One of today's most pressing medical and social problems is comprehensively reviewed in the ABC of Alcohol. With an extended introduction by Richard Smith, assistant editor of the BMJ, this second, revised and expanded edition brings readers up to date on current approaches to the diagnosis and treatment of alcoholism. Essential reading for all doctors who need to understand the appalling difficulties that this condition creates for patients and their families – and indeed for doctors themselves.

Many advances in the treatment of diabetes have been made in the past decade: self measurement of blood glucose, intravenous infusions and intramuscular insulin treatment for diabetic emergencies, continuous subcutaneous insulin infusion techniques, and new tests for autonomic function. The outlook for diabetic pregnancy has been transformed; photocoagulation for retinopathy is reducing blindness; and at last diabetic renal disease is receiving some attention. Dr Peter Watkin's articles set these advances in their clinical context, providing a practical guide to the management of diabetes for non-specialist doctors and nurses. There have already been several more developments both in understanding the causes of diabetes and improving its management, and this second, revised, edition incorporates the most important of these latest innovations.

Price: Inland £4.95; Abroad £6.50; USA$11.00
BMA members: Inland £4.45; Abroad £6.00; USA$10.00
