A DOCTOR IN RUSSIA

A study of family medicine in the U.S.S.R.

Fifty years ago there were 23,000 doctors in Russia—one to every 10,000 people. Today there are 350,000, three-quarters of them women, and the proportion of doctors to patients is almost twice as high as that in Britain.

What is the state of family medicine in the U.S.S.R.? How does a patient set about getting treatment, and how well is he looked after?

Dr. J. H. Hunt has been sent to the Soviet Union specially to study the Russian medical services at work, looking not for the bad, but for the better points which might help us in Britain.

In a three-part survey he examines the organization, the humanity and skill of the doctors, the "flying doctor" service and gives a remarkable picture of the Russian medical services, their first-aid system, their clinics, district hospitals and welfare centres.

THE FUTURE

AND HOECHST

The great German pharmaceutical company, Farbwerke Hoechst A.G., last year celebrated its seventy-fifth anniversary. It could look back on many outstanding developments in medical science that it had introduced—ranging from the first diphtheria antitoxin, to Rastinon, the established oral treatment of diabetes.

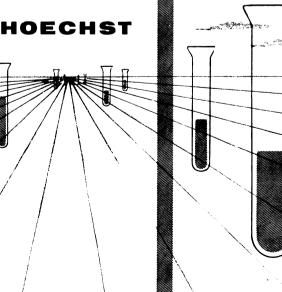

Today, in the Pharmacopoeia of every country are listed drugs originated at Hoechst; for example, in the British Pharmacopoeia 1958 are listed Procaine, Epinephrine, Mersalyl, Tetracaine, Pethidine, Methadone, and Normethadone, each one of which was discovered in the Hoechst laboratories.

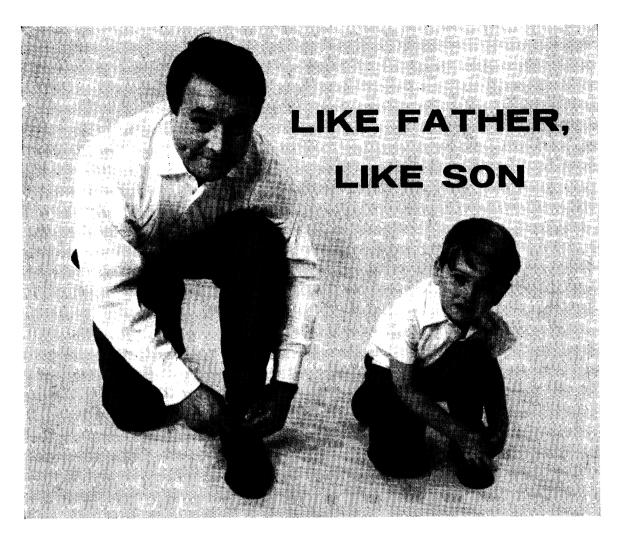

300 graduate scientists — chemists, doctors, pharmacists — are employed by Hoechst in Frankfurt on pharmaceutical research alone. They work in ultra-modern laboratories, with all the equipment they could possibly need.

The promise from Hoechst is of even greater achievement in the discovery of new weapons against disease.

The new therapeutic principle embodied in this drug effectively extends the control of oedema and ascites in

Congestive Heart Fallure Hepatic Cirrhosis The Nephrotic Syndrome Idiopathic Oedema

Aldactone provides satisfactory relief of resistant or advanced oedema even when all other agents, alone or in combination, are ineffective or are only partially effective.

Aldactone blocks the effect of aldosterone which is the major cause of resistance to diuretics, and because of its different site and mode of action, Aldactone has a true and highly synergistic activity when used with a mercurial or thiazide diuretic.

the first specific aldosterone – blocking agent

Aldactone

bas the following advantages

- Satisfactory relief where all other agents fail.
- Does not induce potassium loss.
- No serious toxic or side effects.
- Exerts true, striking, synergistic activity in a programme of treatment including mercurial or thiazide diuretics.
- Offsets the potassium loss from concomitantly administered mercurial or thiazide diuretics.

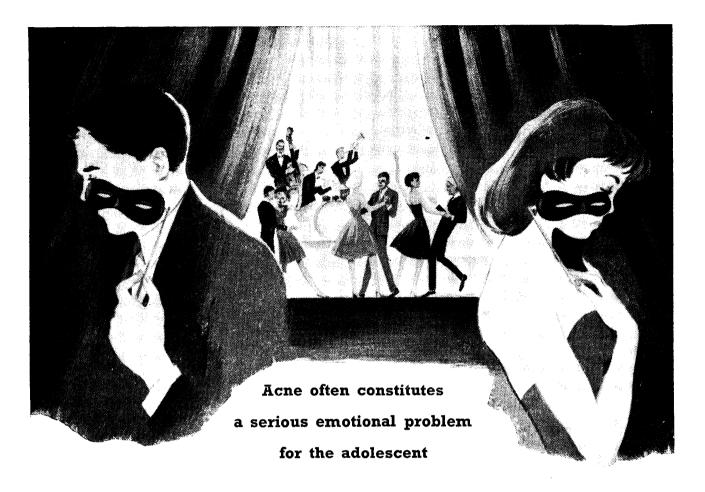

What physicians may expect of Aldactons

It is fully expected that Aldactone will change present medical concepts of therapeutic limitations in the management of oedema. Many patients living in a greater or lesser state of oedematous invalidism can now be oedemafree. To others, gravely ill, Aldactone will be life-saving.

Hypertension treated by guanethidine

The results are reported of a clinical trial of "Ismelin®" (Guanethidine) conducted at the Royal Infirmary, Sheffield, England.— 43 hypertensive patients were treated with Guanethidine by mouth for 4-24 weeks. 6 of these patients received small doses of hydrochlorothiazide daily in addition.-2 patients have shown resistance to the drug's action but in 33 cases the blood pressure is now considered to be adequately controlled.—The hypotensive effect of the drug is long-lasting and predominantly but not exclusively postural.— Symptoms of severe hypotension as well as side-effects were common early in the trial when the dosage employed was excessive, but toxic effects have not been encountered.-Side-effects ceased to be troublesome when treatment was started with 10 or 20 mg. Guanethidine daily, the dose being subsequently increased by not more than 10 mg. at weekly intervals.—Observation of the blood pressure response at 4 hours after a test dose of 30 mg. Guanethidine has proved useful in identifying patients who were hypersensitive to the drug's action.-Guanethidine is an effective hypotensive drug which reduces blood pressure by progressive stages. It is easy to administer and although dose requirements must be studied individually, treatment can be conducted on an out-patient basis.—The introduction of Guanethidine marks an appreciable advance in the treatment of hypertension.

ESSEN & DUSSELDORF

The treatment of severe forms of arterial hypertension with guanethidine

The authors report on trials with guanethidine, a drug which electively inhibits sympathetic innervaton, and describe the results obtained in 25 patients. Guanethidine proved superior in the following ways to the ganglion-blockers, hitherto the only medicaments that could be used for the treatment of severe forms of hypertension: 1. Longer duration of action. 2. Absence of side effects due to parasympathicolysis. 3. More potent effect on diastolic blood pressure. 4. More rapid closing of the gap between blood pressure in the standing position and blood pressure in the lying positon.—Complications that may arise are caused almost exclusively by excessive peripheral sympathicolysis which more or less parallels the hypotensive effect. Because of these difficulties, the use of quanethidine is restricted to severe forms of hypertension; it appears to be particularly suitable for the treatment of malignant hypertension in fairly young patients.

Dtsch. med. Wschr. 85 (1960), 1236 ff.

HEIDELBERG

Clinical results with guanethidine in the treatment of arterial hypertension

32 patients suffering from hypertension of varying degrees of severity were treated in hospital with guanethidine ("Ismelin®") for 2-8 weeks after a preliminary observation period of 14 days. Guanethidine was combined with Neprosol® in 4 cases and with reserpine in 10. Both the systolic and the diastolic blood pressure fell in every case. The blood-pressure levels were restored almost to normal even in patients with very severe hypertension. The heart rate diminished during treatment in 31 patients. The average effective maintenance dose was 40 mg. daily (the range being from 20—100 mg.). There were no advantages in combining guanethidine with Neprosol®, but combination with reserpine (0.5-1 mg. daily) proved most beneficial. The guanethidine dose could be reduced by one-third to one-half in such cases. As regards side effects, mild orthostatic manifestations frequently occurred at the onset of treatment, becoming more pronounced when the dose was raised too quickly. Where the treatment was consistently carried out, however, they decreased considerably or disappeared almost completely in all cases after some time-at the most, 8 weeks. Diarrhoea occurred in one case and impotence in another. No other side-effects or toxic manifestations were observed. Guanethidine is an extremely effective anti-hypertensive agent which, provided the dosage is carefully adjusted, marks a considerable step forward in the treatment of moderately severe and severe hypertension.

Dtsch. med. Wschr. 85 (1960), 1243 ff.

ZURICH

Clinical and experimental studies on the hypotensive effect of guanethidine

Administered orally (in average daily doses of 80 mg.) to 24 hypertensives, quanethidine produced an appreciable reduction in blood pressure, the systolic levels falling by 26% and the diastolic by 30%; the diastolic blood pressure dropped below 90 mm. Hg. in all cases. The effect of the drug set in after 3-5 days. Daily fluctuations were relatively slight, but postural hypotension occurred in 11 patients, especially in the morning. 9 patients complained of diarrhoea. A rise in non-protein nitrogen may occur in hypertensives with renal insufficiency. In 23 subjects the intravenous administration of guanethidine led within 2-5 minutes to an appreciable fall in blood pressure which was substantially more pronounced in the standing position than when the patient was sitting or lying. Hypertensives showed a more marked reduction in pressure. In cardiac catheterisation studies an appreciable decrease in peripheral resistance—the cardiac output remaining more or less constantwas observed in hypertensive patients tilted at an angle of approx. 45°; when the patients were brought back to the horizontal position, the blood pressure promptly returned to normal while the cardiac

output rose. Pressure and resistance in the pulmonary circulation did not show any change. As a rule, the results of the cold pressor test are slightly attenuated in both normal and hypertensive subjects following the intravenous administration of quanethidine. The effect of noradrenaline and hypertensine is unchanged following the intravenous administration of quanethidine; it was not possible to demonstrate a direct potentiation of the pressor reaction, as found in animal experiments. Simultaneous administration of quanethidine intravenously and hydrochlorothiazide, as compared with guanethidine alone, does not markedly enhance the fall in blood pressure in ^ the acute test: the hypotensive reaction, however, is appreciably lengthened thereby. Judging from our haemodynamic studies, the sympathetic inhibitor guanethidine behaves similarly to a ganglion-blocker as regards its circulatory effect. Guanethidine, however, has a more pronounced hypotensive effect and is at the same time considerably better tolerated (absence of parasympathicolytic sideeffects). Consequently, quanethidine is capable of largely replacing the ganglionblockers in the treatment of malignant and progressive essential hypertension. The practical handling of treatment in such cases will be rendered considerably easier as a result.

Dtsch. med. Wschr. 85 (1960), 1249 ff.

VIRGINIA

Effects of guanethidine on blood pressure, cardiac output and renal function

Guanethidine, a recently introduced hypotensive drug which probably inhibits release of nor-epinephrine from sympathetic nerve endings and which does not block autonomic ganglia or interfere with the parasympathetic nervous system, has proved effective in reducing blood pressure in 24 hypertensive patients treated for periods of up to eight months. The drug produces orthostatic hypotension and mild diarrhea frequently.—Reduction in renal blood flow and glomerular filtration rate accompanied use of the drug, especially when measurements were made in the semi-erect position. In no case did oliguria or progressive azotemia occur.—The fall in blood pressure accompanying administration of guanethidine is at least partly due to a reduction in cardiac output.—Though the hypotensive potency, long duration of action, and absence of parasympatholytic side-effects of guanethidine represent significant advantages of this drug over ganglionic blocking agents, more extensive experience will be required to accurately determine its effectiveness in the control of hypertensive disease.

Dtsch. med. Wschr. 85 (1960), 1258 ff.

BERNE

The effect of guanethidine on hypertension and renal function in hospitalized and ambulant patients

The effect of guanethidine (Ismelin) on blood pressure and renal function (11 patients) was studied in 16 hospitalized and 14 ambulant patients with hypertension of varying degrees of severity. 1. Guanethidine appeared to reduce the blood pressure more effectively in hospitalized than in ambulant patients. The difference between the fall in blood pressure in the standing and lying positions was more pronounced in the hospitalized patients. There was no correlation between minimal effective dose and severity of the hypertension. Orthostatic disorders and diarrhoea occurred side-effects: as 2. Guanethidine was administered in combination with hydrochlorothiazide for over 5 months in one case. No loss of effect (tolerance) occurred during this period. Like mecamylamine (ganglion-blocker), guanethidine lowered the glomerular filtration rate only a little more than the renal plasma flow. The filtration fraction remained practically constant. Urinary flow likewise decreased appreciably in response to quanethidine. 4. No clear-cut correlation could be demonstrated between the minimal effective dose of guanethidine and the glomerular filtrate. Nevertheless, where the glomerular filtration was reduced (below 60 ml./min.), even small doses (less than 425 mg./10 days) seemed to be effective. Where the glomerular filtration

exceeded 90 ml./min., larger doses were required to ensure an effective reduction in blood pressure.

Dtsch. med. Wschr. 85 (1960), 1263 ff.

SIENĄ

The effect of long-term guanethidine medication on the renal function of hypertensive patients

A comparative study of renal function before and during long-term treatment with quanethidine was carried out in 12 patients with severe hypertension.—In all 12 patients the greatly elevated mean blood pressure levels were lowered by guanethidine administered in daily doses of 40-100 mg., the reduction in blood pressure being enhanced by standing.— All the patients were already suffering from renal damage prior to therapy. During guanethidine medication renal plasma flow and glomerular filtrate decreased in both the lying and standing positions, as compared with the initial values. The filtration fraction was not substantially altered.—Along with the reduction in blood pressure, a clear-cut decrease in renal excretion of sodium, potassium and water was observed. However, no appreciable change in serum electrolytes (sodium, potassium) or B.U.N. which could be ascribed to the treatment was found.—The significance of these observations is discussed in conjunction with the available literature.

Dtsch. med. Wschr. 85 (1960), 1271 ff.

ZURICH

The effect of guanethidine on the blood pressure of normotensive subjects after physical exertion

In 11 human subjects with no circulatory disease guanethidine, following a single intramuscular injection, led in most cases to a slight fall in blood pressure in the lying position. Following exertion, the rise in pressure was less pronounced than that measured prior to the intramuscular injection. The reaction differed greatly from one individual to another. A bradycardic effect was observed in two cases. In one patient, a woman with renal hypertension who received altogether 210 mg. guanethidine, exertion produced a paradoxical effect on the blood pressure which dropped still further below the resting level. The authors discuss the mechanisms of blood pressure reduction.

Dtsch. med. Wschr. 85 (1960), 1275 ff.

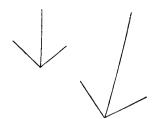

FREIBURG

Acute and prolonged effects of guanethidine on renal haemodynamics and on the water and electrolyte balance in normal subjects

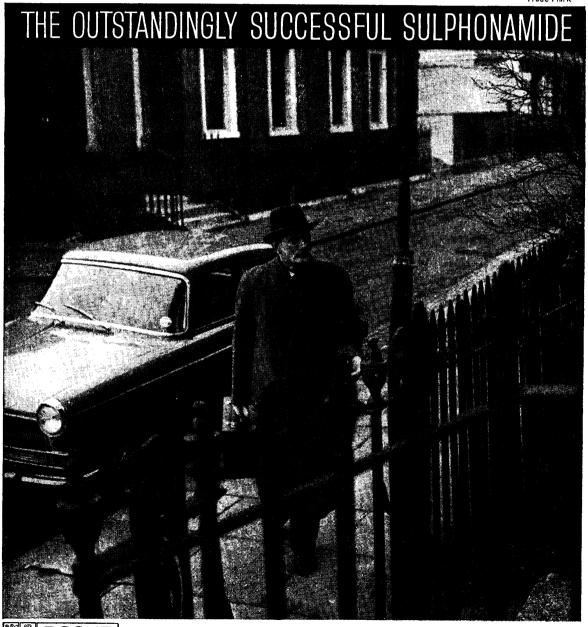

The acute and protracted effect of guan-(2[octahydro-1-azocinyl]-ethylguanidine-sulphate) on renal haemodynamics and water and electrolyte metabolism was studied in a total of 15 adults who had no disorders of water and electrolyte balance or of renal, cardiac, or circulatory function. Immediately following intravenous administration of 20 mg, guanethidine, urinary flow (P<0.01), inulin clear-(P < 0.01), and PAH clearance (P<0.001) decreased in comparison with the values recorded prior to the test. These changes were connected with renal vasoconstriction (primarily in the afferent arterioles). At the same time, renal excretion of sodium (P<0.001), potassium (P<0.01), and calcium (P<0.01) decreased owing to the reduction in glomerular filtrate and increased tubular reabsorption. The serum concentrations of these electrolytes the physiologically active fraction of the extracellular fluid, and the mean arterial blood pressure did not change during this period. -Following daily oral administration of 10 mg. guanethidine for 5-7 days PAH clearance increased appreciably (P<0.02). Total vascular resistance in the kidneys decreased by about 10%. Inulin clearance, renal electrolyte excretion, blood pressure, and the physiologically active fraction of the extracellular fluid showed no change in comparison with control values. The author discusses the question of the extent to which sympathetic innervation of the kidney normally influences renal vasoconstrictor tone.

For the relief of osteo-arthritic pain

Valterin's fifty per cent longer action makes it most suitable for long-term treatment. Because there is no interruption of analysis between recommended doses patients' sleep is not disturbed by a recurrence of pain. No tinnitus, constipation or blood dyscrasies have resulted from prolonged treatment.

A recent investigation calls Valtorin a most useful addition to the limited number of preparations that may be used for long periods to relieve pain caused by osteo-arthritis.

'Nilergex' in Dermatology

"a valuable antihistaminic particularly suitable for ambulant therapy"*

'Nilergex', the potent antihistaminic, is especially useful in controlling dermatoses of an allergic nature. The opinion quoted above was expressed in a recent report following an extensive study of its use for the treatment of these conditions in both children and adults. For papular urticaria in particular, 'Nilergex' was considered to be the most effective remedy yet tried. It gave more consistently beneficial results than any other antihistaminic or other treatment. Furthermore, side-effects were few and were observed only with high dosage.

"And the doctor gave me some delicious medicine..."

That's all she knew of the therapy just a daily dose of a pleasant, easy-to-take medicine. She couldn't know that her fast recovery was due to her doctor's prompt action in prescribing Lederkyn Acetyl Suspension. The infection was brought under control with the first dose, and maintained adequate serum levels of the drug for the rest of the course with one dose a day. Doctors today prefer the simplicity of Lederkyn Acetyl Suspension for treating infections in children—its delicious cherry flavour makes 'medicine time' a pleasure for the child and a simple matter for the parents.

'OTOSPORIN'clears infected ears

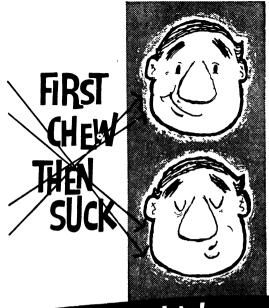

The modern method of treatment in otitis externa, chronic suppurative otitis media, and infected mastoid cavities, is 'Otosporin' brand Drops.

'Otosporin' is an aqueous suspension containing both neomycin and polymyxin B sulphate which are together effective against practically all the bacteria found in ear infections.
They are unlikely to induce bacterial resistance or skin sensitisation, and neither of them gives rise to cross-resistance or cross-sensitisation to penicillin and other antibiotics. Their effectiveness is visibly enhanced by the hydrocortisone in 'Otosporin'; this, by reducing inflammation, not only relieves pain, but provides greater access for the antibiotics

Almacarb

Almacarb tablets are prepared from an aluminium hydroxide-magnesium carbonate co-dried gel made by an entirely new process. (Brit.Pat. 812503) Aluminium hydroxide gel has been used for some years as an antacid in suspension, but until the introduction of Almacarb no means had been discovered by which its full acid-neutralising capacity could be retained through the process of drying and tabletting. In Almacarb the full antacid potential is retained and its action is rapid and sustained.

Almacarb—dosage. One tablet to be chewed as an initial dose, and thereafter one tablet to be sucked slowly at frequent intervals.

Almacarb is presented as peppermint-flavoured tablets, each containing 0.375 g. of aluminium

Have you received your copy of

MODERN CONTRACEPTIVE TECHNIQUE?

This practical manual on contraception has already proved invaluable to many doctors in advising their patients. It presents a concise and compact survey of methods commonly used, together with notes on methods which have medical approval, and also on others which are medically contra-indicated. If you have not yet received a copy, you are invited to write for one now.

The case against 'natural' methods

Medical opinion generally agrees that the practice of so-called "natural" methods of contraception (coitus interruptus, coitus reservatus, etc.) can have an adverse effect on physical and mental health. One of the principal reasons why these unreliable methods are used is the slight loss of sensitivity experienced with protectives (condoms).

This problem has now been almost entirely overcome by the introduction of Durex Gossamer, a new kind of lubricated protective. Durex Gossamer, is treated with Sensitol, "a non-wet, non-messy" lubricant which substantially increases the level of sensitivity. Samples of Durex Gossamer protectives on request.

Allergic conditions

A more potent antihistaminic—rapid, strong, and prolonged in its action... with no serious side-effects

Of the many antihistamine compounds available today, Daneral is exceptional for its strong, rapid, and prolonged action. Even small doses are sufficient to counteract the histamine effects that occur in antigenantibody reaction. Daneral also has a strong antispasmodic action; it also reduces capillary permeability.

It is exceptionally free of toxic side-reactions and has no pronounced action on blood-pressure or vascular resistance.

Indications: Extensive clinical trials have established the effectiveness of Daneral in most allergic conditions. It also has value in many conditions that have no clear allergic origin or tissue reaction.

In hay fever and vaso-motor rhinitis Daneral is especially effective. In dermatology it is used in urticaria and angioneurotic oedema; serum reactions; drug allergy; pruritus. In general medicine bronchial asthma and cardiac asthma are helped by Daneral.

Eczema (INFECTIVE)

Acute Infective Eczema before treatment

After 5 days' treatment (Cambison 0.5% twice a day)

Steroid ointments are frequently successful in varieties of eczema that have resisted other therapy

They have the advantage of being anti-allergic, anti-inflammatory and antipruritic. Even severe itching is usually relieved in a few hours, and hyperaemia, swelling, and exudation reduced during the first day of treatment.

Cambison ointment combines the steroid prednisolone with a two-fold protection against infection. Not only does it include the antibiotic neomycin, which is highly effective against staphylococci and streptococci, but also a quinolylurea compound with chemotherapeutic action particularly directed against gram-positive organisms. This combination widens the antimicrobial spectrum and enhances the antibacterial effect.

Cambison is indicated in cases of acute and chronic eczema and dermatitis, particularly where infection is present or threatened.

Eczema (CHRONIC)

Chronic exudative eczema on back of the left hand. Severe itching and weeping.

Result after 2 days of treatment.

New ointment combines advantages of the corticosteroids with traditional ichthammol type therapy

In chronic dermatoses, steroid ointments alone do not always effect radical cures.

Tumeson (Tumenol Prednisolone Ointment) combines the advantages of the corticosteroids with more traditional therapy.

It has two components:-

 $\it Prednisolone~0.25\%$, with its well-known anti-inflammatory and anti-allergio properties.

Tumenol Ammonium, a bituminous shale tar-oil similar to ichthammol, which is widely used in sub-acute and chronic skin conditions. As well as having an anti-inflammatory and antipruritic effect, it is a vasoconstricting agent with fungicidal and bacteriocidal properties.

Where a rapid, pronounced and sustained antipruritic and anti-eczematous action is called for, Tumeson is especially useful.

WHAT ABOUT A BOUT OF SEA-FITNESS FOR SIR GEORGE?

Psst! Doctor! Ever heard about the sea air south of Madeira and round the Cape? In the South Atlantic it's summer during our winter. Sunshine and clear skies. (More observatories per million square miles in South Africa than anywhere in the world. Fact.) Ever heard of the Union-Castle liners which leave Southampton for South Africa every Thursday?

They sail into sunshine and smooth seas p.d.q. And there's some pretty spectacular fitness on display among passengers by the end of the voyages. Ever heard of this colossal new ship that's just been built for Union-Castle's mailship run to South Africa? The Windsor Castle. Well, what's special about her? She's got a complete Health Spa on board, for passengers who want to change fitness to superfitness.

re's some by

No, seriously... on the 'Windsor Castle,' for the first time in the history of British passenger shipping, there is a complete Health Spa, where passengers can take positive steps towards superfitness. A medical man is in charge, and he will welcome any communication from a passenger's family doctor. He can give advice for courses of health-therapy during the voyage, a final check-up at the end of the voyage, and a written report to the passenger's doctor at home.

The 'Windsor Castle' Spa is intended for passengers who have allowed their standard of fitness to get below par, and especially those who carry too much weight. The Spa is equipped to provide treatment also for people who may have rheumatic conditions, gout or bronchitis. It could be of value to men suffering from ailments encouraged by the strenuous business life of today, such as high blood pressure, coronary heart disease or duodenal ulcer. And it may well be beneficial to others recuperating after an illness or an operation.

The 'Windsor Castle' Health Spa will consist of:

- 1. Diagnostic Unit with facilities for full clinical examination, with X-ray and electrocardiograph. Certain laboratory work can also be carried out, including prothrombin estimations.
- 2. Treatment Centre, divided into:
- a) Hydrotherapy including Sauna (Finnish Dry Heat Bath) Vichy Douche, aerated bath and needle bath.
- b) Physiotherapy including expert massage, and also treatment by faradism, short wave diathermy and wax bath.

Physiotherapist. A physiotherapist is being employed, who is fully trained in hydro- and physiotherapy and who has full knowledge of exercises suitable for chronic bronchitis or convalescent cases.

Diet. Advice on eating and drinking will be given by the doctor in charge of the Clinic. When necessary special diet, for reducing or building up, will be provided.

Notification of the Medical Profession.

The doctor of the Clinic wishes to cooperate with the doctors of passengers who are travelling, and will be pleased to continue prescribed treatments, if a letter is sent to the Union-Castle Medical Department previous to sailing. The passenger's own doctor will also be notified regarding any treatment given on the ship.

The Health Spa on the 'Windsor Castle' will, of course, be in addition to the excellent hospital and general medical facilities. These are provided on all Union-Castle ships. In the treatments in the Spa the emphasis will be on positive health and prevention of illness, and passengers would be encouraged to go there with a view to having guidance on raising their general level of fitness.

Any enquiries may be addressed to the Chief Medical Officer, the UNION-CASTLE Mail Steamship Company Limited, Chief Passenger Office, Rotherwick House, 19/21 Old Bond Street, London, W.1. He will send you a copy of the leaflet "The Windsor Castle Spa", which amplifies the information above, and has many more Savignac (see above) drawings in it.

TO guard against toothache in Sussex it L used to be believed that you had always to put on your right stocking, and the right leg of your breeches, before the left. In Shropshire, however, exactly the opposite was believed.

We are not bound by such beliefs. Now we use more rational and uniform methods of keeping our teeth, and keeping them healthy. We know, for one thing, that the earlier we start our children in good dental habits—by teaching them the CDEF rule for good teeth—the more promise we give them of healthy teeth both now and in adult life.

CLEANING Often and thorough, to remove food particles that can cause decay. After each meal if possible.

DENTIST Regular visits to catch any trouble

EXERCISE Lots of chewing-apples, celery, chewing gum, raw vegetables. Helps to clean teeth, promotes flow of saliva (nature's mouthwash); stimulates gums, aids proper jaw development.

FOOD Plenty of milk, butter, cheese and eggs: rich in minerals and vitamins for strong teeth and healthy gums.

London Hospital Catgut in non-splintering 'spot' tubes

Speed is a matter of urgency in the Operating Theatre—which is why the London Hospital 'spot' tubes are so popular. Just a slight pressure, and instantly the tube breaks cleanly at the 'spot' position, and the sterilised suture is ready for use. These are the advantages:

- The spot indicates the exact breaking point of the tube.
- If the thumbs are placed about $\frac{3}{4}$ " apart, exactly opposite the spot, the tube breaks cleanly and easily under slight pressure.
- No filing is needed, no instruments required, no need to hold the tube in a swab.
- There are no dangerous glass splinters.
