for ex officio representation by the honorary secretaries. The number is unimportant; it is the principle we contend for, viz., that there should be a limit in this direction. The argument used wa direction. The argument used was, that it was unfair that two Branches, having togother, say, 50 members, should have two representatives, whilst one Branch laving 190 should only have the same number. Nevertheless, I think myself, that each Branch should be represented by its honorary secretary. Again, the limiting number as additional representatives are not of so much importance as the principle involved, viz., that there shall be some sort of direct representation, according to the numerical strength of the Branches, and that these representatives shall be elected by the Branches. (Some of us thought we should have the power to elect any member of the Association, not necessarily a member of the Branch.) (I think myself, that the travelling expenses of all members who attend the Executive Council should be paid out of the funds of the Association.) Richmond, Surrey, December 28th, 1882.

Dear Siy,—I have already, on behalf of the above-named Branch, returned you a reply to the various questions referred toon the subject of the representation of the Branches on the Committee of Council, and I therein stated that my Branch would be satisfied by the appointment of an extra honorary secretary, whose duties should be exclusively to represent the Branch on the Committee of Council, the right of the local honorary secretary of the Branch still to attend ex office the meeting of the Committee being maintained intact. I find, however, from a letter received from the General Secretary, dated December 18th, 1882, that, in making this appointment, the Branch has misunderstood the resolution of the Committee of Council, passed October 15th, 1879, as he now informs me that the local honorary secretary of the Branch, in consequence of his appointment having been made, ceases to be a member of the Committee of Council. As this is, I know, entirely opposed to the spirit and wording of the resolution passed by the Branch at their last meeting, when an unanimous opinion was expressed that the privilege of the local honorary secretary to attend the meetings of the Committee should remain as heretofore, I feel it is my duty to forward to you this explanation, which must be read in connection with the replies already sent to your circular.—Believe me, dear sir, EDWARD L. Copy of Resolution, passed by Thames Valley Branch, at a Meeting held at Kingston-on-Thames, December 14th, 1882.

Resolved: That, in accordance with a resolution of the Committee of Council, passed October 5th, 1879, Dr. J. Dear Sir,—With a view to my sending you, as fully as possible, answers to the questions opposite, I arranged with the President of our Branch that a special general meeting should be called, to be held on Thursday last, the 14th instant; and the meeting has been held accordingly. In the notice convening the meeting, which was sent to each member, I requested, should it not be convenient for him to attend, that he would send me a written reply to Questions 1, 5, and 7, copies of which I appended to my circular; but altering the initial words so as to make the questions apply personally; i.e., 1. "Are you satisfied," etc. 5. "Are you aware if any feeling exists," etc. 7. "Have you any suggestion," etc. To this circular, I received answers from twenty-five members, who replied in monosyllables "yes" and "no," or in words equivalent thereto, as follows: to question 1, "Yes;" to question 5, "No," to question 7, "No." At the meeting held on the 14th, there were only six members present. Your letter and the questions were read and freely discussed. Three of those present expressed their dissatisfaction to the effect that the general practitioner is practically not sufficiently represented on the Committee of Council. Resolutions were passed as follows: 1. That, in the opinion of this meeting, the existing by-law of the Association, No. 25, and the resolution passed by the Committee of Council on October 15th, 1879, defining the powers given by that by-law to Branches for appointing an ex afficie representative are sufficient, and that no lateration in the laws of the Association on this subject is required. 2. That, under the circumstances of Dr. Kelly having intimated to this meeting that he is unable, from the state of his health, to attend the meetings of the Committee of Council, and that he should be glad to be relieved of ing by a deputy, who shall be elected at each annual meeting of the Branch.—

SIR,—I have been preparing a scheme, some weeks now, to present to the medical profession, similar to what is proposed in the BRITISH MEDICAL JOURNAL, with regard to a medical provident society. It struck me, that as a profession, we have no provision amongst ourselves for old age, or for our more unfortunate, or invalid brethren, who in most cases have commenced life under as good auspices as the more fortunate amongst us. To make a society such auspices as the more fortunate amongst us. To make a society season this, however popular, it must not be a "charity," but a "mutual provident society;" also all profits, except the expenses that are necessary for carrying on such a society, must go to the benefit of the members. No paid agents being required, if the profession will give that help which is necessary, and which is of mutual benefit to all, a considerable advantage must accrue to the society. The name I had adopted of "The Medical Mutual Benefit Society," being longer and more cumbersome than that used by writers in the JOURNAL, I resign, for the more simple and equally comprehensive one of "The Medical Provident Society." The main points of the scheme I would propose, and which are offered here merely as a suggestion, are open to criticism and remark:-

1. The Society to admit only qualified practitioners, resident in the United Kingdom, as members.

2. The Society to consist of a Central Court of Directors, President, Vice-President, and Trustees; also a Court of Members in each county, and Honorary Secretaries, all of whom must be members of the Society.

3. The Society to appoint a secretary at a salary of £300 a year, whose office shall be in London, and called the Central office.

BENEFITS

4. The claims upon the Society's funds to be as follows:

a. When a member is ill and unable to attend to his professional duties, not exceeding 26 weeks, £1 10s. per week. b. After a sick member has received benefit for 26 weeks; or, when a member is totally incapacitated; or, on attaining the age of 70 years, £1 per week. c. Widows of members, as long as they remain unmarried, for ten years, £1 per week; after ten years, 15s. per week. For every child born in lawful wedlock, until each shall attain the age of 18 years, 5s. per week extra.

5. No benefit to be received until the expiration of six months after date of entry.

6. No practitioner over 65 years of age eligible for membership.

7. Every policy to become void if:-

a. A member shall enter or be employed in actual war service beyond the limits of the United Kingdom, or shall go beyond the limits of Europe, unless licence shall have been first obtained from the Court of Directors, upon such terms as they shall think fit. b. If the premiums of assurance shall remain unpaid above fifteen days after the date on which the same become due; but it may be revived within twenty-two days upon payment of a fine of 10s.; within twenty-nine days, £1: within thirty-six days, £1 10s.; and after that time and within three calendar months, £2. If the member shall die within the fifteen days next after the day on which the premium becomes due, the policy to remain in force, but the premium to be deducted before any benefit can be granted. c. A member shall be found guilty, by the Court of Directors, of practising any fraud upon the Society; notwithstanding it is left to their discretion to fine the offending member, and allow him to retain his policy.

8. Each applicant for membership must undergo an examination by a doubly qualified practitioner who has been in practice for at least five years, and who must reside in the same county. The life to be submitted to the next Court of Members, and elected or rejected by ballot as they may think fit.

noble lord was aware that the report was not even yet in the hands of members, although it was published in the newspapers last Saturday.—The Marquis of HARTINGTON: I deeply regret what has occurred. For some time past, the Times has devoted considerably more space to military matters than other papers; and, having regard to that, and also to the fact that, from time to time, unauthorised and inaccurate statements had somehow or other got out of the War Office; considering also that, if questions of this kind were discussed at all, it was desirable that they should be discussed in a careful and deliberate manner, it has been the practice for some time past to allow a person connected with the Times to have an early proof of papers intended to be presented to Parliament to publish them. The Department had satisfactory proof of the good faith and discretion with which the papers would be used, and they were always given on the distinct understanding that nothing whatever should be published until the papers were in the hands of members. Acting upon that practice my noble friend Lord Morley, Chairman of the Committee, gave to a gentleman connected with the Times, immediately before the Whitsuntide holidays, his own proof of the report and the evidence taken, in the belief that the papers would be in the hands of members on the House reassembling, and on the understanding that nothing whatever should be published until they were so distributed. He was himself extremely surprised to see the report and extracts from the evidence published at great length in the Times of Saturday and subsequent days. He had communicated with the editor of the Times, who had expressed great regret for what had occurred. But I must say that, looking to the great want of care, to say the least, which has been exhibited in this case, it appears to me necessary that that practice should be altogether abandoned. I am sorry to say the evidence and report are so voluminous that they will not be in the hands of members till Tuesday, and the Army Medical vote will accordingly be postponed. The vote relating to the Contagious Diseases Acts will also be postponed until members have had an opportunity of considering the Government Bill on the subject: -Sir W. BARTTELOT: But this is what has happened before. I think the Prime Minister gave us an assurance that no publication of any sort should take place until the papers were in the hands of members; and yet immediately after that we have this full authentic report of the Committee at the War Office.—Mr. GLADSTONE: The promise to which the hon. member refers was of a departmental character.—Dr. CAMERON, complaining of the unfair character of the extracts as given, gave notice that to-morrow he should question Lord Hartington as to their accuracy.-Mr. CALLAN gave notice that he should ask whether Lord Morley had not simply followed the bad example set by the late Chief Secretary for Ireland, who gave the report of the Land Commission to the Times two days in advance. The Marquis of HARTINGTON: One of the reasons why I regret this improper and premature publication is, that it is not only premature, but, in my opinion, has been done in a manner altogether calculated to mislead the public.—Mr. A. BALFOUR: Can the Prime Minister now give us a promise not of a "departmental character"? Mr. GLADSTONE: I don't think my answer called for such a taunt. -Mr. BALFOUR: I certainly did not mean to taunt the right hon. gentleman.—Mr. GLADSTONE: If the question of the hon. gentleman does not imply a taunt, I must be more obtuse than on former occasions. As to the matter of fact, I entirely concur in the letter and the spirit of my noble friend's (Lord Hartington's) decision, and I would wish to act upon it on all occasions.—Mr. O'DONNELL: I wish to ask the Secretary of War whether the understanding on which early copies of documents are given to the Times, is that the review in the paper shall, on the whole, be favourable to the Government of the day.—The Marquis of HARTINGTON: So far as I am aware, the object of the practice was as stated by me in answer to the first question. If the object had been to obtain a review of a favourable character, that object has not been attained.

PRESCRIBING AND DISPENSING.

PRESCRIBING AND DISPENSING.

SIR,—When Bills are being introduced into Parliament to amend both the Medical Acts and the Pharmacy Act, this may be a fitting time to make the endeavour to prevent druggists from prescribing medicines, of the physiological and therapeutic effects of which they know little or nothing. Whilst duggists should not be allowed to prescribe, I cannot help sympathising with them in their attempts to get the monopoly of selling and compounding all—with a few exceptions—the medicines enumerated in the British Pharmacopaia. This concession would be a graceful act, and is only fair to them after the prolonged study and expense to which they have been put to qualify themselves. At present, grocers and others have largely invaded the distinctive territory of the druggist, and medicines ordered offhand by the medical man are not unfrequently procured from the grocer's shop or general stone. A student may be refused his druggist's certificate if he fail to tell all about the natural history, chemistry, etc., of saltpetre, cream of tartar; magnesia, senna, etc., yet it is open to anyone without knowledge to sell and dispense any or all medicines in the Pharmacopaia, with the exception of a few poisons. poisons.

any or all medicines in the Pharmacopaia, with the exception of a few poisons.

To prevent the sale of substances or articles used in medicine by incompetent persons, I would suggest that (with the exception of a few scheduled articles to be kept by the grocer and drysater) all medicines should only be allowed to be kept by legally qualified druggists.

To prevent druggists from prescribing, I would suggest that a clause something like the following should be inserted into the amended Pharmacy Act: "It is hereby enacted that all scheduled poisons are only to be prescribed by a legally qualified man, who must have his full name and address affixed to his prescription, and no chemist, or druggist, or pharmacist shall be allowed to prescribe in any shape whatever the scheduled poisons, or dispense in any prescription the said poisons unless the medical man's name and address in full is attached thereto; and it shall be unlawful for said chemist, or druggist, or pharmacist, to repeat the prescription of any medical man in which any of the scheduled poisons are ordered unless said prescription shall be marked with the word "repeat and have the initials of the prescriber and date of repetition affixed, and in order to cancel the prescription after it is dispensed, the name of the dispenser shall be written thereon in addition to affixing the business stamp of the chemist who may have dispenses shall also apply to all medical men keeping open shop as regards the prescriptions of other medical men keeping open shop as regards the prescriptions of other medical men keeping open shop as regards the prescriptions of other medical men keeping open shop as regards the prescriptions of other medical men keeping open shop as regards the prescriptions and have attached thereto the date of dispensing and the signature of the dispenser."

Hoping that the present opportunity of rectifying clamant evils may be taken advantage of, I am, etc.,

The Feeding of Infants.

THE FERDING OF INFANTS.

THE FERDING OF INFANTS.

STR.—I cannot agree with Dr. Neale in his strong condemnation of the use of condensed milk as a food for infants, as from experience with my own children and the children of others. I have found "Nestle's Swiss Condensed Milk" most excellent food for infants, and I cannot call to mind a single instance in which I have known or heard of its being injurious.

As regards my own children—the first I had fed on Nestle's milk is now twenty-three months old. It was given to him exclusively until he was over nine months old. I came to use it from the following circumstance. He was nearly dying of infantile diarrheas when about six weeks old, being then fed on diluted cow's milk, which I discontinued from the day on which the discontinued from the day of the da nine months old. I came to use it from the following circumstance. He was nearly dying of infantile diarrhea when about its weeks old, being them fed on diluted cow's milk, which I discontinued from the day on which the diarrhea showed itself, and a good healthy wet nurse was procured, but still the diarrhea continued, notwithstanding the most approved treatment being constantly applied, and as a last resource, I was led to try Nestlê's condensed milk, which produced the most decided improvement in twenty-four hours; the second child, now seven months old, has had nothing else but this as food since he was two weeks old, and two finer and stronger children for their age could not be found. There may be other brands as good as "Nestlê's," but this is the only one I am acquainted with.

The milk should not be made too strong. I have found a moderately heaped teaspoonful in a teacupful (eight cunces) of warm water quite strong einough until the infant reaches three or four months, and from four months to eight months one teaspoonful and a half in eight cunces of water.

I am now speaking from experience only, and I have found infants to grow and thrive splendidly on this. The mistake generally made, is the milk is used not sufficiently diluted, under the impression so small a quantity will not sustain the infant's Hée, or the strong list in the feeding bottle not being properly cleanaed, and thus divebute is breight upon, in my opinion, one of the meet valuable of all the infant's foods known. Tous fathfully, and the meet valuable of all the infant's foods known. Tous fathfully.
