*The British Medical
says:*

"In the Motor Goggles made by Messrs. Gamage, Holborn, London, E.C.1, the glasses are carried by two short oval tubes of aluminium, which are perforated at the sides for ventilation, and are so shaped and padded at their back surfaces as to rest comfortably against the rim of the orbit. Round the whole is a flap of kid, which lies flat on the face, and affords an additional protection against the entry of dust, &c. The glasses are curved and large, so as to afford good range of vision at the sides. The goggles are comfortable to wear, and moderate in price."
