

Emergency Admissions

Refusals to admit a patient to hospital are frequently made by lay staff, according to the annual report of the Emergency Bed Service for the year ended 31 March 1972. A senior medical authority may remain unaware of their action, according to the report, and no record is kept. It is suggested that every admissions office should keep a standard book, and action taken should be initialled by the medical officer on duty every three hours.

Scientific Research in British Universities and Colleges

The latest volumes of Scientific Research in British Universities and Colleges, compiled by the Department of Education and Science, are now available. The series aims to provide brief details of active research in progress in British universities and other institutions during the current academic year. The 1971-2 edition comprises three volumes, each one being divided into broad subject fields and the university/college entries are arranged alphabetically within them. Volume I covers physical sciences; volume II, biological sciences; and volume III, social sciences. All three volumes are published by Her Majesty's Stationery Office, price £6.50, £6.00, and £5.50 respectively.

Soft Drinks

The Government's Food Standards Committee is to review the Soft Drinks Regulations. They control the composition and labelling of soft drinks, including low-calorie drinks and those for consumption by diabetics. Anyone wishing to make representations to the Committee should address them to its secretary before 30 November at the Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries, and Food, Room 419, Great Westminster House, Horseferry Road, London SW1P 2AE.

Health Information Unit

The World Health Organization has established a Health Information Unit under the direction of Dr. A. A. Weber, of Switzerland, an expert on the use of mathematics and computers in medicine. One of the unit's tasks will be to encourage a better utilization of modern management methods in health administration.

Adviser to W.H.O.

Mr. Charles Engel has been appointed an adviser on medical education to the World Health Organization. Mr. Engel is director of the B.M.A.'s Department of Audio-Visual Communication and the British Life Assurance Trust for Health Education.
