THE THERAPY OF ASTHMA

The treatment of asthma demands consideration of underlying causes and factors. The former are variable, but the underlying factor—bronchospasm—is always the same.

Whether the cause is removable or not, the bronchospasm can be treated successfully with FELSOL.

Chronic cases yield to patient treatment with FELSOL—the preparation which has long enjoyed the confidence of the medical profession and has been prescribed consistently by doctors in hospital, private practice and Government Departments.

Cooking for special diets

is greatly simplified by using modern gas equipment which is just as efficient for a small cooking task as for a large one. Different self-contained units, automatically controlled and arranged in convenient sequence, can deal rapidly with a variety of special meals. Gas gives the exact heat needed without waiting. It offers a complete smokeless heat service on tap for cooking, comfort heating, hot water, refrigeration, incineration and other hospital needs.

SUNLIGHT

PATIENTS themselves almost invariably appreciate the salutary effect of a course of artificial sunlight. Its value in convalescence and the treatment of a great many conditions is beyond dispute.

The first essential to success is the use of equipment which yields an adequate output of U.V. of the correct wavelengths. We offer a complete range of high-pressure mercury vapour and carbon arc lamps and are pleased to give freely the benefits of our long experience in this field.
