Diseases and Injuries of the

EAR. By W. D. DALBY, F.R.C.S., M.B. Cantab., Aural Surgeon to St. George's Hospital.

"It is evidently the work of an accomplished and observant man. . . . The chapter on 'Polypi' contains drawings and descriptions of great value. One of the most valuable chapters is that on 'Deaf Mutism.'—Brit. For. Med. Chir. Review.

"This work is happy in conception and pleasantly written; further, it shows that its author is thoroughly au fait in his speciality. The subject of which the volume treats is handled in a terse style, and this, if we mistake not, will make it acceptable to the student and practitioner. We cordially recommend it as a trustworthy guide in the treatment of affections of the ear."—Glasgow Med. Jour.

"It is evidently the work of a practical surgeon, communicating his experience, as well as that of others, in a brief but very intelligible manner."—Dublin Jour. of Med. Science.

"The style is clear and concise, and the English very good. Such a practical course of lectures on so important a subject would be a valuable addition to the course of instruction in any medical school."—New York Med. Journal.

"The subject of Aural Polypi is very thoroughly treated. . . . Those parts of the book which relate to mastoid diseases, to the obscure nervous affections of the auditory apparatus—both acquired and inherited—and to deaf mutism, are full of interest. We are glad to acknowledge the addition of such a volume to the literature pertaining to otology."—Philadelphia Med. Times.

"This may be considered as the present text-book and the best account of diseases of the ear that has been written since Mr. Hinton's article in 'Holmes's Surgery.'—Med. and Surg. Rev. (Australasian).

J. & A. CHURCHILL, New Burlington Street.

8vo, 3s. 6d.

On the Functions of the SYMPATHETIC SYSTEM OF NERVES, as a Physiological Basis for a Rational System of Therapeutics.

By EDWARD MERVON, M.D., F.R.C.P.

"Very excellent and suggestive."—Med. Times & G.
"Dr. Mervon, by careful perusal of antecedent research, and not less careful independent investigation, has made a substantial contribution to the literature of the profession."—Lancet.

J. and A. CHURCHILL, New Burlington Street.

Second Edition, Revised and Enlarged, 8vo, 7s.

Skin Grafting. By John

WOODMAN, F.R.C.S. (by Exam.). Consulting Surgeon to the Exeter Dispensary.

"This brochure treats on skin grafting in an able manner, the result evidently of considerable study and experience of the subject."—Medical Times and Gazette.
"Mr. Woodman's notes form a good practical, unpretending little pamphlet."—Lancet.
