BRAND'S ESSENCE is a first-class protein of animal origin, in a form and strength that will not overtax a weakened system. Being partly hydrolyzed, it is capable of easy ingestion, digestion and absorption. It is extremely palatable, and may be taken either as a jelly or as a liquid. It helps to support convalescence and assists in restoring a positive nitrogen balance.

The major indications for the administration of Brand's Essence are loss of appetite during fatigue, acute infections, and dysphagia or digestive disturbances due to organic or bacterial lesions of the mouth, oesophagus and alimentary tract, and after surgical procedures.

The addition of Brand's Essence to low residue and weight-reducing diets is especially appreciated by the patient.

NU-SAN dressing

Nu-San dressing is now in use in many British and Continental hospitals. Published and unpublished reports on its use show that it is one of the most outstanding inventions of recent years. This is because:—

1. It is absorbent and non-greasy yet it does not stick to raw wound surface. It is therefore easy to apply and easy to remove. It also keeps the wound surface dry, which is difficult with greasy dressings.
2. It possesses a powerful antibacterial action against all types of organisms (both Gram-positive and Gram-negative). This prevents clean wounds from turning septic and causes septic burns and wounds to heal quicker than with traditional methods.
3. It has given outstanding success in bed sores and varicose ulcers.
4. It excels over antibiotics because of the freedom from toxic or allergic reactions. In U.K. alone over 2 million dressings have already been sold, yet no instance of any undesirable side-effects has been reported.

Prescribable on E.C.10 in packets of 5 and 10 squares (3½ in. by 3½ in.), but available in packets of 100 squares and rolls (6 yd. by 6 in.).

Sample and literature will be gladly sent free on application.

MARY ARRIVES AT THE PARTY

Nothing special about that, you may think. But to Mary and her family it made headline news—and the beginning of a new life for a child with the disability of epilepsy.

'Mysoline' therapy can bring new-found confidence and alertness to the epileptic child. By completely controlling the attacks or by sharply reducing their frequency and severity, without causing undesirable hypnotic effects under established treatment, it enables a child to enjoy normal activity in a safe and healthy environment. For this reason, 'Mysoline' can often be used with advantage in cases already controlled by other drugs, but in which a heightened interest and improvement in performance is desirable.

INDICATIONS

Nulacin tablets are indicated whenever neutralization of the gastric contents is required: in active and quiescent peptic ulcer, gastritis, gastric hyperacidity.

Beginning half an hour after food, a Nulacin tablet should be placed in the mouth and allowed to dissolve slowly. During the stage of ulcer activity, up to three tablets an hour may be required. For follow-up treatment, the suggested dosage is one or two tablets between meals.

VITAMINS LIMITED

Cost of the Hospital Service

Medicines 3½%

Administration and other costs 96½%

At the Annual General Meeting of Vitamins Ltd., the Chairman, Mr. H. C. H. Graves said that competition, especially in the pharmaceutical and N.H.S. sphere, and increased productivity, had tended to reduce prices faster than inflationary trends had increased labour and other costs. The pharmaceutical industry had a proud record in that respect and it had not been to the national advantage that successive Ministers of Health, the Houses of Parliament and the country should have been so gravely misled about these matters. Even to-day a doctor who dutifully accepted that ever repeated advice of the Ministry of Health to prescribe 'standard' drugs instead of proprietaries often involved the Treasury in a higher bill (many 'standard' drugs cost the Exchequer more than the corresponding proprietaries): handicapped the immediate competitive power of the industry overseas; and deprived the research departments of the industry of a contribution to research—since it was the ethical proprietary that made the contribution while the 'standard' drug, despite its frequent higher cost to the nation, did not.

The Ministry was in effect saying to doctors—"Withdraw your support from those who are trying to keep the country in the van of scientific progress—support rather those producers who make no contribution to it. Prescribe standard drugs even if it costs the Exchequer more". This was not commonsense, but it had a meretricious popular appeal which made it possible for the very foundations of our export trade to be nibbled away under the false slogan that proprietaries were more expensive than standard drugs. The Prime Minister had world-wide issues on his hands, but Mr. Graves said he could wish that time could be found to look into this, it had been going on too long.

As a taxpayer he could also wish that one-tenth of the effort—and one-hundredth of the publicity—that had been put into the pillorying of the industry could be put into improving the efficiency and lowering the cost of the Hospital Service. Medicines accounted for about 3½% of the cost of the Hospital Service; administrative and other costs for 96½%. Official concentration on the 3½% had certainly diverted public attention from the other 96½%. Had they in this non-commercially administered Public Service a Frankenstein monster? He predicted that the verdict of history would be that five valuable years were lost in fiddling with and damaging the efficiency of almost the only agency—the Pharmaceutical Industry—which had any real chance of curbing the growth of the monster by the power of the drugs it produced to shorten the duration of severe illnesses and to send patients home often in less than half the time the hospital needed without them.

Dealing with the subject of nutrition, Mr. Graves reminded the meeting that Bemax (stabilized Wheat Germ) was still the best-known vitamin-mineral-protein food in the world, a fact that had been appreciated and understood by doctors and dietitians, nurses and mothers for over a quarter of a century. It seemed incredible to think that, in these days, anyone could be found to deny children its benefits.

Their company was well placed to take advantage of the fruits of the period of intense activity and development which began in 1940 and the very remarkable opportunities which planned research and direction had put in their way. As a united team they could face the future with confidence.

The report and accounts were adopted.

NOW INTRODUCE

"Mictine," the new non-mercurial oral diuretic, is distinctive in showing no contra-indications. Its mode of action is believed to be by inhibiting resorption of sodium ions by the renal tubules, and neither succinic dehydrogenase nor carbonic anhydrase is involved.

"Mictine" is useful in maintaining an oedema-free state in any patient requiring diuretic therapy, and in the initial diuresis of all patients but those with severe congestive failure.

Clinical trials with "Mictine" indicate that it is best administered on an interrupted dosage schedule. It may either be given on alternate days, or for three consecutive days followed by complete omission on the following four days. For either scheme the dosage is one to four tablets in divided doses with meals. Such side-effects as are occasionally experienced are usually relieved by the interrupted dosage schedules. "Mictine" is available in bottles of 25 and 100 tablets each containing 200 mg. aminometradine.

Doctors everywhere have been quick to recognize the unparalleled merits of ACHROMYCIN tetracycline . . . and Lederle, in turn, have been quick to extend the range of ACHROMYCIN preparations, so that the antibiotic may be employed to fullest advantage. Today that range grows wider still, with the introduction of ACHROMYCIN Troches—a potent weapon in cases of bacterial invasion of the throat and mouth. Dissolved slowly in the mouth, the troches exert a powerful broad-spectrum action against numerous oral infections commonly met with in day-to-day practice.

Threshold for 'stress'

Among the postulated stress-producing factors, emotional and physical strain take an important place, and may provoke a state of systemic stress with protean manifestations on every body tissue. The incidence of such stress disorders has recently been rated as high as 15% in rural and 25% in urban practice.¹

In the treatment of stress disorders, no one disputes the fundamental importance of simple psychotherapy which the family doctor is so well placed to dispense; yet he, himself, generally recognises the need for a more material adjunct, a tonic and restorative which will assist the nervous system as well as the organism as a whole. Sanatogen is an active nutrient tonic, and the choice of many physicians in such circumstances. Conversely, the considerable effect of a poor nutritional state on the mental outlook has long been recognised. Here again, the merits of Sanatogen as a high protein tonic nutrient are apparent.

Sanatogen is a protein-glycerophosphate complex; 95% casein rich in essential amino-acids; 5% sodium glycerophosphate, yielding most readily assimilable phosphorus. Because of its high nutrient and restorative effects on the entire nervous system, it can be recommended with assurance whenever a tonic is indicated, whether in general or mental asthenia, or in any condition of stress.

The general indications for Veganin are summarized in the triad PAIN — PYREXIA — EXCITEMENT. Corresponding to these are the three constituents of Veganin — acetylsalicylic acid, phenacetin and codeine; and the three main effects that they produce — analgesia, antipyresis and sedation. In practice, it is as hard to separate one indication from another as it is to consider the action of each constituent individually. They act synergistically on a myriad of symptoms.

Chloromycetin* is unique in being readily and effectively absorbed from the gastro-intestinal tract and producing blood-levels which rise proportionally with increase in dosage. This is a great advantage in severe infections where initially, high blood-levels are essential; a rapid response to treatment is a natural corollary. Owing to effective absorption, gastro-intestinal side-effects following the administration of Chloromycetin are reduced to a minimum.

Resentment and Hostility

The importance of the emotional background in the aetiology of peptic ulcer is widely recognised. Further confirmation is provided by the increase of gastric acidity shown to follow certain emotional disturbances such as those involving resentment and hostility.

Protection of the ulcer from the corrosive action of gastric juice is an essential condition of successful healing entirely fulfilled by 'Aludrox' Amphoteric Gel.

'Aludrox' buffers gastric acid to a pH of 3.5 to 4.0, at which level healing may proceed and the risk of alkalosis is avoided. Normal digestion is unimpaired and, in addition, 'Aludrox' provides the physical protection of a gel barrier over the surface of the ulcer, thus ensuring a safer environment for the reparative processes.

He wouldn't dream of neglecting his patients

The anxious mother can confidently expect to hear the doctor's 'rat-tat-tat': he will never let his little patient down, and will meticulously follow her progress until she is cured.

But even doctors have human failings, and this one is guilty of a certain amount of neglect where his tyres are concerned: in fact, he rarely gives them a thought until he needs a new one—and then he usually leaves the choice to someone else. A pity this, when all he need say is 'Fit John Bull', and be assured of so many more miles of really safe and trouble-free motoring.

Preventive Medicine

Although the prominent role played by protective foods in preventive medicine is fully recognised by doctors and nutrition experts, there are still many members of the public who are not sufficiently nutrition minded to appreciate their significance. It has been suggested that by spreading more information on food values, a considerable amount of illness might be avoided, and public money could thus be saved.

A useful protective food—and one which is popular with old and young alike—is Marmite. It supplies the essential B vitamins in a convenient, appetising form.

MARMITE
