Mental Health Research

With inflation at its present rate, says the Annual Report of the Mental Health Research Fund, each year 20% more money must be raised just to continue the support of a constant volume of research. Projects of high scientific merit are being turned down for lack of funds. Among research currently receiving support is a study of the biochemistry of schizophrenia at Edinburgh; investigation of infant behaviour at Cambridge; and work on psychogenic amenorrhoea. Grants approved in the year totalled £87,147.

CORRECTIONS

Bacteriuria Again

In a letter by Mr. J. C. Gingell (1 May, p. 278) in the third line the word "generation" was inadvertently printed. It should have been "gentamicin". Half way down the first paragraph a percentage sign was omitted. The sentence concerned should have read "More than 50% of the few reported patients with ototoxicity due to gentamicin . . ."

Resuscitation of Drowned Children

In a letter by Mr. J. R. Gibbs (22 May, p. 470) we regret an error printed in the acknowledgement. This should have read "Rear Admiral Stanley Miles, consultant in physiology to and vice-chairman of the Medical Commission on Accident Prevention . . .".
