DIABETIFUGE

IN THE TREATMENT OF DIABETES.

This treatment is constituted on sound practical scientific lines and yields most satisfactory results in the gradual diminution of the sugar percentage, which is in most cases of a permanent character. It has been well proven that PEROXIDE OF MANGANESE is one of the best producers of Glycolysis, being a true oxygen-carrier that readily yields some of its oxygen after absorption into the organism and has the power of replenishing itself immediately after.

BICARBONATE OF SODA is also a good oxygen-carrier, which has a high reputation in the treatment of Diabetes.

CHLOR-HYDRO-METHYL ARSENATE OF LITHIA, in small doses favours Glycolysis both as an oxygen-carrier and as an aid to assimilation.

ANTIPYRINE, URANIUM NITRATE, and SANTONIN also enter in the composition of DIABETIFUGE. These three substances are the most powerful restrainers and regulators of the glycolytic function known, and each is looked upon as a well-tried drug for the special purpose of preventing the formation of sugar.

By the combination of these substances in DIABETIFUGE a preparation is placed at the disposal of the medical profession which has in many cases effected a marked improvement in the condition of the diabetic patient and a definite percentage of permanent cures.
