WARTIME GASTRIC DISORDERS

'BiSoDoL' is the result of painstaking research and extensive clinical trial.

A finely-divided powder, easily miscible with milk or water, it is especially well suited to the treatment of gastric disorders frequently resulting from a change of occupation.

Symptoms of nausea, flatulence and dyspepsia respond well to its sedative properties. Incorporation of the enzymes, papain and diastase, ensures completion of the digestive processes.

Mag. Carb. Levis., in addition to exerting an antacid action, is effective in counter-acting any tendency to constipation.

The Restricted Diet

To-day, when every diet is restricted, it is necessary to exercise careful discrimination in selecting food for the patient requiring a special diet. In particular it is important to ensure that a full complement of vitamins is given.

Marmite is a yeast extract providing the B group of vitamins. It is usually allowed even when many foods are forbidden.

IRRIGATION ENVELOPES and the TREATMENT OF LIMB INJURIES

"It is usually taught that the healing of a wound requires rest, that the prevention of infection is facilitated by rest, yet the restoration of function requires active movements. It must be the endeavour of modern methods to reconcile these two apparently opposing principles. If infection can be adequately controlled and yet movements allowed from the start, then we have achieved a definite advance in the treatment of compound injuries of the limbs, and particularly so in the structures where movement is highly specialized and immobilization, therefore, most detrimental, e.g., in the hands and fingers. The use of an occlusive envelope, as introduced by Bunyan and developed by Stannard, controls infection even when active movements are allowed from the start. It brings an ideal within the bounds of practical possibility and introduces a simple and effective method of dealing with severe injuries. Further, the wound is always ready for inspection without disturbing the dressings, as the silk envelopes are semi-transparent."

"The constantly repeated irrigation of wounds as a method of treatment has appealed to many workers and became established to some extent during the last War, when it was known as the Carrel-Dakin method. The technique demanded frequent attention and the solution employed was often irritating. However, the theory that the wound acted as a culture medium and that repeated irrigation would prevent this, was probably a sound one."

British Journal of Surgery, Vol. xxx, No. 120, p. 328-55.

Irritation is minimised by employing Electrolytic Sodium Hypochlorite in preference to chemical hypochlorites which tend to be caustic, are unstable, and deficient in saline content. "Milton" is recommended because it is standardized in strength of hypochlorite, and stabilized so that it retains its effective strength indefinitely.

The successful employment of irrigation therapy entails:

INITIAL CLEANSING

during which débridement is carried out while a continuous stream of a 20 per cent solution of Milton Antiseptic is played on the wound. It is important for the subsequent treatment that all devitalized and grossly contaminated tissue be removed.

ROUTINE IRRIGATIONS

Here the treatment is continued by thrice daily irrigations using a 5 per cent solution of Milton Antiseptic prepared at 100° Fahrenheit. This solution is isotonic and its strength of available chlorine is adequate for the continued control of infection.

VITAMIN SUPPLEMENTS FOR CHILDREN

(Holding Green Ration Books)

Cod-liver oil compound

The Ministry of Food, working closely with the Ministry of Health and the Department of Health for Scotland, now make available for these children:

1 Cod-liver oil compound (not less than 1000 i.u. vitamin A and 200 i.u. vitamin D per gramme. 3500-4000 i.u. vitamin A and 700-800 i.u. vitamin D per drachm).

2 Concentrated orange juice (not less than 60 mg. ascorbic acid per fl. oz.).

Present supplies of the Ministry of Food cod-liver oil compound have double the original vitamin D content. New directions for use appear on labels. These changes have been made in consultation with the Ministry of Health and it is hoped that all who are professionally interested in this matter will give the utmost support in making public the necessity for the infant, whether breast-fed or bottle-fed, to have a regular daily supply of fish-liver oil (or other suitable preparation) containing vitamins A and D.

Under the national vitamins scheme, the cod-liver oil compound is available to all children holding the green Ration Books and also to pregnant women. The 6 oz. bottle (6 weeks' supply) costs 10d. or is free, according to income, and is available from welfare centres, food offices and other distributing centres.

Pregnant women also are entitled to these preparations and to vitamins A and D capsules (4000 i.u. vitamin A, 800 i.u. vitamin D and 250 mg. calcium phosphate), obtainable from the same source.

The two new acridines

2:7-DIAMINOACRIDINE HYDROCHLORIDE

5-AMINOACRIDINE HYDROCHLORIDE

Glaxo Laboratories introduce two new antiseptics of the acridine group mentioned in recent medical investigations. They are both normally used in dilutions of 1 in 1000 — 1 in 2000. Special literature on request.

2:7-DIAMINOACRIDINE HYDROCHLORIDE. Of all the acridines this has the least effect on living tissue and the lowest general toxicity (in dilutions of 1 in 1000 to 1 in 2000). It is rapidly bactericidal and, in effective concentration, does not interfere with healing. It is also effective against certain Gram negative organisms—B. proteus, B. coli and Ps. pyocyanea—that are not affected by other acridines in similar concentrations.

5-AMINOACRIDINE HYDROCHLORIDE. This is an effective antiseptic and, in ordinary dilutions, shows little effect on living tissues. It has a bactericidal action similar to other acridines against the common pyogenic organisms. The light colour of the antiseptic is hardly seen on the skin and is easily removed by water from the skin or fabric. It is an ideal antiseptic for routine use.

Both in bottles of 25 grams.

(NIKETHAMIDE B.P.)

Nikethamide B.P. is the most generally useful cardio-respiratory stimulant. It acts by stimulating the respiratory and vasomotor centres in the medulla. It raises the blood pressure and increases the coronary blood supply. Nikethamide is of value therefore for the treatment of all forms of shock, collapse and sudden cardiac failure as during pneumonia and other infections and of post-operative narcosis and coma from narcotic poisoning.

Nikethamide B.P. is available for clinical use as Anacardone — solution in ampoules for injection (Injection of Nikethamide B.P.) and in flavoured solution for oral administration.

When an immediate effect is essential, Anacardone is given by injection, the subcutaneous, intramuscular or intravenous route being employed. In less urgent conditions, Anacardone is administered orally.

VITAMIN THERAPY IN SENESCENCE

The fact that ageing tissues are more liable to infection, together with the higher incidence of gastro-intestinal disorders with resulting malassimilation, suggest the particular importance of supplying an adequate intake of vitamins and other essential protective factors, from middle age onwards. Recent experimental and clinical work has tended to support this view. A low level of vitamin C is common in the blood of aged patients, and it was found by certain workers¹ that treatment of senile patients with vitamin C was followed by improvement of general health, increased vitality, better sleep, and disappearance of rheumatic pains.

Clinical Experiments and Practical Results

An experimental deficiency of vitamin B₁ in healthy women produced many features occurring in senile patients—depression, difficulty of concentration, insomnia, weakness, easy fatigability, back-ache, soreness and atony of muscles, palpitation and roughness of the skin.² Striking symptomatic relief has been obtained with nicotinic acid therapy in a group of old patients with arteriosclerotic encephalopathy.³

Further confirmation of the favourable effect of a high vitamin dietary supplement was added by recent workers.⁴ By employing the vitamin B complex and vitamin C it was possible to prevent—or in some cases to improve to a striking degree—certain senile features which could be considered as pathological (muscular, cardio-vascular, and mental deterioration). Similar results were observed in conditions such as dementia, insomnia, skin rashes and itching, and constipation.

Rectifying Multiple Deficiencies

Since deficiency of one vitamin is generally associated with other hypovitaminoses, it is important that the diet should be supplemented with all the known vitamins and minerals. Complevite Tablets provide vitamins A, B₁, C and D, with calcium, iron and phosphorus, in amounts and proportions designed to meet average deficiencies revealed by modern surveys. The use of Complevite constitutes a valuable therapeutic measure in many of the disorders of senescence and senility, particularly those in which nutritional deficiency is suspected as an aetiological factor.

ALOCOL

AL-O-COL

Colloidal Hydroxide of Aluminium

Rational Antacid Therapy

A PART from those cases due to actual organic disease, the treatment of the syndrome of symptoms known as indigestion generally resolves itself into an attempt to overcome hypersecretion of acid and to soothe the irritated or inflamed gastric mucosa.

That "Alocol" possesses intrinsic qualities which render it particularly valuable as a gastric sedative and antacid is now well established. Its freedom from the constipating effect of bismuth, the laxative-action of magnesium salts and the gas-forming properties of sodium bicarbonate are especially noteworthy.

"Alocol" forms with the gastric contents a colloidal jelly which has the power of adsorbing free hydrochloric acid. Its markedly soothing effect on the gastric mucosa promptly relieves pain and discomfort. It does not interfere with the normal process of digestion and is free from the danger of "alkalosis."

Complete chemical history of "Alocol," with convincing clinical reports and supply for trial, sent free to physicians on request.

★ Faithful Servants go into Retirement:— ★

A typical 'K' type tilt-starting quartz burner, about 1/5 real scale.

The modern self-starting electronic discharge tube corresponding to the above, also shown about 1/5 scale, is seen in the small circle. It contains less mercury, generates a higher output of ultra-violet radiation than the large tilt type burner, yet consumes less electricity.

HANOVIA LTD

The Specialists in Actinotherapy Equipment

SLOUGH.
BUCKS.

London Showrooms:
3 Victoria Street, S.W.1

After a long and distinguished career, certain of Hanovia's liquid electrode mercury quartz burners are compelled to retire from active service. From 1905 onwards these tilt-starting 'K type' quartz burners were the standard ultra-violet radiation sources for thirty years. Outstandingly good as they were, science has surpassed them till they are now blocking the way for the better. After August 31st next we shall be unable to repair or supply any more tilt-starting Hanovia quartz burners of the types listed below.

By way of explanation. For nearly ten years we have been making our whole range of Hanovia ultra-violet ray lamps with self-starting electronic discharge arc tubes, which have fully demonstrated their many technical and therapeutic advantages over the earlier tilt-starting burners. Being in current production, the modern tube can be made and tested in less time than is needed for an occasional one among the nineteen different K-type burners. Moreover, one K-type burner takes as much mercury as may fill ten thousand modern arc tubes.

We have always considered it a prime obligation to maintain service to our users, but now that any further attempt to prolong the life of out-dated equipment would entail prodigal waste both of skilled labour and of an imported metal essential for munitions, we are bound to publish the above notification. The following tilt-starting Hanovia lamps are affected:—

THE SUPER-KROMAYER and all KROMAYER LAMPS except Models V. and VI.

ALL JESIONEK LAMPS.

THE C.S. ALPINE and MODIFIED ALPINE SUN LAMPS.

THE MASSEURS' UNIVERSAL LAMP and PORTABLE H.S. LAMPS.

When such a lamp falls due for burner replacement we ask the user to send us the number of the burner and a detailed description of the lamp, giving the date of its manufacture. We will then advise the simplest way to keep the equipment in operation.

(Special Note: for ALPINE SUN LAMPS of the spherical hood type incorporating tilt-starting 'K' burners, in use for essential medical purposes, we will maintain a Burner Exchange service until further notice.)

NOTICE—Applications for vacancies advertised should, except where otherwise specified, state name, address, age, nationality, qualifications with dates, and be accompanied by copies of three recent testimonials with short statement of experience and appointments held. Unless closing date is stated applications should be sent at once.

INDIAN MEDICAL SERVICE. Recruitment of Women Medical Officers.—The Government of India are prepared to recruit a limited number of women medical officers for service with the Indian Medical Service for the duration of the war. Applicants must be British subjects, of not more than 45 years of age, and those selected will be appointed in the rank of Lieutenants. Antedate of seniority may be granted up to a maximum period of 6½ years in respect of resident hospital appointments, higher qualifications, and/or professional experience. The antedate will count for pay and promotion, but, in the case of candidates recruited in this country, higher rank will not be assumed until the date of disembarkation in India. On termination of service, a minimum gratuity is guaranteed to those officers who complete one year of service, viz., Rs. 2,000 to officers whose registrable medical qualification is dated before January 1, 1940, and Rs. 1,000 to those who qualified after that date, plus one month's pay for each further completed year of Army service. Further particulars regarding rates of pay, etc., may be obtained from the Medical Adviser, India Office, London, S.W.1, or from the Secretary, Military Department, India Office, to whom all inquiries should be addressed.

COUNTY BOROUGH OF DEWSBURY. Medical Officer of Health and School Medical Officer.—The Dewsbury Corporation invite applications from duly qualified and registered medical practitioners holding the Diploma in Public Health for the position of Temporary Medical Officer of Health and School Medical Officer, at a commencing salary of £900 per annum, rising, subject to satisfactory service, by six annual increments of £25 to £1,050 per annum, plus cost-of-living bonus, at present at the rate of £24 per annum. The vacancy arises through the resignation of the present officer. The gentleman appointed will be required to devote the whole of his time to the duties of the office, which are prescribed by statute, to act as Medical Superintendent of the Dewsbury Joint Isolation Hospital, and to reside in the Borough, and will not be allowed to engage in private practice. All emoluments or fees, which may be payable to or received by him, must be paid over to the Corporation. The appointment will be terminable by three months' notice on either side. The appointment may be subject to the provisions of the Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937, and the successful candidate may be required to pass a medical examination. Canvassing, either directly or indirectly, is prohibited. WRIGHT'S LIQUOR CARBONIS DETERGENS

By the preparation of Liquor Carbonis Detergens 80 years ago, the powerful antiseptic and antipruritic agents in Coal Tar were isolated for the first time from the residuary content of irritants and non-therapeutic substances. Publicly commended by an impressive succession of notable authorities, Liquor Carbonis Detergens soon provided the basis for a toilet soap that has been a household word for generations. Discouraging germs, Wright's Coal Tar Soap produces a generous lather, specially soothing and very thorough in its cleansing.
