

MEDICAL NEWS.

DR. ALFRED EDDOWES, of London, has been elected a corresponding member of the Société Française de Dermatologie.

SURGEON-GENERAL SIR BENJAMIN FRANKLIN, K.C.I.E., late Director-General, Indian Medical Service, has been appointed a Knight of Grace of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem in England.

ALVARENGA PRIZE.—The Alvarenga Prize of the College of Physicians of Philadelphia has been awarded to Dr. Chalmers Watson, Edinburgh, for an essay on The Importance of Diet: an Experimental Study from a New Standpoint.

REQUESTS TO MEDICAL CHARITIES.—The late Miss Agnes Abercrombie, of Doune Terrace, Edinburgh, whose will has now been proved, left £1,000 to the Royal Infirmary, Edinburgh.

A DENTAL CONGRESS.—On July 28th a Dental Congress organized by the Spanish Odontological Federation was opened at Palma, on the Island of Majorca. It was attended by the majority of the dentists in Spain. The King of Spain was represented, and special delegates were sent by the University of Rome, the Dental Schools of Paris, Lyons, and Bordeaux.

TROPICAL RESEARCH.—At the initial meeting of the Liverpool Institute of Tropical Research on July 31st, Sir Alfred Jones, who has already done much for tropical medicine, was elected Chairman. He dwelt in his speech on the necessity of applying scientific methods to commercial enterprise, especially in the tropics, in which the obstacles of disease had to be overcome, and ended by guaranteeing the institution £1,000 a year for four years. A similar offer was made by Mr. W. H. Lever, and other sums were also promised.

HYGIENIC INSTRUCTION FOR TEACHERS.—On the initiative of Professor Debove, Dean of the Medical Faculty of the University of Paris, the French Superior Council of Public Instruction has adopted two measures which seem likely to be useful in the interests of the public health. To the programme of study of Normal Schools for male teachers instruction in the elementary facts of venereal diseases is to be added, and that for female teachers will henceforth include puericulture.

THE METRIC SYSTEM.—The Secretary of the Decimal Association has received a letter from the General Council of Chambers of Commerce of the Commonwealth of Australia, stating that at a meeting of that body held in Sydney in June last a resolution was passed expressing satisfaction at the increasing public interest in the metric system of weights and measures. The resolution further expressed the hope that the system may very shortly be adopted for England and the Empire generally.

THE WATER SUPPLY OF WOOLACOMBE.—Last month, as mentioned in our Parliamentary Notes at the time, the President of the Local Government Board stated, in reply to a question in the House of Commons, that his attention had been called to the unsatisfactory character of the water supply of Woolacombe—a Devonshire watering-place—but added that steps were being taken to provide a new and satisfactory supply. Dr. Thomas Young, who practises at Woolacombe, informs us that this new supply, which is brought from Exmoor and is pure and abundant, has now been laid on, and that the occasion was celebrated on August 1st with some solemnity.

DAVID LEWIS EPILEPTIC COLONY.—In the report of the annual meeting of the Medico-Psychological Association of Great Britain and Ireland, published in the JOURNAL of July 20th, it was stated in the abstract of a paper on the David Lewis Epileptic Colony, read by Dr. Alan MacDougall at Alderley Edge, Cheshire, that "a charge of 14s. a week is made to the colonists, male and female." This is calculated to convey the impression that there is no accommodation for adult patients except such as can only pay the sum specified. It is right, therefore, that it should be made clear that in addition to the four houses at which a uniform charge of 14s. a week is made to colonists, there are two other houses, one for men and one for women, offering more private accommodation. Each of these houses contains twenty beds, of which ten are in two dormitories (six in one and four in the other). The remaining ten beds are in private bedrooms, each provided with a fireplace. In addition to the use of the general living rooms, the occupants of these single-bedded rooms have reserved to them two private sitting rooms. A minimum charge of 50s. a week is made to colonists occupying these single-bedded rooms. A private sitting room is also reserved for the use of the ten colonists sharing the dormitories, and the charge for this accommodation is 30s. a week. The colonists in these houses take their meals together, and meet in the large living room. Special arrangements are made for epileptic children.

CITY OF LONDON CHEST HOSPITAL.—On July 26th the Duke and Duchess of Connaught opened a new nurses' home in connexion with the City of London Hospital for Diseases of the Chest, Victoria Park. Sir Edward Sassoon pointed out that twenty-four beds had had to be closed because the accommodation for the nurses was not sufficient. At the present time there were 31 nurses housed in the hospital; the new buildings provided for an additional 10, making 41 in all. The Duke of Connaught said it was to him a very pleasing task to be enabled to open the new home for nurses as his first act for the hospital since he became its President. It was not many months since he had himself been in the hands of the nurses, and he would always remember with gratitude the devotion with which they nursed him. Their Royal Highnesses subsequently inspected the hospital, and received an ovation on leaving from a great crowd which had collected outside the gates.

CONTINENTAL ANGLO-AMERICAN MEDICAL SOCIETY.—The annual luncheon of this Society took place on July 27th, at Leicester, during the meeting of the British Medical Association. Professor Osler presided, and was supported by the following members of the Society:—Drs. StClair Thomson, H. E. Leigh Canney, W. Page May, O. Hobson, Michael Foster, D. E. Anderson, M. W. Gairdner, and F. M. Sandwith. Among the guests were Professor Boyce (Liverpool), Dr. Tyson (Folkestone), Dr. Ewart (London), Dr. Watson Williams (Clifton), Dr. A. R. Cushney (London), Dr. Bertram Abrahams (London), Dr. A. J. Chalmers (Colombo), Dr. Camac (New York), and Dr. G. Wells (Chicago). There were no formal speeches, but Dr. Sandwith reminded the members that the next meeting of the Society would take place in October in Paris, during the Congress of Tuberculosis, when it is hoped that there may be an unusually large gathering. Dr. Ewart, on behalf of the guests, returned thanks to the Society for the hospitality shown them.

MEDICAL SICKNESS AND ACCIDENT SOCIETY.—The usual monthly meeting of the Executive Committee of the Medical Sickness, Annuity, and Life Assurance Society was held at 429, Strand, London, W.C., on July 21st. The chair was taken by Dr. de Havilland Hall, and there were also present Dr. J. Brindley James, Dr. J. Pickett, Dr. Frederick S. Palmer, Mr. H. P. Symonds (Oxford), Mr. F. S. Edwards, Dr. F. J. Allan, and Dr. J. B. Ball. The accounts presented showed that the number of sickness claims received by the Society during the last few weeks was much less than in a similar period during the winter or spring; but, on the other hand, the more recent claims appear to be of a more than usually serious nature, and there is reason to fear that the list of members permanently incapacitated will have received several additions before the end of the current year. The Society has now been in operation for more than twenty-one years, and a considerable number of those who joined it when it was started in 1884 were already past middle age. As the mortality experience of the Society has been remarkably good, it follows that there are now on the books many members who have reached an age when all illnesses are apt to be serious. Unlike many societies seeming to give similar benefits, the Medical Sickness and Accident Society has not reserved to its managers the right to determine its sickness contracts, and its members are not liable to be informed that their sickness insurance will be discontinued at the end of the current year. This has been the unfortunate experience of too many who have not taken the precaution to ascertain exactly the terms of the "assurance" they had obtained from the sickness society to which they contributed. The Medical Sickness and Accident Society was founded for the purpose of giving aid to medical men in sickness, and especially to those who are permanently incapacitated. Full provision has been made to meet the heavy disbursement caused by this provision, and the large reserves—now amounting to nearly £200,000—are a sufficient guarantee that the Society will be able to carry out in the future as in the past this exceptionally valuable arrangement. Prospectuses and all information on application to Mr. F. Addiscott, Secretary, Medical Sickness and Accident Society, 33, Chancery Lane, London, W.C.

bury Urban District Council for many years. He was for nearly fifty years Medical Officer of No. 1 District of the Aylesbury Union, and public vaccinator; for many years one of the honorary surgeons to the Royal Bucks Hospital, and was also local secretary to the Royal Epsom Benevolent College; Chairman of the Aylesbury Division of the South Midland Branch of the British Medical Association; Associate of the Sanitary Institute; Medical Officer to the Post Office. He frequently attended the annual meetings of the British Medical Association. He was a strong Churchman, and acted as churchwarden to the parish church for many years. He was a school manager and trustee of several charities, and the oldest Freemason of his Lodge. The funeral took place on July 20th, and the very large attendance testified to the great affection and respect in which Mr. Hooper was held by his numerous friends and fellow-townsmen. His loss will be particularly felt by the poor, as his good deeds and help in time of trouble were very numerous, and unostentatiously performed. He was a man of upright character, a hard worker who never spared himself—in fact, he died in harness, as he went on with his work for several days after his illness began, and when he ought to have been taking rest.

WE regret to announce the death of Dr. THOMAS BOLES EAMES, of Welford-on-Avon, formerly a well-known and highly esteemed medical practitioner in the neighbourhood of Farnworth and Kearsley. Owing to a severe attack of influenza, he resigned his practice in 1891, and went to reside at Llangollen, but two years ago he removed to Welford-on-Avon, near Stratford. Dr. Eames, who completed his 83rd year in January last, was a native of Castle Martyr, near Cork. In that city he received his early education, afterwards studying medicine in Dublin. He became a Member of the Royal College of Surgeons of England in 1845, and in 1859 he obtained the Licence of the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh. About 1846 he went to Farnworth as assistant to a local practitioner. After staying there for a couple of years, he started in practice for himself at Lower Kearsley. Besides having a practice covering a district extending as far as Ainsworth, Little Hulton, and Clifton, he was club doctor at the old Prestolee Cotton Mill. On the formation of the Kearsley Local Board, he was appointed Medical Officer, and held the office of Factory Surgeon for the Farnworth and Kearsley districts from 1860 to 1885, when he resigned. He was Medical Officer for Little Lever until he left the locality. During forty-three years Dr. Eames was the only resident doctor in Kearsley. He was a regular attendant at the Ringley Church, and for a long period was one of the trustees of the church and school. In politics he was a Conservative. He was President of the Bolton Medical Society about 1878, and he was one of the founders of the Manchester Medico-Ethical Association. In 1897, when that body celebrated its jubilee, Dr. Eames was the only survivor of the original members.

LIEUTENANT JOHN EVAN SKEY, Royal Army Medical Corps, died at Pretoria on July 24th, aged 26. He entered the Army Medical Service as a lieutenant, January 31st, 1903.

DEATHS IN THE PROFESSION ABROAD.—Among the members of the medical profession in foreign countries who have recently died are Dr. Josef Brettauer, a well-known ophthalmologist and for many years surgeon to the Municipal Hospital of Trieste, aged 69; Dr. Friedrich Fischer, Extraordinary Professor of Surgery in the University of Strassburg, aged 50; Professor Paul Schultz, head of the department of special physiology in the Physiological Institute of Berlin, aged 41; Professor Moritz Elsner, for many years a worker in the Berlin Institute of Infectious Diseases, aged 44; Dr. F. Freitel, of Berlin, a well-known laryngologist, recognized as an authority on disorders of speech, aged 41; Dr. A. Palmer Dudley, Professor of Gynaecology in Dartmouth Medical College and in the New York Post-graduate Medical School, aged 52; Dr. Edward Stickney Wood, Professor of Chemistry in the Harvard Medical School, and for more than thirty years chemist of the Massachusetts General Hospital, aged 59; and Dr. E. Lewy, of Vienna, a well-known authority on industrial diseases and school hygiene, author of many works on the diseases of miners, of workers in quicksilver, etc., aged 66.

THE Royal Dental Hospital of London, Leicester Square, has received a donation of £100 from the Worshipful Company of Grocers.

UNIVERSITY COURT.

At a meeting of the Edinburgh University Court held on Monday, July 17th, it was remitted to a Committee to prepare a minute relative to the death of the late Principal of the University (Sir William Muir).

An application by Professor Simpson for permission to retire from the Chair of Midwifery as at August 1st next was granted.

The Court resolved to institute, after consultation with the Senatus, a lectureship in Gynaecology, and to communicate the fact to the Curators of Patronage when making intimation to them of the vacancy created in the Chair of Midwifery by the retirement of Professor Simpson.

Applications from Dr. R. Barclay Ness (Glasgow) for recognition as an extra-academical teacher in practice of medicine (instead of in Materia Medica, in which subject he is at present recognized) for purposes of graduation in medicine; and Major D. G. Marshall (Edinburgh) as an extra-academical teacher in diseases of tropical climates in connexion with the Diploma in Tropical Medicine were granted.

The Court had under consideration a report by a committee on changes proposed in the curriculum for medical degrees.

The University Assistants for next academical year were appointed; and such of them as are University lecturers were continued in office for the same period.

The following University lecturers were appointed for next academical year: Mr. H. J. Stiles, M.B., F.R.C.S.E. (Applied Anatomy); Dr. T. D. Luke (Practical Application of Anaesthetics).

A report by the Committee on the Medical Education of Women was submitted, and an application by the Scottish Association for the Medical Education of Women for continuance of recognition, for next academical year, of the Edinburgh Medical College for Women, Minty Street, was granted.

SUMMER GRADUATION CEREMONIAL.

The summer graduation ceremonial of the University of Edinburgh took place on Friday, July 28th, in the McEwan Hall, which was filled with graduates and onlookers. The meeting was invested with special interest and significance inasmuch as the promoter was Professor A. R. Simpson, whose address naturally took the form of a farewell. A large company followed the Vice-Chancellor on to the platform. After prayer by Professor Taylor, the Dean of the Faculty of Law (Sir Ludovic Grant) presented for the honorary degree of LL.D. Mr. Horace Kound, M.A., D.L., the historian.

The promoter then intimated the candidates on whom degrees were to be conferred, and they were presented in turn to the Vice-Chancellor and capped, being introduced by Professor Cunningham, Dean of the Faculty of Medicine; Professor Geikie, Dean of the Faculty of Science; and Sir Ludovic Grant, Dean of the Faculty of Law.

After offering his congratulations to the new graduates, the PROMOTER referred to his own resignation. He recognized that they who would set an age limit to the tenure of such a chair as his were amply justified. There was always a risk that the ageing incumbent of a chair might become an incubus upon it. He could not bear to "dree that weird." Accordingly he had resigned to the charge of the University Court the Commission with which the Curators entrusted him on July 4th, 1890.

For, although he was not breathless yet, he judged that, after a course of five-and-thirty years, it was fitting that he should hand on the torch of midwifery in the University of Edinburgh to an after-runner who might carry it over with a brighter glow to another generation. It was not without a pang that he passed it on. His department yearly grew more intensely, thrillingly interesting to the scientific explorer, and more urgently important for the general practitioner. He referred to the now numerous journals in his department as evidence of the rapidly-growing extent and interest of it. He referred to his apprenticeship to Goodair. This gave him opportunities for much dissection, and so for acquiring a facility in the handling of forceps and scalpel that had been a lifelong benefit. What was of still greater moment, it brought him under the spell of a man of genius, who was a tireless toiler, and who sought in all his own researches and the work of his assistants what he called "God's truth." He referred to the exit of the apprenticeship system and the entrance and multiplied misery of the examination system, to the easy transference of professors from one chair to another in his student days, to the then archaic examinations and to the transformations in knowledge that he had seen in his time.

At the conclusion of the address Mr. H. J. NORMAN, President of the Students' Union, presented Professor Simpson with the following address:—

"To Professor Alexander Russell Simpson, M.D., Dean of the Faculty of Medicine.

"In the name of the students and recent graduates of Edinburgh University, we desire on this occasion to express our high appreciation of the good work which you have done for our Alma Mater and for the students thereof during a period of thirty-five years in which you have held the Chair of Midwifery. We have heard with regret of your resignation of the Chair. You have ably occupied it, and you have added so much to the renown of our University in regard to the teaching and advancement of midwifery and gynaecology that, in conjunction with your distinguished predecessor, you have caused the name of Simpson in this department of science to rank worthily alongside that of Monro in anatomy and of Gregory in the realms of medicine. This you have achieved, not only by your learned contributions to the literature of your subject, containing many and stimulating suggestions, but also by your practice in the perfecting of technique and in the invention and improvement of the instruments of your craft. Your skill as an operator has redounded to the credit of our school, not only at home, but everywhere abroad, and has not merely maintained, but immensely added to, the fame of our Alma Mater. We have to thank you likewise—and this not merely for ourselves, but for the generations of students who have gone before us—for the unflinching interest which you have shown in all matters pertaining to student life. Your desire to foster personal communication between teacher and taught, and your efforts to accomplish this have earned for you the gratitude and kindly wishes of many thousands of students scattered over the whole world. We hope that, though you now sever your official connexion with the University, you will nevertheless continue to take that interest in its and in our affairs which you have so generously exhibited in the past. We pray that you may long continue to enjoy that peace in retirement which no one has better deserved than yourself.

"In the name and by authority of the Medical Faculty Committee of the Students' Representative Council.

"(Sgd.) HUBERT J. NORMAN, Convener.
A. H. SCOTT, Secretary."

The VICE-CHANCELLOR said: Graduates, I cannot but feel that this most interesting ceremonial would be incomplete if a word or two were not said from the Chair on behalf of my colleagues in the professoriate. Allow me to say these few words, not only because I have occupied the chair during the ceremony, but because I am one of the oldest friends of Professor Simpson. I knew him as a boy; I knew him when he came to this University in his teens; I knew him when he was an apprentice to that consummate anatomist, John Goodstir, whose principal assistant I was at the time; I knew him when he took his degree of Doctor of Medicine; and I have been his colleague for thirty-five years. Now I look upon this great assembly as something more than an assembly of persons interested in you graduates; I look upon it also as a testimony of respect and esteem for the colleague that we are about to lose. I regard it as a magnificent send-off. When a friend is about to sail for a distant clime his friends often flock to the steamboat quay to say farewell. Their friend, Professor Simpson, was going to seek during his latter years rest and retirement at the end of a long professorial life, and I feel that many of you have come to give him a good send-off in that rest and retirement of which he now intends to avail himself. Mr. Norman has referred to the eloquent address which we have just heard from Professor Simpson, but I feel that there is something more than the mere eloquence of words in that address. There was a deep feeling in it—a feeling of a kind which it is not perhaps very easy to refer to; but it comes from the heart—it comes from one whose life has been actuated by a strong sense of duty, who has lived amongst his colleagues and his students as one who always felt that he had a task in life to discharge, and he discharged it with consummate ability. And so we, his colleagues in the Senate, feel that we cannot allow him to separate from us on this occasion without wishing him during the rest of his life—and from what I know of him I am sure it will not be an idle or a wasted life—health and strength to carry on that kind of work which he so well knows how to execute.

Professor SIMPSON, who was cordially received on rising to reply, said he had to thank them with feelings that were too deep for words. He had said that it was not without a pang that he left the place he had filled so long. He should have said that it cost him a great many pangs to leave all those friends of his youth, of his manhood, and now of his old age. But, as he had said, the deepest sorrow was for a man to be leaving his subject just at the time it was becoming more intensely interesting. There was, however, the compensation of knowing that younger men were coming—Mr. Norman and his compeers were coming—and he left to them the subject in which they would win laurels brighter, perhaps, than those that had adorned the brows of their predecessors.

Professor TAYLOR having pronounced the benediction, the graduates filed across the platform and shook hands with the Vice-Chancellor and several of the professors before leaving the hall.

After the graduation ceremony the members of the University Union held a reception in the University Union, and thereafter luncheon was served in the dining hall. About 200 ladies and gentlemen were present. Professor KEEN (Philadelphia) gave the toast of "The University of Edinburgh," and Professor CHENE, C.B., replied.
