

Regarding the station-hospitals here and all along the river, so far as they are yet established, they are working satisfactorily and well, and no complaints whatever are made. Officers and men are all satisfied; indeed, the former are loud in their expressions regarding the attention and care they receive. Now and again, one hears the amusing complaint of a man suffering from dysentery or typhoid, that he has had "nothing to eat for several days;" for the milk, eggs, soup, arrowroot, given in their cases in suitable quantities, are not considered food by the British soldier. However, the absurdity of such complaints appears to be now getting to be understood.

There is also now issued an inquiry as to the occurrence of albuminuria in apparently healthy persons.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

BERLIN.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

The Berlin University Institute.—Death of Dr. Grimm, Physician in Ordinary to H.I.M. the Emperor of Germany.—University Intelligence.

PROFESSOR BUSCH, the head of the new Dental Institute attached to the University of Berlin (of which mention was made, in July and November last, in the BRITISH MEDICAL JOURNAL), has published a short article, in the Deutsche Medicinische Wochenschrift, on the Study of Dentistry at the University of Berlin. I take from it the following notes, referring to the conditions on which foreigners are admitted to lectures at the institute. As the institute forms a part of the university, those who are desirous of studying dentistry at the institute must be matriculated at the university. Foreigners are matriculated at the university, in any faculty they choose, on showing their passport, or certificate of having already matriculated at another German university. If they wish to pass the State examination in dentistry, they must send in a petition, to that effect, to the Minister of Education, who will fix the conditions to be complied with. Whether students should be advised to go direct from school to the dental institute, or first work for a year in a dentist's laboratory, cannot be answered off-hand. By going straight to the university, the student can attend the scientific lectures; and, as the Dental Institute affords plenty of opportunity for learning the technical part of the profession, the disadvantage of not having previously worked in a dentist's laboratory disappears. Vacation-courses of lectures held in the institute are open to students of the university, and practising medical men and dentists, without a special ticket from the university. The Dental Institute is much frequented by the public. It is in the Dorotheenstrasse.

The day before Christmas-day, Dr. Grimm, one of the physicians in ordinary to the Emperor, and retired staff-surgeon of the general staff of the army, succumbed, in his eighty-first year, to an attack of bronchitis. In 1858, he was made first general staff-surgeon of the army and chief of the military medical department. It was he who reformed the military medical department of the Prussian and German armies. He retired in 1879 from his military duties, when he was made physician in ordinary to the Emperor. His reforms were carried out with considerable ability; the excellence of his arrangements was first practically witnessed in the campaigns of 1864 and 1866. Dr. Grimm was not a relative of the physiologist of the same name.

At the University of Berlin, 5,066 students are inscribed in the books for this term, of whom 1,133 are students of medicine; of these, 128 are non-European, 112 being American, 15 coming from Asia, and one from Africa. In Leipsic, out of 3,281 students, 695 are medical students; at Königsberg, there are 247 medical students, out of a total of 897; at Würzburg, 740, out of 1,280; at Breslau, 378, out of 1,389; at Halle, 298, out of 1,631; at Tübingen, 185, out of 1,237.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

Dispute between the Corporation and the Royal Infirmary Board.—Conference on Health and Education.—Vacancy for Pathologist at the Infirmary.—Water-Supply.

A CURIOUS dispute has arisen between the Corporation of this city and the Board of Management of the Royal Infirmary, with reference to the time which fever-patients (more especially scarlet fever) are retained at the Monsal Fever Hospital, which belongs to the latter, and to which infectious cases are sent from the city. The Corporation pays the Infirmary Board a fixed sum per annum to maintain the hospital, and, in addition, 14s. to 21s. per week per patient, according to the number in the wards, to cover the cost of the maintenance of the patients. During the last two quarters of 1884, the Corporation have refused to pay their accounts in full, deducting £540, on the ground that the time during which the convalescents were detained in hospital was excessive and unnecessary. They allege that some cases have been in hospital fourteen weeks, and all have been kept much longer than formerly. The Infirmary Board have, by a resolution, called on the Corporation to pay their account in full, and have declined to receive fever-patients except on the distinct understanding that the medical staff of the Infirmary are to be the sole judges as to the period during which it is necessary to detain infectious cases in hospital. For the present, at least, the Infirmary Board are masters of the situation, as no adequate accommodation for fever-patients exists in this district, except at Monsal, though twenty-eight or thirty beds are set apart for scarlet fever at the Children's Hospital. The whole question turns on the answer to the query, How long do scarlet fever patients remain infectious? The Health Committee of the Corporation—who have been rather roughly used in the press on account of their alleged extravagance—protest, by the advice of the medical officer of health, against a longer detention of their patients in hospital than the end of the sixth week for cases of average severity. The medical officers at Monsal prefer to adopt a somewhat longer detention, in order to secure absolute safety. Surely it is the truest economy, in the long run, to be well on the safe side. Perhaps the best thing, by way of a compromise, would be the establishment of a convalescent fever hospital.

A conference on how best to secure "education under healthy conditions is to be held in this city in the spring, under the presidency of Lord Aberdare. Among the subjects to be discussed are the following: "Overpressure in Schools, both Higher and Elementary;" "Physical Training and Gymnastics;" "Kindergarten Exercises;" "Science and Art in Schools;" "Penny Dinners for Poor Children." The conference promises to be well supported, and it is to be hoped that a maximum of light and a minimum of heat will be evolved from the discussion of subjects hitherto distinguished for a somewhat opposite result. The honorary secretary is Mr. T. C. Horsfall, of Alderley Edge.

The office of Pathologist to the Royal Infirmary, and Assistant-Professor of Pathology at Owens College, is now vacant by the resignation of Dr. Maguire, who has recently been appointed Assistant-Physician to St. Mary's Hospital, London. The post is an exceedingly valuable one, not only for the prospect of further advancement which it offers, but also for the rich opportunities for research presented in the post mortem room of the Infirmary and the newly equipped laboratories at Owens College. Several candidates are already in the field. The appointment practically rests with the Medical Board, who recommend a candidate to the General Board.

By a recent resolution of the Corporation, the works in connection with the projected water-supply of this district from Thirlmere are to be commenced forthwith.

VACCINATION.—Mr. R. L. Shone, Public Vaccinator for the Mortlake District of the Richmond Union, has recently received the Government grant for successful vaccination.

sample for analysis; but the owner of the bakehouse refuses to allow it to be taken; and, so far as I can see, the sanitary authority has no power to compel him to do so. Even if proceedings were taken (which could hardly be done without proof of the impurity of the water), the magistrates could order the water to be analysed, but the baker might still refuse to supply the means for this to be done, without, so far as appears, incurring any penalty.

2. The Bakehouse Act is in other respects very inefficient. For instance, any bakehouse which was in use before 1883, may be in communication with an ash-pit or privy, may be supplied by a cistern which also supplies a closet, and may contain the opening of a drain in direct communication with the sewers.

3. Moreover, the functions of the inspector of bakehouses, being practically almost limited to seeing that the place is kept clean, cannot be delegated to the inspector of nuisances, but must be performed by the medical officer of health himself.—I am, etc., E. C.

* 1. See Section 79 of the Public Health Act, 1875. If the representation therein contemplated were made by a responsible official, the court would, no doubt, be willing, upon sufficient cause shown, to make an order for the water to be analysed. Disobedience to an order of the court would be punishable under the general statute law.

2. See Section 16 of the Factory and Workshop Act, 1883, which provides that, where the court is satisfied that any bakehouse is in such a state as to be, on sanitary grounds, unfit for use or occupation as a bakehouse, the occupier shall be liable to a penalty of forty shillings.

3. An inspector of nuisances cannot exercise the powers given to a factory inspector by the Factory and Workshops Act, 1873. Such powers are conferred by Section 17 of the Act of 1883 upon medical officers of health only.
