KING'S COLLEGE HOSPITAL AND ITS JUNIOR MEDICAL STAFF.—SIR: What is it that is driving away the Junior Medical Staff of King's College Hospital? A while ago, it was the wholesale retirement of the Assistant-Physicians; then Henry Lee is received with open arms by the St. George's staff, after having laboriously served his Alma Mater for twenty long years; and now J. W. Hulke implores the Middlesex authorities to place him on her list of juniors. Surely these errant children must have some reasons for their retreat; their seniors cannot be all immortals, and reign eternally.

I am, etc.,

AN OLD STUDENT OF KING'S.
