

Herpid[®] for Zoster

Herpid is a topical preparation containing 5% idoxuridine BP (IDU) in 100% dimethyl sulphoxide (DMSO).

IDU is an antiviral agent which arrests the replication of DNA viruses. DMSO penetrates the skin and carries the IDU to the lower levels of the epidermis where the zoster virus is replicating.

Herpid reduces the duration of herpetic pain—resolves lesions quickly—reduces the incidence and severity of postherpetic neuralgia.

One of our doctors on night call.

Are you a doctor? Or a student waiting to go to a teaching hospital?

If so, may we ask a few questions?

While you'd obviously prefer to operate in a hospital, could you in an emergency do so on a street corner, possibly under fire?

Remember, you won't be able to call for blood tests, x-rays or second opinions.

We don't want to exaggerate the situation. You'll probably spend far more of your time looking after the general health of the regiment in your own medical centre.

But when the regiment's on active duty so are you, and you could easily find yourself jumping into the back of a Land Rover one night if some of your boys are in trouble.

This leads us to the next question: in these circumstances you might well be responsible for half a dozen soldiers.

To them you won't just be a doctor, you'll be an Officer, and they'll expect you to act like one. Could you cope?

To help you do this, you'll spend a month at Sandhurst.

Your military training.

We don't ask you to leap around assault courses with eager young Infantry Officers. Nor will we expect you to become a crack shot.

But it is essential that you study map-reading and learn how to operate a field radio.

It'll also help if you know how to lead a platoon, possibly on a night exercise (the idea is to give you a taste of the practical problems in giving orders).

But of course, it's your qualification as a doctor that interests us most, and the one we want to make most of. So your next stop will be the RAMC training centre, Aldershot.

Your medical training.

At Aldershot you'll attend lectures and demonstrations to explain the functions of the RAMC and how medical units fit into the Army as a whole.

Then you'll go to the Royal Army Medical College at Millbank.

Here you'll learn about certain medical aspects of cases and conditions that you would not come across in civilian life. Gunshot wounds and burns, for example, and field hygiene, as well as military psychiatry and preventive medicine.

Later, we'll want you to brush-up on tropical medicine since we still have men overseas.

Your first appointment.

You'll work as a general practitioner in a medical centre responsible for the health and welfare of soldiers and their families.

As such, you'll also be the Regiment's Medical Officer and the Colonel's adviser on all health matters affecting the troops.

During this time you could go with a regiment to Northern Ireland and just as easily to Norway on winter exercises.

After a year you'll come to something of a cross-roads in your career: what do you want to do next?

It might help if we outline some of the alternatives.

Your post-graduate training.

You could complete a Vocational Training Programme whilst in general practice or take Community Medicine.

Alternatively, you may go for specialist postgraduate training in one of the military hospitals.

Then there are the numerous opportunities for medical research.

Recent projects have covered the study of Q Fever in the Middle East. Investigation of common dyspeptic syndromes in young people.

An enquiry into the causation of renal lithiasis, the treatment of missile injuries and the long-term preservation of blood.

Medical cadets.

Another way to become a doctor in the Army is to join as a student.

If you've completed your pre-clinical studies and have obtained a place at a teaching hospital, you can apply for a medical cadetship.

As a Medical Cadet you'll earn £1,099 a year and get an education grant of £1,095.

One thing we must point out. When you've qualified you must stay with the RAMC for five years from the date of joining.

As a fully registered doctor your starting salary will be £5,997, with a tax free gratuity of £1,500 if you decide to leave after three years, and £3,000 after five years.

Before you make your final decision why not visit one of our medical establishments and talk to some RAMC Officers?

Write to: Brigadier (Retd.) John J. Voller, MRCS, LRCP, FFARCS, Dept. M7, Regimental Headquarters RAMC, Royal Army Medical College, Millbank, London SW1 4RJ.

ASPECTS OF SEXUAL MEDICINE

From the British Medical Journal

Freer discussion of sexual matters on television and in the popular press has led to many more patients approaching their doctors for advice on sexual problems. The articles collected together in this book give practical advice on common problems such as impotence and on the help and guidance that may be given to handicapped patients and others with special difficulties. Few doctors received adequate instruction on sexual medicine at their medical schools: Aspects of Sexual Medicine brings them up to date.

APPOINTMENTS

Applicants for medical appointments are advised to check whether the post advertised is included in the Important Notice and to scrutinize carefully the remuneration and terms of service offered. Any member who is in doubt about these terms in relation to B.M.A. agreements should consult the Secretary of the Association.

Advertisers are reminded that the Race Relations Board insists that no descriptive term implying racial, national, or ethnic characteristics may be used in any advertisement. Further, readers are advised not to apply for any appointment which discriminates between applicants on grounds of creed or unreasonably on grounds of sex.

HOSPITAL APPOINTMENTS

Applicants should state names, address, age, nationality, and qualifications, and enclose (unless otherwise specified) one copy of each of three recent testimonials, with a short statement of experience and appointments held. Applications should be sent at once if no closing date is given: Canvassing disqualifies (Statutory Instrument, 1974, No. 361).

All National Health Service hospital appointments are in accordance with the Terms and Conditions of Service of Hospital Medical Staff.

Further details concerning standards of residential accommodation, telephone charges, removal allowances, study leave and other matters should be obtained from the Hospital Secretary; or by B.M.A. members from the Secretary, British Medical Association.

In particular, they will find full details of facilities provided in most hospitals in the United Kingdom in the current edition of the Hospital Gazetteer. If such details are not included members are advised to consult the Secretary of the B.M.A.

Applicants requiring hospital married accommodation are strongly advised to obtain, prior to interview, clarification in writing from the employing authority as to whether such accommodation will be available on appointment.

No advertisement may stipulate that a non-resident must live less than 10 miles from a hospital. Advertisements for post-registration house officers, senior house officers and registrars should state clearly whether the post is resident, i.e. compulsorily resident.

In all advertisements grade should be clearly indicated. Normally a consultant vacancy must be advertised as (a) part-time with the number of sessions clearly stated, or (b) whole-time with the option of maximum part-time.

In the view of the B.M.A., an advertiser should not insist on possession of English higher qualifications in preference to Scottish or Irish qualifications (or vice versa).

Careers in Community Medicine

NORTHERN CONSORTIUM

A further intake to a two-year programme of in-post training is planned to begin in the Autumn for doctors who wish to prepare for a career in community medicine and the first part of the Membership examination of the Faculty of Community Medicine of the Royal College of Physicians.

The training programme is sponsored by the above authorities in conjunction with the appropriate departments of the Universities of Leeds, Leicester, Liverpool, Manchester, Newcastle, Nottingham and Sheffield and the Queen's University of Belfast.

The two-year appointment will offer a planned programme of experience and training at District, Area and Regional levels in the same locality. This in-service training will be integrated with a modular academic course provided jointly by the participating university departments. The modules will total some 20 weeks spread over the two year period. In addition, trainees will be attached for tutorial purposes to the university department closest to their place of work and between modules will normally spend the equivalent of one day a week in academic studies under the guidance of a tutor covering parts of the syllabus agreed by all the teaching departments.

Some doctors may already have acquired substantial in-service experience allied to community medicine and for these, special arrangements may be possible to enable them to benefit from the academic modules.

Applications are invited from registered medical practitioners with post-registration clinical experience. Training posts are not restricted to the younger members of the profession and the more mature candidate already established in another specialty will receive equal consideration.

The posts established will normally be equivalent to registrar in the clinical specialties (salary £4152-£5109) but special consideration may be given to doctors currently earning higher salaries.

This is a non-resident appointment but some Authorities may be able to help with the provision of accommodation on a voluntary basis for which an appropriate charge would be made.
