The powerful bactericidal activity is derived from its unique mode of action. It interrupts two successive stages in a metabolic process essential to the survival of bacteria.

the bactericide in chronic bronchitis

Bactrim Roche is clearly effective.

At the London Hospital Bactrim Roche† was given twice daily to 50 chronic bronchitics with infections which had previously resisted treatment with one or more antibiotics. In all 50 cases, after five days "... purulent sputum became mucoid, with clinical improvement".¹ Bactrim Roche is bactericidal to many of the organisms – Gram-negative and Gram-positive – commonly found in respiratory infections, including Streptococci, Staphylococci and – probably most important in chronic bronchitis – Haemophilus Influenzae.

† The formulation used in this trial was slightly different from that subsequently found to produce the best results and which has now been adopted.

New oral antibiotic cephalexin

in acute urinary tract infections, including pyelonephritis, gives a clinical success rate of over 80%*

Summary

Ceporex, the new cephalosporin antibiotic from Glaxo, is the most completely absorbed oral antibiotic available, and gives very high tissue and urine levels within an hour of administration. In addition Ceporex has other advantages. It kills the gram-negative bacteria responsible for the majority of urinary tract infections, and this, together with its low toxicity, makes it ideally suited to the treatment of acute cystitis, pyelonephritis and other urinary tract infections. It can also be used in patients hypersensitive to the penicillins.

Indications

Gram-positive and gram-negative bacterial infections of the urinary tract, respiratory tract, soft tissues and skin due to susceptible organisms. Acute and chronic pyelonephritis, cystitis, prostatitis and asymptomatic bacteriuria.

Upper respiratory tract infections such as bacterial tonsillitis and pharyngitis. Otitis media and externa, sinusitis and other infections of the ear, nose and throat.

Pneumonia, bronchopneumonia and post-operative chest infections. Bronchitis and bronchiectasis. Furunculitis, erysipelas, cellulitis, abscess, lymphangitis, pyoderma and other skin, wound or soft tissue infections.

Gonorrhoea (when penicillin is unsuitable)

Bone and joint infections including osteomyelitis and septic arthritis. Gynaecological and obstetric infections

Temporary replacement of penicillin prophylaxis in patients with rheumatic heart disease whilst undergoing dental treatment.

Administration and Dosage Ceporex is administered orally. The adult dosage in urinary tract infections: 250 to 500 mg 6-hourly.

Adverse reactions and precautions
A small proportion of patients receiving cephalexin may experience gastro-intestinal disturbances such as nausea, vomiting, anorexia and general abdominal discomfort. As with all broad-spectrum antibiotics, superinfection can occur (often monilial) and sometimes a vulvo-vaginitis. Reversible neutropenia has occurred in a few patients, but is very rare. Generalised drug rashes—urticarial or maculopapular —are uncommon. When renal function is very markedly impaired, Ceporex may accumulate in the serum and tissues, unless the dosage is suitably reduced.

Contra-indications

Cephalexin is contra-indicated in persons who have shown hypersensitivity to cephalosporins.

A Doctor in the RAMC enjoys the best features of two professions—wide clinical experience and the rewarding life of an Army Officer.

TTAKES a long, long period of intensive (and expensive) teaching to turn a medical student into a Doctor. Then, as far as Society is concerned, it's up to the Doctor to justify his training.

As far as the Doctor is concerned, of course, it's hardly as simple as that. First of all, he has his medical ambitions to consider. Does he want to be a General Practitioner? Does he want to specialise? What are the chances of his doing what he really wants to do? And second, he has—very reasonably—to consider his private life. Will he be able to afford to get married? To have children? To have a decent house to live in, and decent holidays to recharge his batteries?

Good medicine—and a good life

If he answers these questions in the context of service in the RAMC, he will discover some good reasons for considering practising his medicine in the Army. To serve for three or five years will give him varied clinical experience, and the chance to make up his mind if he wants to make his career in the Army.

Among the medical reasons is the close integration of all aspects of medical care—preventive medicine, general and hospital practice—with surgeries organised by groups, and supported by hospitals. Medical Officers can personally follow up the cases of patients admitted to hospital. Surgeries are very well equipped—and are, of course, financed by the Army, not by the Doctor. The Army also provides a trained staff for each surgery; an RAMC Medical Officer's wife does not have to do any secretarial chores.

Then, take the personal reasons. The Army helps Medical Officers with families in many ways. Most are provided with furnished houses at low rents. There are all sorts of allowances: for marriage; for educating children at boarding school in Britain (not taxable while the parents are stationed abroad); for moving house; for living abroad, and others. There is the companionship and community spirit of Army life. And there is six weeks' paid annual leave with no need to provide a locum.

£3,000 tax-free after 5 years

The RAMC needs both Regular and Short Service Officers. Normally, to be a specialist, a Doctor has to become a Regular Officer; the Army pays for all his post-graduate training, and though it's no easier to rise to a Consultancy in the RAMC than in civilian life, RAMC specialists tend to do very well. Approximately 36% of all Officers do in fact specialise. GPs can be Regular or Short Service; and 3 or 5 years as a Short Service GP in the Army is something every young Doctor should consider seriously. In that time, he will have a good chance of travel; be well paid and housed; and leave with a useful tax-free gratuity (£1,500 after 3 years—£3,000 after 5) to help start him off in his civilian practice.

For doctors who prefer, there is now a Special Regular Commission to complete 16 years' service (which may be extended or lead to a Permanent Commission). Some former service may be reckonable. Promotion, pay and allowances are the same as for Permanent Officers, as is retired pay and terminal grant for Officers of equivalent rank and service. Specialist training will be according to Service requirements in the specialty applied for.

For further information about Regular or Short Service Commissions in the RAMC, or to arrange a visit to see RAMC Officers at work, write to: Colonel E. L. O. Hood, MB, Ministry of Defence (AMD2), Dept. 285, Lansdowne House, Berkeley Square, London, W1X 6AA

for respiratory tract infections gives a clinical success rate over 85% in pneumonia*

Summary

Ceporex, the new cephalosporin antibiotic from Glaxo, is the most completely absorbed oral antibiotic available, and gives very high blood and tissue levels within an hour of administration. In addition Ceporex has other advantages. Its wide range of activity includes most grampositive organisms, (including penicillin-resistant staphylococci) and most of the gram-negative organisms which can be responsible for respiratory tract disease. Its rapid kill of sensitive bacteria, and low toxicity make Ceporex ideally suited to the treatment of pneumonia and other respiratory tract infections. It can also be used safely in patients hypersensitive to the penicillins.

Indications

Gram-positive and gram-negative bacterial infections of the urinary tract, respiratory tract, soft tissues and skin due to susceptible organisms. Acute and chronic pyelonephritis, cystitis, prostatis, and asymptomatic bacteriuria. Upper respiratory tract infections such as bacterial tonsillitis and pharyngitis.

Gonorrhoea (when penicillin is unsuitable)

Bone and joint infections including osteomyelitis and septic arthritis. Gynaecological and obstetric infections.

Temporary replacement of penicillin prophylaxis in patients with rheumatic heart disease whilst undergoing dental treatment.

Administration and Dosage

Ceporex is administered orally. The adult dosage in Pneumonias and bronchopneumonias: 500 mg to 1 g, Upper respiratory tract infections: 250 mg 6-hourly.

Adverse reactions and precautions

A small proportion of patients receiving cephalexin may experience gastro-intestinal disturbances such as nausea, vomiting, anorexia and general abdominal discomfort. As with all broad-spectrum antibiotics, discomfort. As with all broad-spectrum antibiotics, superinfection can occur (often monilial) and sometimes a vulvo-vaginitis. the new key

maximum efficacy ● minimum dosage ● optimum tolerance

Extensive chemical and pharmacological research involving examination of over 8,000 compounds revealed one which has proved to be the most active and least toxic antidiabetic agent so far produced. Its name is DAONIL.

Maximum efficacy

The hypoglycaemic activity of DAONIL was first shown in animal experiments where a dose of only 0.28 mg/kg reduced blood sugar levels by nearly 30%. In subsequent world-wide clinical trials on over 5,000 patients DAONIL provided satisfactory control of blood sugar in 80%. Control was classified as excellent or good in 70% of cases.

Excellent 37.4% Good 32.2% Adequate 18.7%

A single daily dose proved sufficient.

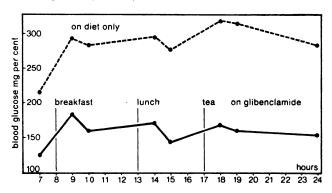

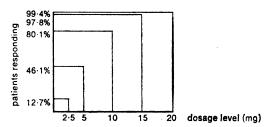

Fig 1 Blood glucose profiles throughout the day in 25 patients on diet only and then following therapy with glibenclamide at breakfast.

Thirty-six investigators compared DAONIL with chlorpropamide. Eighteen considered the two drugs to be equally effective but fourteen found DAONIL to be superior in lowering blood sugar.

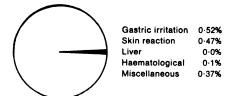

Minimum dosage

Very small amounts of DAONIL bring about the required degree of blood sugar control. Over 90% of suitable patients could be stabilised using a dosage range of 2.5 – 20 mg. confirming DAONIL as the most active antidiabetic agent available.

Optimum tolerance

In a chronic condition such as diabetes any treatment must be well-tolerated by the patient. In extensive clinical trials side-effects sufficiently severe to warrant withdrawal of therapy occurred in only 1.46% of patients.

How the Renault 16 fell into shape.

Most people who buy a Renault 16 do a lot of serious motoring. They buy it because it's a good-looking, fast car, but they also need it to be comfortable.

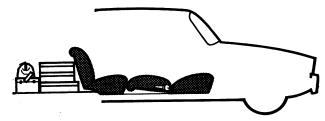

So we decided the 16 ought to have more than ordinarily comfortable seats (reclining front seats for the Grand Luxe and the 16TS). We had them specially designed, and they're perfectly moulded to support you in all the right places.

For a speedy car, the Renault 16 is also very sensible. With the front passenger seat in this relaxing position, you'll still have room for all the luggage you need.

The 16 has a five-bearing, 1½ litre aluminium engine and, of course, front-wheel drive for extra traction and powerful road-holding.

And best of all, you'll consistently get around 30 miles to a gallon of petrol.

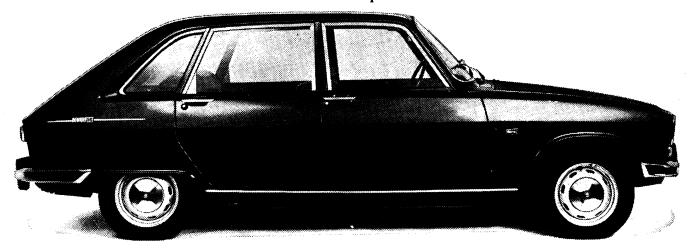

We didn't forget that people who travel a lot are quite happy to sleep in the car. We think the Renault 16 will make them happier.

With the two front seats fully down you'll be able to sleep comfortably. And you won't have to move your luggage either.

For bulky loads, the 16 can give you a staggering amount of space. This way, it's a generous $25\frac{1}{2}$ cu. ft. Radial-ply tyres are standard with the 16, so you'll get better grip and more wear. And with Renault's faultless all-round independent suspension, the 16 smooths out all the lumps and bumps in the worst roads

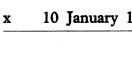

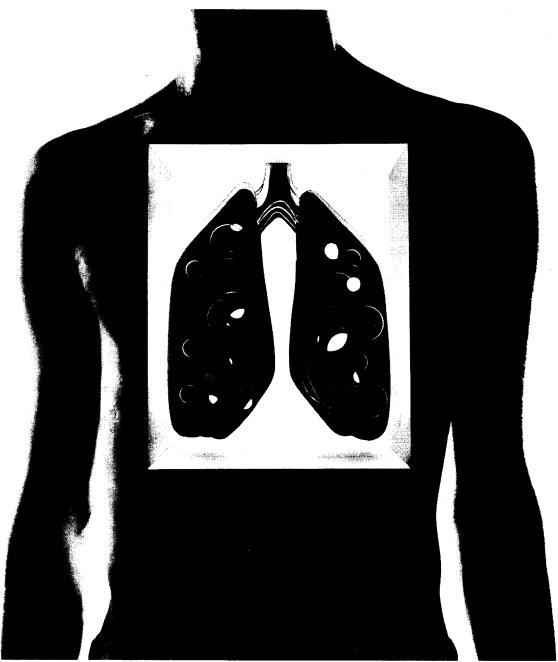

So now you know what goes on inside the Renault 16, take a look at the outside. Beautiful.

It's the kind of shape everyone would like to be in.

This combination, available as SEPTRIN*, swiftly eradicates a wide range of organisms including the pathogens common in bronchitis-H. influenzae, Pneumococci and Klebsiella sp.

Ventolin is more selective

"... inhaled salbutamol (Ventolin) in a dose of 400 μg produced no detectable change in the heart rate or blood pressure. Isoprenaline 200 μg on the other hand, had a marked effect on both. Inhaled orciprenaline 2400 μg had effects intermediate between those of salbutamol and isoprenaline".

Brit.J.Dis.Chest (1969) 63, 165.

Ventolin is more effective

"In asthmatic patients 200 μg of salbutamol (Ventolin) by inhalation was significantly more effective than 1500 μg of orciprenaline sulphate in improving ventilatory function".

Brit.J.Dis.Chest (1969) 63, 165.

Ventolin is longer acting

"The bronchodilatation produced by salbutamol (Ventolin) was much more prolonged than that produced by isoprenaline, and was well sustained for three hours. Even at five hours after salbutamol the mean FEV₁ was still 26% above the control value, as compared with figures of 8% for isoprenaline, 19% for orciprenaline and 6% for placebo".

Brit.med.J. (1969) 2, 287.

Ventolin is more acceptable to patients

In a clinical assessment comparing Ventolin with orciprenaline, 25 of the 37 patients preferred Ventolin, 5 preferred orciprenaline and 7 had no preference.

FOR THE ULCER-PRONE PATIENT

and other powerful analgesics

Let's look at the facts

Whatever virtues other analgesics may or may not have, every member of the Medical Profession knows that for the severest possible pain only the use of parenteral morphine and other similar narcotics can really deal with it. Even DF 118, therefore, which has been demonstrably successful for over twelve years in the treatment of severe and intractable pain, cannot quite reach the effectiveness of morphine by injection. It should, however, be remembered that there are other ways in which DF 118 is dissimilar from narcotics, and indeed, from other powerful analgesics.

Amongst these differences are :-

- 1 DF 118 is as effective orally as it is by injection.
- 2 In spite of its power to relieve severe pain, DF 118 has no sedative or hypnotic effects. The patient remains alert, and able to cope with everyday life.
- 3 In the recommended dosage, DF 118 causes little or no respiratory depression.
- 4 DF 118 has shown, in its twelve years' clinical use, a very low addiction potential.
- 5 DF 118 is economical. The basic NHS cost of 25 tablets (dispensed from containers of 500) is 3/7d.

The situation then is this: in cases of severe and intractable pain, where simple analgesics are ineffective, there are strong reasons for the oral administration of DF 118. Particular indications include:

Sciatica Chronic rheumatoid arthritis Peripheral vascular disease Paget's disease Osteoarthritis
Arthritis of the spine
Post-herpetic neuralgia
Malignant disease

when pain is severe DF 118 subdues the pain but not the patient

DOCTOR, WILL PROBABLY SUFFER FROM URINARY FREQUENCY...

It is a statistical fact that urinary frequency, the bane of old age, awaits the majority of us.

"Nocturnal frequency of micturition is present in 64% of the total elderly population (70% of males and 61% of females of 65 years and over)."

The results of a recent double-blind crossover trial of Cetiprin suggest that "the drug may alter the established habit of rising at night to pass urine". Cetiprin blocks the innervation and increases bladder capacity but as frequency of urination may have become established as a habit as well as a physiological weakness, it is wise to persist with treatment for at least 14 to 21 days. Improvement in the patient's condition is manifested by the enjoyment of uninterrupted sleep and a new feeling of physical and mental well-being.

Dosage:

Adults and Geriatric patients:

- Nightly tenesmus: 100 mg at bedtime. In chronic cases it may be necessary to use 200 mg and reduce the dose when control is established.
- 2. Urinary frequency and severe incontinence in old people: 100-200 mg three times daily.

Contraindications:

Large residual urine retention; glaucoma; gastric retention. Rarely, dryness of the mouth is an unwanted effect.

ANTIBIOTICS AND THE INTESTINAL FLORA

Treatment with broad spectrum antibiotics suppresses the normal flora, which may be replaced by abnormal resistant organisms causing diarrhoea.

This change can be prevented or reversed by the implantation of Lactobacillus acidophilus which has been rendered antibiotic-resistant, and is thus able to multiply freely under these abnormal conditions. The products of growth of the organism are inimical to that of many other bacterial 2 and thus contribute to its rapid preponderance over other species.

Oral treatment with antibiotic-resistant L. acidophilus in the form of ENPAC has been shown to eliminate Candida from the faeces of infants with antibiotic-induced diarrhoea, with relief of symptoms succeeded by rapid gain in weight³ 4 and greatly to reduce the numbers of staphylococci in the faeces of patients treated with tetracyclines.⁵

Fifteen years and 8,000 research compounds after the first oral anti-diabetic agent

Roussel announces the introduction of new single daily oral

During the 15 years since tolbutamide was introduced, the search for improved oral anti-diabetic agents has continued. The investigation of more than 8,000 sulphonylurea compounds showed Euglucon to be the most potent yet best tolerated oral anti-diabetic agent so far available.

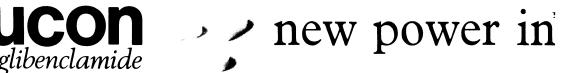

International clinical experience with more than 5,000 patients has shown that the majority of maturity-onset diabetics can be effectively controlled on a daily dosage of 10 mg or less of Euglucon, usually in a single administration.

At the same time, Euglucon is well tolerated even in prolonged therapeutic dosage, being in this respect at least comparable to tolbutamide. Because of its potency, Euglucon may be suitable for the management of patients who have failed to respond to other oral anti-diabetic agents.

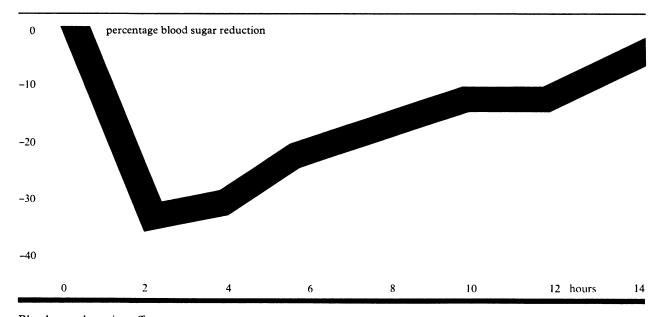

1,000 mg of tolbutamide or 250 mg of chlorpropamide is approximately equivalent to 5 mg of Euglucon's active principle glibenclamide.

EUGIUCON glibenclamide

dosage hypoglycaemic agent

Blood sugar lowering effect of an oral dose of 5 mg HB 419 (Euglucon) in human subjects as percentage of initial value (mean values of six non-diabetic subjects) control of maturity-onset diabetes.

your questions answered about

euglucon glibenclamide

the new power in control of maturity-onset diabetes

How does Euglucon differ from previous oral anti-diabetic agents?

Chiefly, in the potency of the active ingredient, glibenclamide. The 5 mg Euglucon tablet is approximately equivalent in hypoglycaemic activity to 250 mg chlorpropamide or 1000 mg tolbutamide. At the same time Euglucon is well tolerated, being at least comparable in this respect to tolbutamide.

Can Euglucon be given to patients who were previously taking other hypoglycaemic agents?

The changeover to Euglucon from another sulphonylurea can be effected from one day to the next. When transferring from chlorpropamide the slow elimination of this drug should be borne in mind, but a break in treatment is not usually necessary.

Can Euglucon be given in combination with other oral hypoglycaemic agents?

If a patient is inadequately controlled by a regime of strict diet together with more than three tablets of Euglucon daily, good results may be obtained by combining Euglucon with a biguanide. It is possible for some patients who display a relative resistance to insulin to be more satisfactorily controlled by giving Euglucon and insulin together.

What is the usual stabilising dose of Euglucon?

In maturity-onset diabetes of mild to moderate severity the treatment should be started with one tablet daily. If this dosage is not sufficient for proper control it should be increased by half a tablet (2.5 mg) daily at intervals of one week, or as directed by the clinician. In some cases of mild diabetes, control can be achieved with as little as half a tablet (2.5 mg) daily. Most patients will respond adequately to daily dosages of 2 tablets (10 mg) or less. Some patients, however, may require up to four tablets (20 mg) per day. Increasing dosage beyond this level is unlikely to produce further response. When more than two tablets per day are required it may be desirable that these be given in divided doses.

What side-effects have been reported with Euglucon?

Side-effects serious enough to necessitate withdrawal of Euglucon are uncommon, even during long-term treatment. Gastro-intestinal symptoms (nausea, anorexia, diarrhoea) are uncommon and allergic skin reactions are seldom encountered.

Leucopenia and thrombocytopenia have been reported but are rare and transient. As with other agents, hypoglycaemia can occur with Euglucon, but it is not usually prolonged and responds to appropriate therapeutic measures.

When is Euglucon contra-indicated?

In juvenile or unstable diabetes; patients who exhibit serious decompensation with ketosis, and in particular, diabetic pre-coma and coma; in cases of severe impairment of renal function; when patients are exposed to undue stress, e.g. operations, infections, accidents; in pregnancy or suspected pregnancy.

What precautions should be taken during Euglucon therapy?

In view of its highly potent effect, Euglucon should preferably be taken with or immediately after a meal.

In what form is Euglucon made available?

Euglucon is available as white oblong, scored tablets, each containing 5 mg of glibenclamide, in bottles of 100 and 500 tablets.

New oral antibiotic cephalexin

in soft tissue infections like cellulitis gives a clinical success rate of over 85%*

Summary

Ceporex, a new cephalosporin antibiotic from Glaxo, is the most completely absorbed oral antibiotic available, and gives very high blood and tissue levels within an hour of administration. In addition Ceporex has other advantages. It is highly effective in skin and soft tissue infections, being equally active against penicillin-sensitive and penicillin-resistant staphylococci and more active against Strep. pyogenes. Gram-negative organisms which may be encountered are also sensitive. Its rapid kill of sensitive bacteria and low toxicity make Ceporex ideally suited to the treatment of skin and soft tissue infections. It can also be used safely in patients hypersensitive to the penicillins.

Indications

Gram-positive and gram-negative bacterial infections of the urinary tract, respiratory tract, soft tissues and skin due to susceptible organisms.

Acute and chronic pyelonephritis, cystitis, prostatitis and asymptomatic bacteriuria.

Upper respiratory tract infections such as bacterial tonsillitis and pharyngitis.

Otitis media and externa, sinusitis and other infections of the ear, nose and throat.

Pneumonia, bronchopneumonia and post-operative chest infections. Bronchitis and bronchiectasis. Furunculitis, erysipelas, cellulitis, abscess, lymphangitis, pyoderma and other skin, wound or soft tissue infections.

Gonorrhoea (when penicillin is unsuitable)

Bone and joint infections including osteomyelitis and septic arthritis. Gynaecological and obstetric infections.

Temporary replacement of penicillin prophylaxis in patients with rheumatic heart disease whilst undergoing dental treatment.

Administration and Dosage

Ceporex is administered orally. The adult dosage in skin and superficial soft tissue infections: 250 to 500 mg 6-hourly.

Adverse reactions and precautions

A small proportion of patients receiving cephalexin may experience gastro-intestinal disturbances such as nausea, vomiting, anorexia and general abdominal discomfort. As with all broad-spectrum antibiotics, superinfection can occur (often monilial) and sometimes a vulvo-vaginitis. Reversible neutropenia has occurred in a few patients, but is very rare.
Generalised drug rashes—urticarial or maculopapular are uncommon. When renal function is very markedly impaired. Ceporex may accumulate in the serum and tissues, unless the dosage is suitably reduced.

Contra-indications

Cephalexin is contra-indicated in persons who have shown hypersensitivity to cephalosporins.

ZAMBIA FLYING DOCTOR SERVICE

Six Month Contracts

Based in Ndola in the Copperbelt, this full-time Service operates to remote areas of Zambia using six professionally flown twin-engined aircraft and a ground radio network. Each airstrip clinic is visited regularly several times a week. At present ten doctors, a dentist and ten nurses are employed seeing 10,000 patients a month, about half of them children.

Applications are invited from doctors who, we are afraid, must be male.

DUTIES 1. To carry out regular clinics at bush airstrips. This is the greater portion of the work.

2. To accompany the aircraft on emergency patient evacuation flights.

3. To give assistance and advice over the radio network when appropriate.

To encourage and assist people living around the airstrips in all aspects of nutritional and rural development.

Seriously ill patients with medical complaints are treated at the clinics, where there is provision for their accommodation. Patients with serious surgical diagnoses are flown to hospital so that the doctors with the Service are not required to do major surgery.

TERMS:

SIX MONTH APPOINTMENTS with return air fare for one person paid by the Service. Salary of £2,000 (£1,163) for the six months period paid in six equal monthly instalments of approxmately K333 (£1,913).

Fully furnished accommodation provided in Ndola at economic rental.

A second return fare (Approximately £250) can be loaned to married applicants and deducted from their salary. Fourteen days holiday.

RESEARCH: This is an essential part of the Service, and funds are available for this purpose. The opportunities are great, as the Service operates in areas which have not previously had any medical facilities.

The posts may interest doctors who have recently finished their pre-registration year, or more senior people, including G.P.'s, who would like the opportunity to do some work and research in Zambia, possibly on the basis of leave of absence from their existing U.K. appointments.

Anyone interested is asked to write to:

Dr. James Lawless. Zambia Flying Doctor Service, c/o Brown's Hotel. Dover Street. LONDON, W.1. (Tel. Hyde Park 6020)

Dr. Lawless will be staying at the Hotel from Monday, 12th to Friday January 23rd, and will be interviewing selected candidates during this period. (H6562) tablets 300 mg-the first triple tetracycline

as well as orally

Clinicians often require a parenteral antibiotic in the treatment of severe staphylococcal infections. To meet this need LEO research over a three-year period has led to the development of Fucidin for intravenous infusion. This preparation widens the scope of Fucidin (sodium fusidate B.P.) which over the last seven years has been increasingly used as a potent oral antistaphylococcal agent.

Fucidin for intravenous infusion.

Presented in packs of 2 ampoules one of which contains 580 mg diethanolamine fusidate B.P.C. as a dry powder (equivalent to 500 mg sodium fusidate B.P.) and the other 50 ml sterile phosphate-citrate buffer.
