THE LAST INFALLIBLE REMEDY FOR EPILEPSY.

L'Union Médicale writes as follows in reference to a paper by Dr. Ogle, which lately appeared in the Lancet :—

"Our correspondent has heard at London that a special hospital for epileptics exists in France, and that a specific treatment with the galium album is there found successful in the cure of epilepsy. Astonished at these, to him, novel facts, he hastily forwarded us a translation of the curious episode published by Dr. Ogle. Unfortunately, to us, there is nothing new in all this. This pretended hereditary and family secret is no secret to any one here; neither is its want of success. Its use has, indeed, been loudly boasted about by the present possessor of the secret, M. Larnage, a zealous and skilful philanthropist. There exists at Leppe, in Ardèche, an establishment, founded in 1857, under the title of Asylum of St. Vincent de Paul for Epileptics, and placed under the Religieuses of that order. M. Pialla was the first doctor of it; and he has been succeeded by Dr. Perriat. Instituted (soi-disant) as a charity, to aid patients excluded from hospitals, the asylum admits all kinds of nervous diseases (excepting lunacy); and in virtue of the maxim, that the rich should pay for the poor, the price of the pension varies from 3600 francs and upwards per annum to 510 francs for the second class. From eighty to one hundred patients are admitted; lotteries and subscriptions being opened from time to time to enlarge the asylum. Whoever enters must promise to remain a year, at least. The juice of the galium album, obtained by pressure, is given in doses of 125 to 150 grammes at a time, at the first full moon of May and September, and in the interval, the use of lozenges of the juice constitutes the only active treatment of the epileptics. This, at all events, is the way in which the 800 or 900 out-patients who yearly go to Tain are treated, at the pharmacy where the religious sisters of the establishment deliver out the precious drugs, and sell them very dear. There are, however, other requisite precautions. Adults must have neither eaten nor drunk for twenty hours previously, and children for twelve hours. The same rules apply to the use of the lozenges; a box of twenty-four selling for three francs.

"The credulous reader must not, however, imagine that he can himself gather the plant, and squeeze out its juice, and successfully employ it. No. As the grapes of Hermitage yield a superior wine, so does the gallium obtained from a reserved spot in the mountain alone enjoy the virtues curative of epilepsy! As to the modus faciendi, and the composition of the lozenges, 'that is my secret,' says M. Larnage. Every one will admire this tour de main. But the one secret which is most obstinately kept is that of the cures effected. There is not an authentic one. To be sure, there are a few cases of ecclesiastics cured or improved; but they are nameless and without address, and no details or clinical observation verify the fact. 'I have seen,' says M. Pialla, the acting doctor, 'more than 4000 epileptics treated with the galium; and I do not hesitate in affirming that 3000, at least, have been cured or relieved.' Statistics simple and easy, after the fashion of the establishment. Hence, then, as regards the true use of the galium in epilepsy, nothing precise is to be learnt there. In the interests of truth and science, however, we can supply a few decisive facts. Some time ago, M. Larnage was ambitious to obtain for his remedy academic honours, and the benefits of a decree. He, therefore, addressed himself to M. Deasiauve, physician of Bicêtre, and author of an excellent work on Epilepsy. Eight epileptics were chosen in conditions of curability, and subjected to M. Larnage's lozenges; but they were neither cured nor relieved. A memoir sent to the Academy of Medicine on this subject (and which, unfortunately, has not been reported upon) proves this statement. The therapeutic action of the pretended specific is, therefore, definitively judged and condemned 'as nil.'"

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR THE PROMOTION OF SOCIAL SCIENCE.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC HEALTH.

THURSDAY, JUNE 12TH, 1862.

W. FAIRBAIRN, Esq., F.R.S., President, in the Chair.

DR. R. D. THOMSON read a paper On the Proper Source of Waters for Domestic Purposes. He said that the usual sources of water for domestic purposes were well-waters, agricultural river-waters, and pastoral waters. A general idea had prevailed, that, for the purposes of drinking, well-water was to be preferred to that derived from other sources of supply; and, although sanitary officers had made attempts to inform the poor that it was unwholesome, their efforts were greatly obstructed. He had examined shallow well and other waters for the supply of towns, and he found that they not only contained sewage, but they varied generally in their composition from day to day. He condemned in the most unequivocal manner the use of lead-cisterns, and lead-pipes, and said that they ought never to be used for the conveyance of water for domestic purposes. He recommended the use of pastoral waters, which were entirely free from pollution of sewage and agricultural impurities. It was becoming essential for the increasing population on the banks of rivers, that the supplies of cities should be derived from the waters referred to, as public health may suffer from their use. It is on this account that I believe we ought, under no circumstances, to tolerate the use of these pumps, so long as water from other and less impure sources can be obtained.

In cases where there is a necessity for using this water, it ought first to be boiled, and then to be filtered; and this is chiefly the case in the summer season. I have observed that children more especially suffer from drinking pump water in the summer; and have seen cases where chronic diarrhoea has been arrested by having recourse to filtered Thames water, instead of the surface well water from pumps.

I have stolen a few moments from my canvass for the coronership to write these remarks, as I am convinced of the importance of the subject, and the necessity of the condemnation of all waters derived from surface wells in towns, situated, as many parts of London are, with a thin surface of gravel over a bed of clay.

I am, etc.,

EDWIN LANKESTER.

8, Savile Row, June 14th, 1852.

[Dr. Dundas Thompson, in a paper read by him at the Social Science meeting last week, made out a distinct case condemnatory of the use of London pump waters. When questioned on the point, he distinctly asserted that these pump waters were daily becoming more unfitted for human drinking. That Mr. Beale has for a long time drank with impunity a daily pint of pump water containing a large amount of decomposed animal, etc., matters, is no proof that the water is fitted for general use. #### PHYSICIANS' FEES.

SIR,—In a letter in your last number signed "Bristolensis," a complaint is made that the physicians of the present day lower their rank, and lower the profession generally, by reducing their charges to little above that of the general practitioner. In fact, that they take the guinea when they can get it; and when they cannot, they take what they can get. This complaint is but too true; but is the remedy not in the general practitioner's own hands? I believe it is. If it is necessary for the social status of the profession to have the rank of physician amongst us, why don't we give him the opportunity of supporting his rank? From a pretty wide experience, I can say that the way to keep the young physician from poaching on the territory of the general practitioner, is for the general practitioner now and then to give him a day's shooting. In other words, to call him in to see a case now and then. That is the most effectual remedy to the poaching system, and, at the same time, engenders a friendly feeling, which is by no means without its fruits. If "Bristolensis" and his neighbours will adopt my plan, they will soon have no poaching in their district, and they as well as the poacher will find the benefit of it.

ONE OF THE OLD SCHOOL.

LUNATICS IN NEW YORK. There are, writes the American Medical Times, in this State upwards of two thousand insane persons confined in almshouses, jails, penitentiaries, who should come under the personal examination of such commission; many of these unfortunate persons are the victims of the grossest ill-treatment. It seems impossible that, in an age so distinguished for its intelligent treatment of the insane, and in a state so renowned for its judicious philanthropy, the poor lunatic is to be found still bound by chains in a dismal cell, unwashed, uncleansed, and receiving his meagre pittance like the wild beast of the menagerie. Yet such a shocking spectacle may be seen in many an almshouse of this state.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

* * All letters and communications for the JOURNAL, to be addressed to the EDITOR, 37, Great Queen St., Lincoln's Inn Fields, W.C.

CORRESPONDENTS, who wish notice to be taken of their communications, should authenticate them with their names—of course not necessarily for publication.

MR. BOTTOMLEY deprecates the publication in the JOURNAL of a paper entitled "The Hereditary Transmission of Mental and Physical Impressions: How and When Produced. By II. Whitfield, Esq."

"I was unfortunately prevented," he writes, "from attending the meeting at which it was read. Had I been present, I should have endeavoured to have suppressed a paper so full of absurdities. Such a paper should not have been permitted to be read at a meeting calling itself scientific.... I regret that nearly three columns of the JOURNAL should have been so unprofitably occupied. As President of the South-Eastern Branch of the British Medical Association, I feel myself called upon to give my views upon the subject, that I might not be supposed to sanction such a paper."

P. S.—Our correspondent will by this time have learnt that he has blamed us for not having fallen into the same mare's-nest as that into which the Lancet and some other journals have found their way. The Lancet not only announced the fact of the Surrey Gardens being the site on which was to arise the future hospital of St. Thomas; but it also plumed itself on being the original discoverer of the appropriateness of that ancient region of song and wild animals for the purpose. The proposed lodgment, then, is merely of a temporary character—an Arab tent sort of affair.

A LADY of the name of Miss Garret has, we hear, petitioned the Edinburgh College of Physicians to be allowed to pass the preliminary examination, and to be registered as a student, with a view to the obtaining the Diploma of the College.

M.D.—We believe not. The regulations say distinctly that candidates must be unmarried.

ARE THE HAMMER AND CHISEL USED BY MR. SYME?—In some clinical remarks made in the Lancet of the 14th inst., by Mr. Fergusson, on a Case of Tumour of the Upper Jaw, Mr. Fergusson is reported to have said as follows:—

"Here, as he had often done on other occasions, the operation was performed piecemeal,—that is, portions of the diseased parts were brought away at a time. This was a less rude process than using the hammer and chisel as described by Lizzars and SYME. His (Mr. Fergusson's) operation could be performed without either removing or injuring the healthy tissues. He was content at the first to take away the larger portion of the tumour, partly with the cutting pliers and partly with the forceps, especially the lion forceps. He could thus remove the chief of the disease—getting to its centre, and then easily to the circumference. There was no other instrument in surgery which would enable the operator to do this but the semicircular cutting forceps."

In this passage, Mr. Fergusson maintains a principle of operating directly opposed to that which was lately recommended by Mr. Syme in this JOURNAL. It is not our province to decide such practical questions; but we may remark that Mr. Fergusson should not connect Mr. Syme's name with hammers and chisels—which, so far as we know, he never used nor recommended.

A VERY PROPER SUGGESTION.—SIR: The coming meeting of our Association in London, when we may hope for a more than average attendance of the members, is opportunity for the consideration of any change that may be thought desirable. I therefore take the present opportunity of suggesting, that on this and on future occasions arrangements should be made for holding a special service at the commencement of our annual meetings. The custom of an introductory service is always observed by the members of the British Association, and by those of the National Association for the Promotion of Social Science. It has possibly been through forgetfulness that the British Medical Association has hitherto omitted to pay this reasonable tribute of acknowledgment to the Giver of all wisdom. Let us no longer give this occasion for the reproach Ubi tres medici ibi duo athei.

I am, etc., X. P.

My name is at the service of the Council, if it is asked; but it will be more in accordance with my own feelings, and with what is due to the members generally, if this suggestion appear in the JOURNAL simply with an initial.

HOW TO GAIN A CONSULTING PRACTICE.—SIR: I received this morning the enclosed note from an old and valued medical friend, who expresses himself very strongly upon the subject.

Dr. Wallace is a gentleman who has lately settled in Colchester. When he called upon me, I was certainly surprised at his leaving with me a copy of testimonials. I never before heard of such a practice being adopted by physicians in search of a practice. Whatever may be the opinion of the profession as to the propriety of this, I feel confident that it will not be deemed within the rules of etiquette to send such testimonials, with a note like that below, to medical men far and wide in the counties of Essex and Suffolk. If I am wrong, publicity will be the means of setting me right; and perhaps some standard may be laid down as to how far this mode of advertisement may be safely carried. Whatever may be the opinion of any particular member of the profession, I must, in the strongest possible language, express my own dissent from such practice; I think it degrading to the order to which we both belong; and I cannot illustrate this better than by asking What would be thought, said, and done, were a barrister to enclose a list of his testimonials to every lawyer in the country?

I am, etc., C. R. BREE, M.D.,
Physician to the Essex and Colchester Hospital.

Colchester, June 3rd, 1862.

[COPY.]

DEAR SIR,—Having recently left London and settled in Colchester, as a consulting physician, I beg to send for your perusal a copy of testimonials, which have been at various times accorded to me; and I shall have much pleasure in embracing the earliest opportunity of making your personal acquaintance. I wish also to mention that, having set apart Monday and Wednesday mornings for gratuitous advice, I shall be happy to see any poor patient at those times, gratuitously, for whom you may desire a second opinion, provided you will kindly send by the case a note or your card for my information.

Believe me, yours truly,

ALEXANDER WALLACE, M.D., F.R.C.P.

Late Physician to the St. Paneras and Northern Dispensary.

[It is a sad thing to have to note the high moral tone put forth in Introductory Lectures as innate, proper, and belonging to our "noble and high-minded" profession; to hear how careful lecturers are to impress upon the student's ingenuous mind the clear distinction which exists between his honourable profession and trade. We say it is painful to note this, and at the same time to witness the frequent recurrence to the commonest trade manoeuvres exhibited by members of our profession. What must the aforesaid ingenuous student think when he comes to compare his lecturer's theory with his own experience in practice? The tradesman issues printed circulars as proofs of his skill, or the goodness of his wares. When a member of our profession does the same, we cannot for the life of us see that he can be regarded as other than a tradesman; that he does anything more or less than reduce his profession to a trade. Why does not Dr. Wallace quietly bide his time, and prove himself worthy by his industry and labours of the confidence which he would seize from the hands of his professional brethren by the violent coup-de-main of issuing testimonials to them? EDITOR.]

DR. TAYLOR'S EVIDENCE.—SIR: With all due respect for your editorial functions, I venture to call in question the correctness of the opinion you have offered, in the JOURNAL of June 14, upon the character of a highly distinguished gentleman. It is due to science, and to the members of the Association, that, having chosen your own point of attack, you should afford sufficient details to put your readers in possession of the whole charge which you have brought against Dr. Alfred Taylor.

You make a general statement, that "There is undoubtedly, and has long been, a feeling in the minds of those who are acquainted with Dr. Taylor's way of giving evidence in cases of criminal prosecutions, that Dr. Taylor acts too much the part of an advocate." This general statement you appear to support by the particular instance (the censurable points of which you do not give) of "a late fearful case of a murder of infants in which he was engaged." (As principal, or as witness?)

Having read the reported evidence of scientific witnesses on most of the important medico-legal trials, for several years past, I cannot participate in your opinion, that Dr. Taylor has earned "a bad name for scientific evidence"; "has exercised his imagination, and propounded hypotheses, to explain things scientifically inexplicable." I believe that most of your readers will agree with me, the exactly opposite characteristics would be applicable to Dr. Taylor's evidence in general; and that the present high standing of medico-legal science in this country is due to the impartial and truly scientific character of Dr. Taylor's evidence in particular cases.

The attack you have made upon Dr. Taylor, is not, in my opinion, a matter simply affecting personal reputation, but it involves the interests of justice and of science; and for that reason alone, without referring to Dr. Taylor, as I fear he might not notice it, I have presumed to address you thereon.

I am, etc., W. B. KESTEVEN.
