Mellin's Food

was introduced to the Medical Profession in 1866. It was the first malto-dextrin product presented to physicians in a practical form suitable for use in infant dietetics.

This means over 50 years' experience in the selection of the materials that enter into the manufacture of Mellin's Food.

This means over 50 years' experience in the manipulation of those materials in order to secure and maintain efficiency and certain definite results.

This means over 50 years' experience in the perfection of every detail that would have a bearing upon the production of a product pre-eminently adapted for the nutrition of infants.

A liberal supply of samples will be forwarded with analytical reports, and "The Home Modification of Cow's Milk," upon application to:
