BURGUNDY WINES.—It being established beyond question, and daily confirmed in the practical experience of many eminent members of the Medical Profession, that the use of Burgundy Wines is of the greatest advantage and benefit to a great variety of Invalids, as well as that they are the most salutary and enjoyable Wines for daily use by the brain-working community, it should only be necessary to indicate a pure source and the class of Wines that are best adapted to the climate of England.

MM. PIOT FRERES, having heard complaints from both Doctors and the Public, and knowing of their own experience what febrile and fortified mixtures are commonly sold here under the name of Burgundy, have been induced to establish a Depot for supplying true and unsophisticated Wines, the produce of their own estates and others of the first reputation; and while they have the pleasure to acknowledge the commendations of many leading members of the Medical Profession, they beg to invite and offer every facility for Medical Men to examine and become acquainted with the character of these Wines.
