

When pain is severe enough to warrant an injection...

Even when a patient is in severe pain you may have reservations about injecting an opiate. You have to consider the drawbacks as well as the benefits. You may get the strong analgesia you do want, but you're likely to get side-effects you don't want. Nausea, vomiting, smooth muscle effects and respiratory depression, to say nothing of abuse liability and all the trouble of M.D.A. restrictions.

The alternative is Fortral injectable. With Fortral, the disadvantages are unlikely to be of the same degree as those of the opiates. And, of course, with Fortral, there are no M.D.A. restrictions. Fortral means not only relief from severe pain for your patient, but also relief from the disadvantages usually associated with the opiates.

FORTRAL INJECTION

disadvantages of the opiates

Fortral injection is supplied in ampoules of 1 & 2 ml containing 30 mg pentazocine base per ml as the lactate.

Fortral is a registered trade mark.

WINTHROP

Are you using your loaf?

Consider a few simple facts

Bread is a valuable source of protein, calcium, iron, the B Vitamins (Niacin and Thiamin) and energy.

Bread supplies, in the average daily diet in Great Britain, 15.8% of the protein, 13.4% of the calcium, 18.8% of the iron, 13.5% of the niacin, 22.3% of the thiamin and 14.5% of the energy according to the government's latest published National Food Survey (1974).

All this from a food which, in the past, has largely been thought of as a 'filler'.

100 grams of white bread (28oz loaf) provides 7.8g protein, 92mg calcium, 1.8mg iron, 0.18mg thiamin, 1.7mg niacin and 243 calories.

Compared with cheese, milk, eggs, meat, fish, potatoes and butter, bread is the housewife's bargain protein.

In Great Britain a 28oz standard loaf provides 61.6 grams of protein and costs about 18p. The same amount of money will buy (July 1976) 6.3oz cheddar cheese (45.4g protein), 6.3 standard eggs (43.2g), 2.1 pints of milk (37.8g), 4.8oz stewing beef (26.4g), 4.8oz fresh cod (24.5g), 3lb new potatoes (24g), 7oz butter (0.7g).

This, from a food which, all too often, the housewife thinks of as a mere accompaniment to a more 'important' food.

Prices based on Department of Prices and Consumer Protection information, and local enquiries. Source of nutritional value: 'The Composition of Foods' by R. A. McCance and E. M. Widdowson - H.M.S.O. 1967.

The protein in bread is a valuable part of your diet.

A common belief is that the protein in bread is not really valuable, especially in contrast to animal protein.

Most people in the U.K. derive their protein from a mixture of animal and vegetable sources, and seldom eat one type of protein on its own. And, says modern nutritional knowledge, this is just as it should be because any relative shortage of individual essential amino acids in bread's protein is more than made good by an abundance in the animal protein. If you get a reasonable proportion of your protein from bread and a reasonable proportion from animal sources (as for instance, when you eat a ploughman's lunch of bread and cheese, or an egg on toast or a meat sandwich), you get a combination which is just as good and effective as most animal proteins alone.

Bread is an important part of any weight-watchers diet

Usually the first thing a slimmer 'elbows' from his or her diet is bread. The popular belief is that bread provides little real value in the diet and that it is highly fattening. Its nutritional value has already been made clear above. In calories 1oz of bread provides 69 calories compared with 226 calories from 1oz of butter, 120 calories from 1oz of cheddar cheese and 40 calories from 1oz of fried cod. Bread comes out reasonably well in the scorecard, being neither high nor low, and much the same as lean beef (64 calories per ounce). Yet lean beef is usually put high on a slimmer's list of priorities.

This is just another example of how the real facts about bread differ from the commonly-held beliefs.

Bread, more than most other foods, suffers from old concepts which do not stand up to new facts.

Shouldn't you use your loaf - and help guide other people to use theirs?

Bread is still the best food value in Britain

Old typewriters never die. They end up in reception

No self respecting reception should have to put up with a tatty typewriter. Because a machine that looks old and tired types that way too.

The answer? Invest in a fast, reliable, streamlined Adler, and you'll be doing a great job for your practice.

By getting a smart machine that turns out clean professional work. The Gabriele 5000 electric is an example. About half the weight and cost of big electrics, it shares many of their features – 5 repeat keys, 3 repeat function keys, full tabulator and a half space key.

For the receptionist who spends a lot of time typing, we recommend the Adler MX electric. It's cut out for the heavier duties, but pound for pound it costs and weighs significantly less than full size models.

So, if your reception typewriter is showing its age, fill in the coupon or contact your local Adler dealer about the Gabriele and the MX. After all, making the right impression is Adler's business.

The Allergic Salute

A sign of perennial rhinitis, the cold that can last for 25 years.

Some children seem to have a permanent cold. They're constantly sniffing and often have a troublesome nocturnal cough. They're always twitching, pressing, wiping or rubbing their nose, usually upwards, causing an accentuated crease in the skin.

They may not be suffering from a cold at all, but from perennial allergic rhinitis.

Now you can prevent it with Lomusol. Lomusol provides an effective prophylactic treatment in metered-dose form. It's easy to carry, simple to use and its safety makes it ideal for long-term treatment.

The Medical Management of Dyspepsia

Summary

Digestive disorders particularly dyspepsia, flatulence and symptoms of peptic ulcer have traditionally been treated with antacids or anticholinergic agents whose primary action is to reduce acidity.

Maxolon is an entirely different compound, both chemically and pharmacologically which acts by promoting normal gastric emptying, reducing the time during which the gastric mucosa is exposed to acid.

Maxolon has been shown to prevent the symptoms caused by oesophageal reflux, gastric stasis and regurgitation of bile and thus it provides long term relief for the dyspepsia patient who would otherwise suffer a routine of recurrent symptoms.

Introduction

Digestive disorders are one of the most common complaints encountered in General Practice, estimated at 12% of all surgery consultations. The majority of cases are acute short term conditions which, when treated symptomatically, resolve in a few days. A number of patients however, have recurrent flatulent dyspepsia, a symptom complex which has been defined as – "Epigastric discomfort after meals, a feeling of fullness so that tight clothing is loosened, eructation with temporary relief and regurgitation of sour fluid to the mouth with heartburn."¹

Radiological investigation of these patients may reveal gall stones, a hiatus hernia, a peptic ulcer or combinations of these conditions but these symptoms can also affect those with normal barium meal and cholecystogram.¹

Antacids

For more than 2,000 years, antacid therapy has been employed in treating dyspepsia patients and even today antacids are rarely omitted from the treatment regime.

There is no doubt that small doses of antacid with little apparent neutralising capacity will produce pain relief, but in the treatment of flatulent dyspepsia their use is worth a re-appraisal.

Firstly the action of even the most powerful antacids is limited by stomach emptying so that they must be taken as pain arises. This can lead to considerable inconvenience, particularly for the working patient, since antacids are most effective in suspension form.²

Secondly although antacid side-effects are usually mild they may present problems if therapy is long term. The most common complication is disturbance of bowel function.

As is well known, compounds containing magnesium have a strong laxative effect whilst others, such as aluminium hydroxide cause constipation.³

The more potent antacids, such as sodium bicarbonate or calcium carbonate, are not often used, firstly because of serious side effects such as alkalosis which can arise through systemic absorption of the compounds and secondly because their effectiveness may be reduced by resulting gastric hypersecretory action or acid rebound.

In rare cases hypermagnesaemia, hypercalcaemia or hypernatraemia may result from persistent use of some commonly used compounds.³

Care needs to be taken if antacids are prescribed concurrently with other drugs as they can interfere by several different mechanisms with the actions of certain compounds, in particular tetracyclines, anticholinergics and corticosteroids.³

Anticholinergics

Anticholinergics, (e.g. belladonna derivatives) like antacids, have been used to treat gastric disorders since ancient times. As inhibitors of gastric acid secretion, they may serve as a useful adjunct to antacid therapy providing more prolonged relief from acid pain (6-8 hours). In some cases, however, anticholinergics may exacerbate dyspepsia by increasing gastric stasis and thereby lengthening the time digestive juices are in the stomach.

Side-effects can also be a problem, although paradoxically unless they are produced, it cannot be assumed that a pharmacologically effective dose is being given.³

The most common side-effect is dry mouth but sometimes blurred vision, difficulty in micturition or impotence may also occur.³

Maxolon (metoclopramide)

Maxolon is a member of the orthopramide group of products and has been found to provide more fundamental treatment for the patient with flatulence, heartburn or dyspepsia than either antacids or anticholinergics. Its effect in promoting normal gastric emptying,^{4 5} improves the efficiency and co-ordination of the gastro-duodenal tract, and significantly reduces the time during which the gastric mucosa is exposed to acid.⁶

Side-effects are uncommon, with lassitude and drowsiness the main problems. Cessation of treatment usually ensures that these transient effects rapidly disappear.

Occasional reports of extra-pyramidal reactions, often related to overdosage, have been received. Once again these effects are transient and usually respond to withdrawal of therapy.⁷

In practice, Maxolon's maintenance of normal gastro-duodenal function means that the patient can eat a normal diet and no longer experience symptoms – "some of the patients have been on the drug for up to two years and remain symptom free."⁸

Published reports in over 1,100 patients^{8, 9, 10, 11} show that Maxolon has a success rate of 84% in the treatment of various digestive disorders including X-ray negative dyspepsia and symptoms of peptic ulcer.

A booklet on the use of Maxolon (regd.) in the treatment of gastro-duodenal conditions is available from:

Beecham Research Laboratories, Freepost, Brentford, Middx. TW8 9BD.

Side-effects and Precautions

There are no absolute contra-indications to the use of Maxolon. Various extra-pyramidal reactions to Maxolon, usually of the dystonic type, have been reported. The incidence of these reactions in children and young adults may be increased if daily dosages higher than 0.5mg/kg body weight are administered. Reactions include: spasm of the facial muscles, trismus, rhythmic protrusion of the tongue, a bulbar type of speech, spasm of extra-ocular muscles including oculogyric crises, unnatural positioning of the head and shoulders and opisthotonus. There may be a generalised increase in muscle tone. The majority of reactions occur within 36 hours of starting treatment and the effects usually disappear within 24 hours of withdrawal of the drug. Should treatment of a reaction be required, an anti-Parkinson drug may be used. Since extra-pyramidal symptoms may occur with both Maxolon and phenothiazines, care should be exercised in the event of both drugs being prescribed concurrently.

Maxolon's action on the gastro-intestinal tract is antagonised by anticholinergics. Although animal tests in several mammalian species have shown no teratogenic effects, treatment with Maxolon is not advised during the first trimester of pregnancy.

Intal[®] doesn't relieve asthmatic attacks it stops them happening.

Intal is still unique. It provides a prophylactic treatment of asthma. Unlike bronchodilators, which give relief from asthmatic attacks, Intal stops them before they get started. Intal is not a steroid and, therefore, carries no risk of the side-effects associated with steroid therapy.

Intal works by preventing the degranulation of the mast cell and the release of inflammatory agents. It may be used in all kinds of asthma, no matter what triggers the attacks—for example, allergy, exercise, emotional upset.

Regular daily use of Intal gives long-term protection from asthmatic attacks. By preventing the attacks you may stop the progress of the damage they cause.

Intal—established prophylactic therapy in asthma.

Intal[®]

Prevention is better than relief.

The Spinhaler. The unique Spinhaler is used only with Intal therapy. It's easier to use than other inhalers because delivery of the dose is automatically synchronised with the patient's breathing so that an effective dose may be inhaled every time.

"The fact that 95.5% of the patients unable to inhale correctly from a pressurised canister could use a Spinhaler efficiently confirms our clinical impression that patients have little difficulty in using the Spinhaler whereas many have problems with the pressurised canister."

Mrs. Jackson's migraines, while frequent, do not follow an entirely predictable pattern. She dislikes the side-effects of ergotamine treatments: long-term prophylaxis would involve an unacceptable degree of over-medication. Is there an alternative?

2 PINK MIGRALEVE, taken at the first warning, will often completely abort impending Migraine attacks. Residual symptoms, if any occur, can be controlled with Yellow Migraleve. Like most patients, Mrs. Jackson will find such a regime preferable, because Migraleve offers:

- Economic dosage, taken only as attacks occur

APPOINTMENTS

Applicants for medical appointments are advised to check whether the post advertised is included in the Important Notice and to scrutinize carefully the remuneration and terms of service offered. Any member who is in doubt about these terms in relation to B.M.A. agreements should consult the Secretary of the Association.

Advertisers are reminded that the Race Relations Board insists that no descriptive term implying racial, national, or ethnic characteristics may be used in any advertisement. Further, readers are advised not to apply for any appointment which discriminates between applicants on grounds of creed or unreasonably on grounds of sex.

HOSPITAL APPOINTMENTS

Applicants should state names, address, age, nationality, and qualifications, and enclose (unless otherwise specified) one copy of each of three recent testimonials, with a short statement of experience and appointments held. Applications should be sent at once if no closing date is given. Canvassing disqualifies (Statutory Instrument, 1974, No. 361).

All National Health Service hospital appointments are in accordance with the Terms and Conditions of Service of Hospital Medical Staff.

Further details concerning standards of residential accommodation, telephone charges, removal allowances, study leave and other matters should be obtained from the Hospital Secretary; or by B.M.A. members from the Secretary, British Medical Association.

In particular, they will find full details of facilities provided in most hospitals in the United Kingdom in the current edition of the Hospital Gazetteer. If such details are not included members are advised to consult the Secretary of the B.M.A.

Applicants requiring hospital married accommodation are strongly advised to obtain, prior to interview, clarification in writing from the employing authority as to whether such accommodation will be available on appointment.

Advertisements for post-registration house officers, senior house officers and registrars should state clearly whether the post is resident, i.e. compulsorily resident.

In all advertisements grade should be clearly indicated. Normally a consultant vacancy must be advertised as (a) part-time with the number of sessions clearly stated, or (b) whole-time with the option of maximum part-time.

In the view of the B.M.A., an advertiser should not insist on possession of English higher qualifications in preference to Scottish or Irish qualifications (or vice versa).

What the papers say

Shortest Acting

"With doses up to 1 mg, the natriuresis was largely complete within 3 hrs."³
 "It (Burinex) has a short duration of action, being virtually complete in 3 hrs."⁴

Fast Acting

"The rapid absorption from the gastrointestinal tract is reflected in the brisk diuresis established within the hour."¹
 "Its (Burinex Injection) onset of action is within 10 min."²
 "Bumetanide is rapidly absorbed from the gut."³

Clinically Effective

"Fourteen patients showed a good diuretic response on bumetanide where previous treatment with frusemide had proved either unsatisfactory or too slow."⁵
 "An impressive diminution of the signs of pulmonary oedema was seen in most patients and in some the clearance of alveolar oedema was dramatic."⁶

"Based upon our experience with the use of bumetanide in several hundreds of patients and the detailed studies reported above, it may be concluded that this new diuretic agent is a very useful drug in the treatment of congestive cardiac failure."⁷

"Our study... confirms that bumetanide is a potent diuretic effective over a wide dose range and in a variety of clinical conditions."¹

Well tolerated

"Burinex was extremely well tolerated."¹²
 "Bumetanide was well tolerated by patients."¹
 "Overall, bumetanide showed itself to be a safe and effective diuretic when administered to severely ill patients in a busy hospital milieu."⁵

The correct amount of K

"It is known from short-term studies that 1 mg. of bumetanide increases the excretion of potassium by 10-15 mmol daily (Asbury et al, 1972; Olesen et al, 1973; Davies et al, 1974). Two tablets of the combined preparation Burinex K contain 1 mg. of bumetanide and 16 mmol of potassium."⁸

At the correct time

"35% of the potassium chloride is released by one hour, the rest being released over a period of six hours."⁴

The Morning OR Evening diuretic

"The rapid onset and short duration of action of loop diuretics are clearly desirable when a rapid diuresis is indicated, and when given in the evening to patients with chronic heart failure, the short duration of action can ensure a good nights sleep undisturbed by nocturia or breathlessness."⁹

"The use of potent and short-acting diuretics such as bumetanide allow the Physician and patient scope to decide upon the most appropriate time for administration and so reduce major disruptions in the patient's daily routine."¹⁰

"Patients who go out to work may find Burinex K given in the evening more socially acceptable."¹¹

Patients prefer Burinex K

"These results indicate that when long-term diuretic/potassium supplement therapy is required, Burinex K is a more acceptable regimen to the patients than one in which diuretic + Slow K are given separately."¹³

"Patients showed a highly significant preference to take two tablets on one occasion (Burinex K) rather than two different types of tablet on three separate occasions (Lasix + K)."¹⁴

R_x ... But of course the decision is yours.

Burinex K*

Tablets contain 0.5 mg bumetanide with a slow release core of 573 mg (7.7mEq) of potassium chloride.
