

'Mapharside'

(META-AMINO-PARA-HYDROXY-PHENYLARSINE OXIDE HYDROCHLORIDE)

The original arsenoxide product for the treatment of syphilis, introduced after co-operative research in two American universities and the Research Department of Parke, Davis & Co.

SOME SIGNIFICANT DATES IN THE ARSENICAL TREATMENT OF SYPHILIS

- 1902 Laveran and Mesnil discover that sodium arsenite has an effect in experimental trypanosomiasis in mice.
- 1907 Atoxyl—elaborated by Bechamp in 1863—first used in syphilis by Lassar.
- 1909 Salvarsan, or "606," later known as "arsphenamine," used experimentally by Hata in the treatment of spirillosis in fowls.
- 1910 Arsphenamine given clinical trial in syphilis by various workers.
- 1912 Ehrlich and his colleagues produce neo-arsphenamine, having previously discarded arsenoxide as too toxic.
- 1920 Voegtlin and Smith suggest that the parasitocidal action of the arsphenamines is due to their conversion in the body into arsenoxide.
- 1923 Dale envisages the possibility of arsenoxide being used by continuous intravenous-drip therapy.
- 1932 Hamilton produces for Tatum and Cooper an improved arsenoxide (Mapharside).
- 1935 Foerster and his associates confirm the value of 'Mapharside' in clinical trials. 'Mapharside' is introduced to the medical profession in America.
- 1936 'Mapharside' is introduced to the medical profession of Great Britain at the Annual Meeting of the British Medical Association at Oxford.
- 1936 to 1943 The superiority of 'Mapharside' over the arsphenamines is admitted by an ever-increasing number of experienced venereologists. It is adopted for the routine treatment of syphilis by the U.S.A. and Canadian Medical Services and the Royal Navy.

Why ANDREWS is the Ideal Tonic Laxative

Andrews is a pleasant tasting, effervescent aperient with tonic properties, and is a valuable aid to Inner Cleanliness.

Andrews is beneficial in most digestive disorders, feverish conditions, the ailments of children, and in pregnancy and lactation. Its use may be discontinued without reaction when the need for it ceases.

Andrews justifies the description of "Ideal Tonic Laxative" because:—

FIRST . . Patients like taking Andrews, because its brisk effervescence is immediately refreshing and stimulating, it sweetens the mouth and helps to clean the tongue.

NEXT . . Andrews allays gastric discomfort, heart-burn and nausea by diminishing the stomach's acidity and relieving flatulence.

THEN . . Andrews increases bile flow, relieves hepatic congestion, and improves digestion. It is partly absorbed from the intestine as alkali, and therefore helps to correct acidity in the blood and to stimulate kidney function.

FINALLY . . Acting by osmosis, Andrews clears the bowels gently and entirely without irritation.

- 2 Modern antiseptics and the newly acknowledged importance of staphylococci.
- 3 The test of a modern antiseptic: its effectiveness against both streptococci and staphylococci.
- 4 Blood collection as a practical test of the anti-staphylococci power of antiseptics.

THE CONTROL OF SEPSIS IN BURNS BY THE IRRIGATION ENVELOPE TREATMENT

A review of the number and character of war burns treated in various Service and civilian hospitals during the last year, demonstrates an outstanding fact very clearly. This is that sepsis is the bugbear of such burns, and if it can be eliminated then there are few complications which can arise. (1)

If more than 36 hours have elapsed since injury before the patient reaches hospital, the burned areas are infected and coagulation therapy is no longer safe. Again, apparently clean burns may become grossly septic beneath a pellicle which will be rapidly cast off as a result. (2)

The IRRIGATION ENVELOPE TREATMENT offers a rational and efficient system of therapy which permits the continued control of infection while introducing at the outset the physiological conditions most favourable to the progress of natural healing.

The efficiency of this treatment derives from the Stannard Irrigation Envelope which occludes the damaged area, thus reducing the possibility of secondary infection to a minimum, and Electrolytic Sodium Hypochlorite which, in the strengths employed for irrigation, provides a non-toxic antiseptic solution with the complementary property of a lytic agent. In the presence of an actually established infection it is this lytic action of hypochlorite which has led to its designation as a 'chemical bistoury.' (3) By this action the barrier of necrotic tissue and cell detritus, generally impermeable to bacteriostatic agents, is removed, thereby exposing the site of infection to the further action of the hypochlorite as an antiseptic.

ELECTROLYTIC SODIUM HYPOCHLORITE

is preferable to chemical hypochlorites, which tend to be caustic and are deficient in saline content. MILTON is recommended because it is standardised in strength of hypochlorite (1 per cent.) and stabilised so that it retains its effective strength indefinitely. MILTON is only faintly alkaline in the dilution used for routine irrigations (pH 8.89) and, after its chemical action is complete, leaves a residue of sodium chloride and water.

STANNARD IRRIGATION ENVELOPES

The Envelopes are made of the finest grades of pure silk coated with synthetic resins by which they are rendered transparent, waterproof, impervious to the action of electrolytic sodium hypochlorite, smooth of surface and soft and supple in texture. They permit the patient to move the limb freely, so avoiding the loss of function due to immobilisation and without causing irritation or pain from the friction of the dressing. Irrigation envelopes are made in a wide range of styles suited to the varying sites of injury, and in a range of sizes which allows convenient application to all types of patient.

INJECTION TREATMENT OF VARICOSE VEINS

● For its reliable sclerosing powers, 'Ethamolin' injection has become an established method of treating varicose veins.

'Ethamolin,' the Glaxo preparation of ethanolamine oleate, on injection into the varix causes endothelial reaction resulting in eventual sclerosis. Accidental perivenous extravasation of 'Ethamolin' does not lead to sloughing.

'Ethamolin' is therefore effective and safe. Its chemical composition is constant, it is not liable to deterioration, potency is unvaried and its sclerosing properties are retained in full indefinitely. 'Ethamolin' contains no impurity likely to cause allergic reactions. Varices once shrunk by 'Ethamolin' usually remain so permanently.

Vitamin B<sub>1</sub>

for war workers

Lack of Vitamin B has long been known to have a detrimental effect on manual and brain workers. As a recent article in the B.M.J.<sup>1</sup> points out, the intake of Vitamin B may still be below the optimum for full efficiency despite the adoption of high extraction in Great Britain, and it is open to question whether the Vitamin B content of the diet in English-speaking countries is really adequate.

Work at the famous Mayo Clinic<sup>2</sup> showed that an experimentally induced B<sub>1</sub> shortage caused the subjects to become depressed and irritable, inefficient in their work, inattentive to details to their tasks, and lacking in manual dexterity. A restricted aneurine intake is apt to result in "gross changes of behaviour, marked changes of attitude, diminished inclination to perform accustomed tasks and progressive decrease of ability to make social adjustments within the group."

In Liver Insufficiency

Varying degrees of liver insufficiency are commonly encountered in practice. The patient with sallow complexion, furred tongue, morning nausea, anorexia, headache, discomfort in the region of the liver, lassitude and depression is all too familiar.

Dehydrocholin B.D.H. is the most powerful cholagogue available, and in such cases produces prompt and effective relief of symptoms. In the initial stages Dehydrocholin B.D.H. should be administered by injection, and thereafter treatment is continued by the administration of tablets by mouth until recovery is complete.

Dehydrocholin B.D.H. is available for intravenous injection in ampoules containing a solution of sodium dehydrocholate, and for oral administration in tablets containing dehydrocholic acid.

PROPAMIDINE JELLY and CREAM

for the prevention and treatment of sepsis

PROPAMIDINE is one of the aromatic diamidines, a series of compounds synthesised in our Research Laboratories. Studied originally for their anti-protozoal action they were found to possess anti-bacterial properties which are not inhibited by pus and tissue fluids or para-aminobenzoic acid. Propamidine is active against sulphonamide-resistant strains of beta-haemolytic streptococci. For topical application in the treatment of infection therefore propamidine possesses advantages over the sulphonamides of the same nature as are shown by penicillin.

Two preparations of propamidine are now freely available commercially, a jelly and a cream. The first is used for established sepsis in wounds and burns as in the presence of sloughing or rough granulations, more intimate contact of the drug with the infected area is secured. For other purposes the cream is employed and provides a valuable "first aid" application for burns.

A pamphlet on these products is available on request. Propamidine jelly and cream are supplied as follows:

Vitamin C deficiency and Industrial Fatigue

While the General Practitioner does not enjoy the opportunity, so freely available to industrial medical officers, to study the mass effect of vitamin C deficiency, he is frequently faced with the problem in individual cases.

Lassitude and fatigue, aggravated by communal meals from which the vitamin C has been cooked right out, are common pointers to a condition of sub-optimal vitamin C which can be effectively countered by prescribing Ribena Blackcurrant Syrup.

As a rich source of vitamin C the homely blackcurrant is rapidly assuming its rightful place in modern therapy. Fixson and Roscoe established that it contains 136 to 220 mg. per 100 gm. as against 22 to 89 for orange juice.

A course of Ribena Blackcurrant Syrup is beneficial in dissipating the "tired" feeling due to war strain and in attaining the optimum which paves the way to more vigorous health and increased output.

HIS MAJESTY'S COLONIAL SERVICE. The Colonial Medical Service. Vacancies for Medical Officers.—The maintenance of an efficient Colonial Medical Service constitutes a vital part of the national war effort, and it is most important that the Service should be assured of an adequate supply of doctors. The normal salary scale is from £600 to between £1,000 to £1,120. There are large numbers of super-scale posts, to which promotion is made on merit and which carry higher salaries. Government quarters, in many cases free of rent, and first-class passages to and from the Colonies, are provided, and an adequate pension scheme is in force. Selected candidates are normally required to attend a course of instruction in Tropical Medicine and Hygiene either before proceeding overseas or during their first period of leave. Further particulars, including the regulations governing admission to the Colonial Medical Service, may be obtained from the Director of Recruitment (Colonial Service), 2, Park Street, London, W.1.

A Physiological Evacuant

It is easy to relieve constipation by the use of a purgative, but this does not remove the cause, so the trouble inevitably recurs.

Veracolate is a physiological evacuant, for it contains the bile salts—sodium taurocholate and sodium glycocholate—which are the natural laxatives of the intestinal canal. A mild vegetable laxative and a carminative are added to initiate peristaltic action and increase gastric tone.

Veracolate Tablets, therefore, relieve constipation and at the same time overcome the dyspepsia, biliousness, and sallow complexion associated with biliary stasis.

Veracolate encourages all the digestive activities to return to healthy normality.
