

OBITUARY.

JAMES HEYGATE, M.D., F.R.S., DERBY.

Consulting Physician to the Derbyshire General Infirmary; Senior Vice-President of the British Medical Association.

It is with feelings of sincere regret that we record the death of Dr. Heygate of Derby, which took place, suddenly, at Eaton Hill, at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. B. S. Currey, on the 5th instant. At the time of his death he was seventy years of age, having been born in November, 1801. Dr. Heygate commenced his professional career in Northamptonshire; but the office of physician to the Derbyshire General Infirmary becoming vacant, he was a successful candidate for the appointment, and for more than thirty-five years he practised in Derby. In 1847, the annual meeting of the Provincial Medical and Surgical Association was held in Derby, and Dr. Heygate worthily filled the office of President. At the end of his year of office he was elected a permanent Vice-President; and he ever manifested the warmest interest in the progress and success of the Association. His energies were not limited to the duties of his calling. As a county and borough magistrate, a visiting justice of the county prison, and one of a committee of visitors to the county asylum, the subject of our notice greatly distinguished himself, and his lamented death has caused a void which will not be easily filled. On the Saturday immediately preceding his death, he paid his usual monthly visit, in company with other county magistrates, to the asylum at Mickleover. Dr. Heygate was greatly respected by his professional brethren, and his services in consultation were in frequent request. His unvarying courtesy towards all, and the evident pleasure he felt in promoting the best feelings amongst his brother medical men will always be remembered. With his patients he was a great favourite. There was a charm in his gentle and kindly manner which won their hearts. With a quick perception of disease, delicate tact, and mature judgment, he was often remarkably successful in conducting his patients safely through a dangerous crisis. He was a truly earnest Christian man, and everywhere inspired esteem and regard. He was interred in the churchyard of Little Eaton, near Derby.

BARNABAS BARRETT, M.D., LIVERPOOL.

DR. BARRETT was a native of Shrewsbury. He became a pupil of his brother, Mr. Thomas B. Barrett, of Welshpool, and afterwards studied at Trinity College, Dublin, where he gained in 1850 the junior anatomical prize, and in the following year the senior prize for Anatomy and Physiology. He afterwards studied at Guy's Hospital. He became, in 1852, a Member of the Royal College of Surgeons of England, and Licentiate of the Apothecaries' Company. He was elected House-Surgeon of the Liverpool Southern Hospital, which appointment he relinquished after a few months, to enter into private practice. Dr. Barrett was a member of the Liverpool Medical Institution, Liverpool Philomathic Society, and British Medical Association, Surgeon-Accoucheur to the Toxteth Park Lying-in Charity, Assistant-Surgeon to the 8th Lancashire Artillery Volunteers, etc. He was a man of cultivated tastes, cheerful, prepossessing manners, and thoroughly devoted to his profession. He had an extensive and increasing practice; and his kindness of heart not only endeared him to his patients, but to all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance, and who feel they have lost a sincere friend. Among the poor he will long be deplored, as was manifested by the large and sympathising numbers present at his interment. Some years since, Dr. Barrett had a severe attack of pleuropneumonia, and he has occasionally suffered from bronchitis, which at times confined him to the house for a few days; but his most intimate professional friends had no idea he was a victim to the disease that proved so suddenly fatal. On Saturday morning, the 13th instant, he came down stairs apparently in his usual health, gave directions for his breakfast, and commenced writing a note in his consulting-room. Soon, however, he called to his assistant, Mr. Richards, that "he felt very queer." He was assisted to a sofa, when he became unconscious, with his face livid, and stertorous breathing. Mr. Hodgson, who resides within a few doors was with him immediately, and was soon followed by Dr. Lyster; but he died within twenty minutes from the time when he was first seized. Dr. Barrett was forty-five years of age. He leaves a widow, but no family.
