VENTOLIN IN CHRONIC BRONCHITIS

THE MOST EXTENSIVELY PRESCRIBED BRONCHODILATOR

Ventolin (salbutamol BP) is currently the most extensively prescribed bronchodilator in chronic bronchitis. Ventolin has a high degree of selectivity for β_2 -receptors. This means lack of adverse cardiovascular effects — an important consideration in middle-aged and elderly chronic bronchitics. Whenever reversible bronchospasm can be demonstrated, for example, by measuring Peak Expiratory Flow, then the patient is likely to benefit from the routine administration of Ventolin; likely to be able to continue working; likely to suffer fewer disabling bouts of breathlessness.

VENTOLIN IS THE THERAPY OF CHOICE

Ventolin Inhaler — provides a selective route of administration using minimal doses of salbutamol delivered direct to the site of action and, having a long duration of action, is suitable for routine use.

Ventolin Tablets 2mg and 4mg — may be prescribed whenever oral therapy is preferred.

Ventolin Syrup — is a useful alternative for elderly patients.

Ventolin Spandets — offer a sustained duration of action.

Ventolin Inhaler contains salbutamol BP. All oral preparations of Ventolin contain salbutamol sulphate BP.

Fibre in the Diet: is it only a precaution against constipation?

The medical profession has long accepted fibre in the diet as a prophylactic and therapeutic measure against constipation. But fibre—or lack of it—is now a key factor in much current thinking on other pathological states.

A number of leading gastroenterologists believe that those diets with a low-fibre content, which induce constipation, may also eventually lead to other diseases: diverticulosis, cancer of the colon, haemorrhoids in pregnancy and ischaemic heart disease.

Certainly more evidence will be needed to support their hypotheses before they can be regarded as conclusive, but it is now widely accepted by those who subscribe to them, that a daily intake of 2–3 grammes of cereal fibre is a reasonable precaution.

Kellogg's All-Bran provides dietary fibre in palatable form; it can be enjoyed as a breakfast cereal or as a cooking ingredient; it is not habit forming; and a 1–2 oz. serving a day will raise the dietary fibre intake to a satisfactory level and can safely be prescribed for the treatment of constipation for those with a low-residue diet and as an aid to the digestion of any normal person.

If you would like further details, please send for Kellogg's 'Significance of Fibre in the Diet'.

Its sections include: 'The Composition and Milling of Wheat'; 'Processing and Composition and Nutritive Value of Kellogg's Products'; 'Diet and Disease' and a full bibliography.

Slimming with Bread

Some typical slimmers' questions answered by

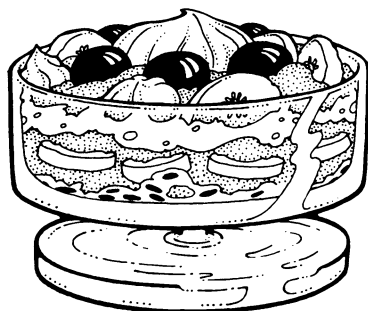

Derek Miller

Lecturer in Nutrition at London University

1. Should I give up bread completely?

"A slimming diet certainly may contain bread. In fact, it's a convenient method of ensuring that a diet contains an adequate supply of most nutrients, since bread provides an important quantity of protein, vitamins, and minerals. If you give up bread, you will need to get these from other more expensive foods. It's also good training for maintaining weight after your target weight is achieved; because one learns the calorie value of ordinary foods, rather than knowing only about so-called 'slimming' foods which you don't intend to use for the rest of your life."

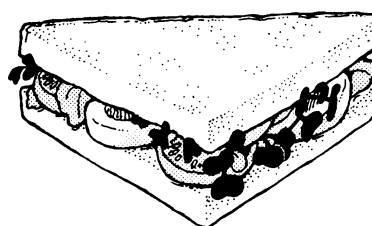

2. Must I cut out all high-calorie foods?

"It's necessary to reduce your total calorie intake. For many people, it's easier to cut down on high calorie foods like fat which, incidentally, contain more than 3 times the number of calories in bread on an ounce-for-ounce basis. Really low-calorie foods (e.g. lettuce and tomatoes) are clearly an advantage and can be used as sandwich fillings."

3. What's the best way to avoid an expensive slimming diet?

"Many slimming diets are expensive, some very expensive. There's no need for this. If you're going to eat less food, diets should be cheaper than normal. The easiest thing to do is to stick to ordinary foods and learn their calorie values. Generally it is more sensible to cut down on 'empty calories', i.e. foods which contain little or no nutrients, such as sugar confectionery; but for those with a sweet tooth, small indulgences can be included, so long as they are calorie-counted."

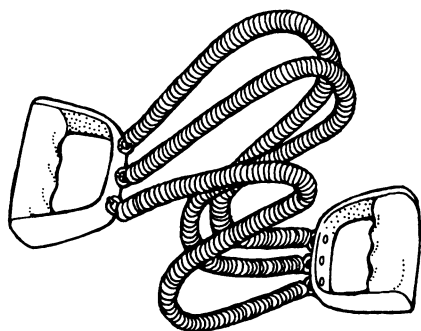

4. Are regular sandwich lunches a bad thing on their own?

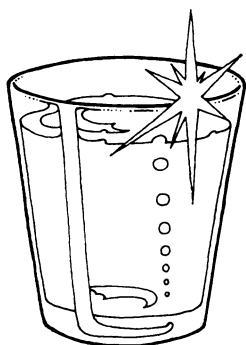

"It's a common fallacy that hot meals are essential for good nutrition. But this is not so. Most sandwich lunches are highly nutritious, but slimmers should avoid high calorie fillings."

5. How much help is exercise, and what kinds help most?

"The energy cost of exercise is disappointingly small. To lose weight by exercise alone is almost impossible unless you change your occupation and become a coal miner or lumberjack."

A weekend game of golf helps very little. On the other hand, exercise may help the successful slimmer to improve her shape by increasing muscle tone and reducing flab. The exercise of particular muscle groups can improve measurements—but has little effect on the weight."

6. Is it true that you should avoid liquid, even water, during a meal?

"Some charlatan diets restrict fluid intake with the suggestion that obesity is due to too much body water rather than too much fat. This is nonsense. The body normally controls its fluid content very carefully and, if it does not, your problem is more serious than being overweight. Such cases are rare except in famine—and they require medical attention."

'Slim with Sense' tells you about the essential foods, the quantities to eat, the foods to avoid at all costs, and the foods which can be consumed in large quantities. It also tells how to diet sensibly without giving up bread.

If you would like a free copy of 'Slim with Sense' just send a stamped self-addressed envelope (measuring not less than 9" x 4") to Dept. I, The Flour Advisory Bureau, 21 Arlington Street, London, SW1A 1RN. (Enquiries from UK residents only).

This is what we call practising medicine.

A career in Naval medicine can be a rewarding experience. Opportunities to specialise abound. And perhaps above all else, there is an immense satisfaction to be gained from the wide variety of work you will be involved in.

At sea, for instance, you could be anywhere from the Mediterranean to the Pacific Ocean. Looking after the health and well being of the company of a modern warship.

And though you could spend as long as the first eighteen months of your five year Short Service Commission on board different ships, you need have no fear of losing contact with mainstream medicine. For no matter where you are, you will be kept informed of current medical opinion.

After this, the choice is yours. Post graduate medical training and a career in the clinical disciplines at one of our naval district general hospitals. Haslar or Plymouth, for instance, with their wide spectrum of clinical material drawn from naval personnel, their dependants and the local civilian population as well. There are also naval hospitals in Malta, Gibraltar and Mauritius, with opportunities for exchange appointments elsewhere.

Or you might prefer occupational medicine in our research orientated naval dockyards. Aviation medicine with its accent on rotary wing support of the Fleet. And for those with an administrative turn of mind, community medicine.

Royal Naval expertise in maritime medicine is recognised world wide and research into underwater medicine, nuclear medicine and the closed submarine environment is centred at the Institute of Naval Medicine at Alverstoke.

Naval general practice in well staffed and equipped medical centres extend as far afield as Hong Kong and Singapore. And new training schemes are now under way in the United Kingdom.

Should you be moved or sent abroad at any time, all expenses will be paid by us. We will help you with accommodation (at very reasonable rents) and provide allowances for the education of your children, if you have a family.

If you enter the Royal Navy immediately after registration you will be given the rank of Surgeon Lieutenant and a salary of £4,776, rising to £4,929 after four years.

On the other hand, if you are older (up to the age of forty) and more experienced, we can offer you a number of opportunities in general practice and the specialities. And, depending on your post-registration experience, you could enter as a Surgeon Lieutenant Commander at a salary of £5,780, rising to £6,375 after five years.

Then, at the end of your five year Short Service Commission you could leave with a tax free gratuity of £3,000.

But if it is mutually agreeable, you could apply for a Full Career Commission or a 16 year pensionable commission. The choice is yours.

In the meantime if you would like further information, write giving details of your age and qualifications to Surgeon Commander L.C. Banks, R.N., (724 BU 21) Department of the Medical Director General (Naval), Empress State Building, Fulham, London SW6.

Infectious diseases remain as much a medical challenge as ever, and the articles collected in book form under the title A New Look at Infectious Diseases covers many aspects of diagnosis and treatment. The widespread use of immunization, with its occasional hazards, the use of newer antibiotics, and increased risk of spread by travel are all dealt with, as well as the problems of diagnosis produced by present day doctors' unfamiliarity with many diseases which were formerly so common and widespread.

Trasicor®

"...there are good reasons for believing that oxprenolol (Trasicor) should become an integral part of all antihypertensive therapy."¹

Highly Effective

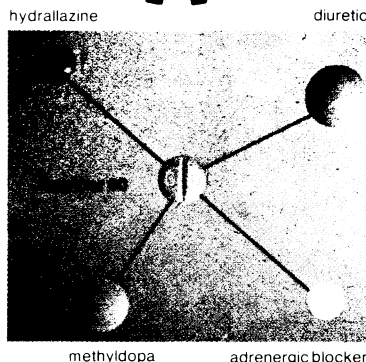

Numerous studies²⁻⁶ have shown that Trasicor, particularly in combination with a diuretic, reduces diastolic BP to near normal levels with high patient acceptability. This is important because it is the quality of control rather than the initial severity of hypertension which influences the prognosis.⁷

No Postural Hypotension

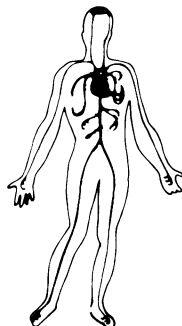

Trasicor gives effective BP control without exercise or postural hypotension⁴ and with 'strikingly few side effects'.⁸

Suitable in any Combination

Trasicor can be combined successfully with other antihypertensive agents such as diuretics (e.g. Navidrex K), hydralazine, adrenergic blockers (e.g. Ismelin) and methyl dopa.

Cardioprotective

A three-year prospective study suggests that beta-blockers significantly reduce the risk of myocardial infarction and sudden death in IHD patients, with or without hypertension.⁹

Hypovase

a unique mode of action

Induces peripheral vasodilatation without involvement of the sympathetic nervous system. It produces a direct, specific relaxation of arteriolar smooth muscle... and because this action is specific, there is no venous pooling, no adverse effects on cardiac or renal mechanisms.

Smooth, gradual lowering of blood pressure . . . lying and standing . . . evident after the second week in the majority of patients¹

25% of responders showed some response after the first week of treatment, increasing to over 61% by the second week. Most of the remainder showed a response by the fourth week. The maximum response was usually evident in four to six weeks in mild hypertension . . . within eight weeks in moderate to severe disease.

Results of treatment with Hypovase over 8 weeks — 101 patients¹

In this study over 50% of patients had hypertension of moderate degree or greater.

The mean reduction of blood pressure achieved was 15/13 mm. Hg. in the lying position, 20/16 mm. Hg. in the standing position.

Other clinical observations

"The hypotensive effect of prazosin [Hypovase] is at least equal to or somewhat better than that of methyldopa and without the side effects of the latter."²

In 34 patients whose control with Hypovase alone left room for improvement, the addition of a thiazide secured a further response; the quality of control finally achieved being classified as normotensive in 4, good in 12, and satisfactory in 9.³

In a clinical evaluation involving over 1,000 patients treated for periods varying from a few months to more than three years, tolerance to the antihypertensive effect of Hypovase was not observed.⁴

Before long-term treatment becomes a long-term problem

Hypovase

For the newly diagnosed patient

Hypovase, alone or in combination, may be used as the initial treatment. Its action is smooth and gradual... its side effects minimal.

For the patient poorly controlled on other agents

Because Hypovase reduces blood pressure by a unique mode of action—direct, specific relaxation of arteriolar smooth muscle—it may often prove effective where other agents have failed.

For the patient troubled by the side effects of other agents

Treatment with Hypovase is characterized by a low incidence of troublesome side effects. Treatment is rarely compromised by depression, loss of libido, impotence, ejaculatory failure, excessive sedation, nocturia, or electrolyte imbalance.

For the hypertensive patient with impaired cardiac or renal function

Hypovase offers effective control without further taxing vital organs already under stress.

Hypovase

A low incidence of troublesome side-effects

"In a group of 14 hypertensive patients, a 10-week course of treatment with prazosin [Hypovase]... produced a significant reduction in mean blood pressure without serious side effects."⁵

⁵*Brit. med. J.* 1974, 2, 298-300.

"Both short- and long-term usage has shown prazosin hydrochloride [Hypovase] to have a particularly bland side-effect profile and freedom from significant organ toxicity."⁴

It is recommended that the starting dose be given with food, preferably with the evening meal, at least two or three hours before retiring.

The majority of patients who receive Hypovase at the recommended dose will not experience troublesome orthostatic effects. A small percentage of patients during initial treatment respond more rapidly and to a greater extent than the majority, and show an exaggerated response resulting in acute symptoms related to hypotension. In almost all cases these responses occur with the initial doses and are self-limiting.

Hypovase reduces peripheral resistance without significantly affecting the cardiac index or heart rate⁶

THE LIQUORICE STORY

Part I

The medical properties of liquorice were recognised as early as the 7th Century B.C. References to the virtues of the plants are recorded on the Royal Assyrian Tablet of that era, as well as on the magical papyri of Ancient Egypt. Mention is also found in early Chinese medical books and in the recorded sayings of Brahma of India. In the 3rd Century B.C. liquorice was used by Greek physicians as a cure for asthma and dry coughs, as well as for other general troubles of the chest. It was also mixed with honey and used to heal wounds. Another attribute of liquorice is for quenching thirst when sucked. It is said that the Scythians, with this and Mare's milk cheese, can survive for 11 to 12 days without drinking. It is also suggested that its value in keeping the body fit made the roots an indispensable part of the rations in the Roman Legion. In Medieval England there are a number of references to the use of liquorice, which suggest it was in general use, but it is unsure whether it was imported or grown on home soil. The first reference to liquorice grown in England is in the mid 16th Century. It was reported to have been brought from abroad to Pontefract by the Black Friars in 1562. Attempts were made to cultivate liquorice in the Midlands and in the South, which proved unsuccessful. However, the soil around Pontefract, Yorks, seemed to be ideal and it most closely resembled its natural habitat in the Middle East. It was cultivated as a market garden crop to produce the famous Pontefract Cakes, which were originally used for medicinal purposes and latterly as confectionery. It is ironical that the development of the Confectionery Industry, which increased the demand for liquorice, forced the manufacturers to import cheaper and inferior root. Since then the growing of liquorice has declined considerably, and although it was still being grown in 1952, it has now disappeared from Pontefract.

In the next instalment we will detail many interesting facts and novel uses of liquorice, and also explain why the liquorice content in Caved-(S) does not cause fluid retention or any of the side effects normally associated with liquorice.

WE ARE TWO ENERGETIC, experienced medical men in our early forties, sharing a Private Practice in the Island of Jersey, for which we are now seeking a third partner. He must be younger than us, married with not too many children. It is the essence of our partnership that our patients, whatever their social status, should be treated strictly according to their medical needs, and should be regarded as friends. We believe that a partner with some capital will be able to commit himself to his work more undistractedly than one without, and that the practice will benefit both practically and personally if all three partners have some knowledge of accountancy and business methods. Jersey is basically a non-political community, conservation-minded in its social habits. We want a partner who is not fanatical about either politics or religion, is conformist (what some might now call old-fashioned) in physical appearance and dress, and is preferably of public school education. In our view the happiest and most successful practice is that in which all the partners share the rota equally, and establish a close and congenial relationship with each other, based on tolerance, and a sense of humour. Jersey is ideal for a man with an outdoor hobby as a relaxation. We work in excess of a forty hour week and are financially justly rewarded. Full practice details sent to suitable applicants. Box 462 BMJ. 10

APPOINTMENTS

Applicants for medical appointments are advised to check whether the post advertised is included in the Important Notice and to scrutinize carefully the remuneration and terms of service offered. Any member who is in doubt about these terms in relation to B.M.A. agreements should consult the Secretary of the Association.

Advertisers are reminded that the Race Relations Board insists that no descriptive term implying racial, national, or ethnic characteristics may be used in any advertisement. Further, readers are advised not to apply for any appointment which discriminates between applicants on grounds of creed or sex.

HOSPITAL APPOINTMENTS

Applicants should state name, address, age, nationality, and qualifications, and enclose (unless otherwise specified) one copy of each of three recent testimonials, with a short statement of experience and appointments held. Applications should be sent at once if no closing date is given: Canvassing disqualifies (Statutory Instrument, 1974, No. 361).

All National Health Service hospital appointments are in accordance with the Terms and Conditions of Service of Hospital Medical Staff.

Further details concerning standards of residential accommodation, telephone charges, removal allowances, study leave and other matters should be obtained from the Hospital Secretary; or by B.M.A. members from the Secretary, British Medical Association.

In particular, they will find full details of facilities provided in most hospitals in the United Kingdom in the current edition of the Hospital Gazetteer. If such details are not included members are advised to consult the Secretary of the B.M.A.

Applicants requiring hospital married accommodation are strongly advised to obtain, prior to interview, clarification in writing from the employing authority as to whether such accommodation will be available on appointment.

No advertisement may stipulate that a non-resident must live less than 10 miles from a hospital. Advertisements for post-registration house officers, senior house officers and registrars should state clearly whether the post is resident, i.e. compulsorily resident.

In all advertisements grade should be clearly indicated. Normally a consultant vacancy must be advertised as (a) part-time with the number of sessions clearly stated, or (b) whole-time with the option of maximum part-time.

In the view of the B.M.A., an advertiser should not insist on possession of English higher qualifications in preference to Scottish or Irish qualifications (or vice versa).

Fast Asleep

Dalmane gets patients to sleep in less than half the time.¹ Reduction in sleep latency has been observed in the home,¹ and the hospital,² as well as the sleep laboratory^{1,3} where objective studies have consistently confirmed the patients' subjective assessments.

Add to this a less disturbed night^{1,4} with Dalmane and you have a powerful treatment for insomnia, remarkably free from the problems of a barbiturate.^{5,6}
