A combination of qualities

The claims of 'Dettol' do not rest on any single quality desirable in an antiseptic, but rather upon the combination of several essential properties. It can be used at fully effective strengths with safety; without risk of poisoning, discomfort or damage to tissue. It retains a high bactericidal potency in the presence of blood, it is stable, and agreeable in use.

'DETTOL'

THE MODERN ANTISEPTIC

'Dettol' is available in 2 gallon and 5 gallon tins free of Purchase Tax for dispensing purposes only. Smaller sizes, including 1 gallon tins for public use are subject to Purchase Tax.

Most of us find Nature at her best between May and July. New leaves and lush grass reclothe the countryside and almost forgotten sights and sounds return to hedgerow, hill and meadow.

But for a few unhappy hay-fever sufferers this season is a phase of physical misery which, until recently, had to be accepted as inevitable.

Benadryl has been found to relieve the acute discomfort of hay-fever in a striking proportion of cases, and has brought new hope to thousands for whom spring and early summer were seasons to be dreaded.

Stasis in the biliary tract can be both a contributory and exciting cause of gall-stones. Where a gall-stone diathesis exists a thorough flushing of the gall-bladder and ducts, by an increased flow of bile, will result in the solution or washing away of cholesterol and the removal of this cause of stone formation. The natural bile salts in Veracolate* by their choleric action encourage the production of normal bile, while the cholagogic action keeps the bile freely flowing. The carminative and cathartics combined with the bile salts in Veracolate promote peristaltic stimulation and ensure evacuation.

'BANOCIDE,' a new non-metallic compound, which is administered orally, is markedly active against filariæ, especially Wuchereria bancrofti. It is particularly effective in killing microfilaria and even in moderate dosage causes their rapid disappearance. In some cases of bancroftian infection which have been carefully followed up, the blood has been found negative a year after treatment ceased, an observation which suggests that the adult worms have also been killed. The toxicity of the compound is low and its stability is unaffected by hot climates. 'Banocide' is issued as compressed products of 50 mgm. in containers of 20, 100, 1000 and 5000.

Notes on High-Protein Diets

PROTEIN TREATMENT OF OBESITY

In the treatment of obesity by dietary correction the intake of calories should be limited to between 1,000 and 1,200 calories a day, and the patient should be supplied with optimum quantities of protein, vitamins and minerals. Thus the patient is forced to live for a time on his own fat resources and weight falls.

THE MOST PRACTICAL METHOD TODAY

At least 65 grams of protein should be given daily in order to ensure replacement of that lost by daily catabolic processes and to enable the patient to burn his own fat. In addition, protein has a high-specific dynamic action and a role in thyroid function.

Owing to the rather meagre dietary allowance available today, the most practical method of guaranteeing this daily amount of protein is to add Sanatogen protein supplement to the patient's diet. Sanatogen contains 95% casein combined with 5% sodium glycerophosphate and has a specific nutrient and tonic action. It supplies all the essential amino acids together, has a high rate of utilisation, and is easily digested and rapidly absorbed.

Sanatogen is the only proprietary protein supplement containing neither fats nor carbohydrate. The fact that animal protein is normally closely associated with fat enhances the value of fat-free Sanatogen in obesity diets.

EQUAL TO 6 OZ. LEAN BEEF DAILY

Taken three times daily, Sanatogen provides the patient with the equivalent protein nourishment of 6 oz. of lean beef. It is very easily administered. Normally taken mixed as a hot or cold drink, Sanatogen can also be sprinkled on food or mixed in cooked dishes. The routine addition of Sanatogen to the patient's diet in this manner is the most practical solution to the difficult problem of maintaining a high-protein intake today.

Practitioners who wish to carry out their own clinical tests will be given every help. Please write to the Medical Department, Genatosan Ltd., Loughborough, Leicestershire, for further information and medical samples.

The case of the exacting surgeon

A famous surgeon was struck by the fact that his razor blades seemed to be much sharper and more uniform than any scalpels he could then obtain. To a keen and vigorous mind there seemed no reason why the makers of the blades should not make surgical blades of the same high quality.

The solution was indeed brilliantly simple. He asked Gillette to produce surgical blades with edges equal to those of their razor blades. Now the sharpest edge in the world is available to make surgery easier, safer, and more accurate.

Gillette Surgical Blades and Handles are precision-made for each other. Not only does this ensure absolute rigidity in use, it makes the fixing and release of a blade the work of a moment.

THROMBIN (MAW) in Surgery

ITS USES AND TECHNIQUE

The characteristic property of THROMBIN is that when mixed with plasma it produces a true physiological clot. This reaction can take place within a few seconds, needs no other substances, and works well in citrated plasma—whether fresh or reconstituted. As such, THROMBIN has an increasingly large part to play in surgery.

SKIN GRAFTING AND PLASTIC SURGERY

Rapid Adhesion. THROMBIN combines with plasma to form a 'physiological glue', which allows a graft to be fixed securely into position. The following technique has been used: the graft was wetted with THROMBIN and the bed of the wound with plasma; the two surfaces were then placed together. It was found that a few minutes later the graft was so firmly adherent that it wrinkled and flattened when the underlying muscles moved—and that no splints, sutures or retentive dressings were necessary.

This technique can be successfully used under the stress of an emergency, when special skin-grafting skill is not always available.

Quicker Vascularisation. THROMBIN has been found to accelerate vascularisation in skin grafting—thus giving better results in the survival of the grafts. This seems due to the fact that the fibrin threads act as 'scaffolding' for the growth of the capillaries.

HAEMOSTASIS

THROMBIN will often control the oozing type of haemorrhage. The surface should first be swabbed clean of blood, then syringed with a solution of concentrated THROMBIN.

The use of absorbable haemostatic dressings (such as fibrin foam, gelatin foam and alginates) allows THROMBIN to be applied by soaking the dressing in a solution of the enzyme. These dressings, though haemostatic on their own, are more efficient when used with THROMBIN; and—since effective haemostasis depends on speed—this is now the common practice.

THE FILLING OF "DEAD SPACES"

THROMBIN has been successfully used in the filling of 'dead spaces', for it has been found that physiological clots rapidly become organised tissue. The space is filled with plasma in which penicillin is dissolved, and then clotted with a few drops of THROMBIN solution. This technique has been used in tonsillectomy and mastoidectomy, and there are many more surgical conditions which have similar requirements.

NOTE: Thromboplastin—whether applied or produced from the patient's own tissues—is ineffective in the presence of citrated plasma.

MORE FACTS ABOUT THROMBIN

STABILITY: THROMBIN keeps indefinitely in the dry state—and therefore may be kept in stock against an emergency. In solution it is less stable and should be used on the day of preparation.

STERILITY: THROMBIN is sterilised by filtration, and needs no re-sterilisation.

ADSORPTION: THROMBIN is easily adsorbed by solids and therefore must not be applied by using a brush or cotton wool swabs. It should be sprayed or dropped on to the surface where it is wanted.

APPLICATION: THROMBIN is supplied in a dry ampoule, together with an ampoule of diluent. Solution is very rapid and the liquid is immediately available.

QUANTITY: THROMBIN solution generally reacts with several times its own volume of plasma, so that normally there is an excess of fibrin. No exact measurement is possible or necessary, since proportions vary with the nature of the operation and the technique of the surgeon.

*We shall be glad to supply any further information. Inquiries about the use or application of THROMBIN should be addressed to:
The Medical Research Department, S. Maw Son & Sons Ltd., Barnet, Herts. Phone: BARNET 5555.*

A new development in Weaning Food

NEW - SAFE
scientifically tested

As a result of experiment, the Makers of Bovril have evolved a thoroughly hygienic product that reaches a high nutritional standard, is easy to prepare and is remarkably inexpensive. The formula was evolved after consultation with several pædiatric specialists and has had successful hospital trials. The Weaning Food is in powder form and is marketed in small cubes in four varieties. It is composed of powdered lean beef, beef extract, potato powder, dried distillers' yeast, bone calcium phosphate and iron ammonium citrate. A purée can be prepared by adding boiling water to a crumbled cube of the Weaning Food. Because of its form, its hygienic method of manufacture, and as sufficient for one meal at a time can be prepared, danger of food infection is eliminated. A four-cube packet of Weaning Food costs 6d.; a meal for a 4-month-old baby costs only ½d.

Safer salicylate therapy

The possibility of toxic reactions from large or continuous doses of salicylates is now more widely recognised. The modern approach to salicylate therapy—using EKAMMON—overcomes these serious sequelae.

Containing aspirin (0.33 gm.), vitamin K (0.33 mgm.) and vitamin C (20 mgm.), EKAMMON has special virtues as an analgesic and anti-rheumatic. Vitamin K counteracts the prothrombin-reducing action of aspirin—preventing hæmorrhagic tendencies. The addition of vitamin C compensates both the increased excretion of the vitamin during salicylate medication and the ascorbic acid deficiency usually associated with rheumatic patients.

EKAMMON is now regarded as the most modern form of salicylate therapy, of unique value in rheumatism, arthritis, fibrositis and dysmenorrhoea. Intensive dosage can be used without the risk of systemic reactions and the depression produced by salicylates alone.

Containers of 50, 100, 500 & 1,000 tablets.

literature on request.*
