Increased exercise tolerance.

Beta-Cardone significantly prolongs the duration of exercise effort in patients with angina pectoris. The illustration below, based on six case studies, demonstrates this effect in patients exercised on a bicycle ergometer.

In this test the protective effect of Beta-Cardone was shown by a marked reduction in S-T segment depression throughout: at rest, at the point of pain, and after exercise.

Adapted from Postgrad. med. J. (1970) (Nov. Suppl.) 77

Fewer anginal attacks, reduced trinitrin dependence.

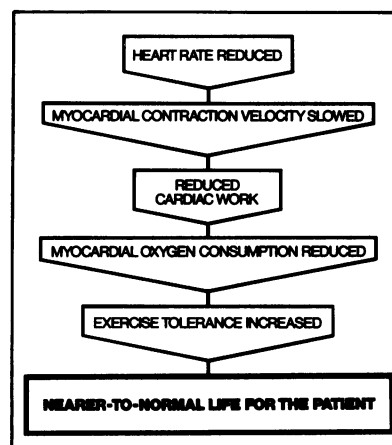

The increased exercise tolerance induced by sotalol results in fewer anginal attacks and decreased need for trinitrin. The graph summarises the results of a double-blind, crossover, multi-centre study involving 146 patients.

92% were given a dose of between 240mg and 480mg per day; 93% reported fewer attacks during sotalol therapy and 71% had a reduction of 50% or more. Compared with the baseline period, the lowered attack rate was confirmed by the parallel reduction in the usage of trinitrin tablets.

Multicentre Study in Angina. Unpublished.

Beta-Cardone helps the anginal patient to live with his condition.

The anginal patient lives under the constant threat of painful attack. Beta-Cardone, with its pure beta-blocking activity, takes him step by logical step toward the enjoyment of a less troubled, more normal life.

BETA-CARDONE preparations of sotalol hydrochloride are available as TABLETS 40 mg (basic NHS cost £2.93 per 100 tablet pack), TABLETS 80 mg (£4.35 per 100), and INJECTION 10 mg in 5 ml (£4.41 per 10 ampoules)

sometimes vital

You fastened your safety belt this morning but in case of an emergency, there's still something trouble, of course, for your motor lines . . .

You never know with bronchitis either. Minocin® (minocycline) protects against the bacteria of bronchitis, but unlike traditional penicillins and semi-synthetic penicillins is also highly effective against resistant staphylococci – the organisms which could threaten your patient's life. Staphylococcal pneumonia is the only really life endangering infective hazard in bronchitis.<sup>1</sup> So whenever you treat bronchitis be sure from the start with Minocin – just in case . . .

The hypertensive patient's feeling of well-being...

should be protected

BRITISH MEDICAL JOURNAL, 14 SEPTEMBER 1974

Success in treating hypertension depends so much on the co-operation of the patient. He usually feels perfectly well in himself—and obviously he wants to stay that way.

Yet many antihypertensive agents interfere with daily living. But with 'Aldomet', side effects have been infrequent—in particular, dizziness from postural or exertional hypotension rarely occurs.

No wonder 'Aldomet' is prescribed more than any other antihypertensive.

- ☐ lowers blood pressure more physiologically by reducing peripheral resistance
- ☐ usually does not directly affect heart or kidney function
- ☐ other disturbing side effects such as diarrhoea, impotence, or failure to ejaculate are uncommon
- ☐ acts rapidly and smoothly, usually without hazardous drops in blood pressure
- ☐ dosage is simple, and easily established
- ☐ a sedating effect, common in the beginning of therapy, usually disappears on continued treatment for effective 24-hour control of hypertension

prescribe by name

'Aldomet' (methyldopa/MSD) is supplied as tablets containing 125 mg, 250 mg, and 500 mg methyldopa, and as an injection for emergency use. Detailed information is available to physicians on request. ® denotes registered trademark.

An Army Doctor's time is time well spent.

Today's modern Army is a professional Army and it requires professionals to keep soldiers healthy.

The task awaiting.

To fulfil their tasks in a modern Army, soldiers must be well trained, well motivated and fit – not only in body but contented in mind as well. They must be secure in the knowledge that they and their families' health and care are in the hands of well trained professional men and women.

Could you take care of them?

Whether the Army is engaged in Belfast, exercising on the Canadian prairies or battling against Norwegian snow storms in NATO training, they require a doctor to look after them. To keep up with 'the professionals' you must be fit and competent.

We can help you achieve both.

Two careers in one.

As a doctor in the Army not all your time is going to be spent in a consulting room. You will not only be a doctor but an Army Officer as well.

You have total care of your patients, you look after them, share their sporting activities and travel with them on operations or on training exercises.

You are part of a team in the modern 'professionals'.

You will work from a fully equipped consulting room with the immediate backing of fully staffed hospitals, spread across the globe wherever the Army is stationed.

How will joining the Army affect your professional career?

We need fully trained doctors, both men and women, doctors capable of responding to any emergency. We dare not let your training suffer.

If you join as a cadet whilst still at Medical School there will be no calls upon your time until you become fully registered. Should you join as a direct entrant during your pre-registration year, we will wait until you complete your training. Should you wish to do additional house appointments we will give due consideration to your request. Agreement is almost always forthcoming for those wanting to do additional clinical appointments which are not available in the Army.

Applications are also welcome from fully registered practitioners who would like a change or feel we can help them with their professional training.

When you join for duty we will give you an introduction to the Army as well as to the special aspects of Medicine in the Army.

Specialising in the Army.

During your Short Service Commission you may be given the opportunity to specialise or to do your vocational training as a general practitioner.

Selection for specialisation is competitive and dependent upon vacancies in the Speciality of your choice.

There is a continuing need for junior doctors in the Army's nineteen hospitals and these posts must be filled.

If you decide to stay with the RAMC as a regular officer your training will continue to be acceptable as a consultant.

All you have to do is to prove yourself to be a prospective consultant.

The Army General Practitioner.

The policy of further postgraduate medical training which is to be implemented as a result of the Report of the Royal Commission on Medical Education—the 'Todd Report', is now being followed in the RAMC. There are already approved training practices with approved RAMC trainers not only in Western Germany but further abroad as well.

You could do your hospital training in the UK, Germany or even Hong Kong.

In a fit young Army we can not offer you Geriatric training but we can offer: Accident and Emergency Surgery, Obstetrics, Paediatrics, Anaesthetics, Dermatology, Medicine and Psychiatric training appointments.

Modern teaching and library facilities are being provided in all the teaching practices and some others.

You could help us to help you by becoming a more competent and fully trained doctor.

Additional Allowances are payable for overseas service, children's education and removal expenses.

On completion of your Commission.

At the end of your service you may decide to apply to convert to a regular commission, extend your Short Service Commission (to a maximum of eight years) or take your gratuity and embark upon a civilian career.

Should you decide to try civilian life, your time in the Army will be recognised by the DHSS for seniority payments where appropriate and your gratuity is a valuable asset when it comes to starting to finance a house, surgery premises or purchasing all that expensive equipment that the Army has been providing free.

So you see your time as an Army Doctor could be time well spent in providing for your future.

If you would like a copy of our booklet 'Doctor in the Army', or to visit an Army Hospital or discuss any queries we might have raised in your mind about your future in the RAMC write to: Brigadier (Retd) John J. 80% show no side-effects in more than 5000 patients

More chance of a favourable response. Less chance of unwanted reactions. These are the things that count in deciding treatment for any patient – and the advantages that make 'Orudis' a logical choice in those with arthritis.

Recent clinical studies in more than 5000 arthritic patients<sup>1</sup> have shown that up to 9 out of 10 derive benefit with 'Orudis' in reduced pain and stiffness and increased mobility. Experience in these same patients has demonstrated that in 8 out of 10 cases 'Orudis' produces no side-effects whatever.

Fewer problems for you. A brighter outlook for your patient. A better prospect all round. This, on the evidence, is what 'Orudis' adds up to in arthritis. So doesn't it make sense, when you think about it, to use it from the very beginning?

Dyspepsia

If antacids were the complete answer, would he return to your surgery so often?

Antacids deal with excess acid. But, in many cases, dyspepsia involves more than this.

Unpleasant symptoms such as dyspepsia, heartburn and gastritis can frequently be traced back to disturbed gastric motility. Recent research has shown that in many patients food is retained for too long in the stomach, gastric contents enter the oesophagus, and bile refluxes from the duodenum.<sup>1</sup>

With Maxolon, you can resolve this underlying problem. Maxolon restores gastric motility to normal, so that symptoms of dyspepsia are prevented.

Prescribe Maxolon (tablets or syrup) for your dyspepsia patients. They—and you—will appreciate the difference.

Why on earth should anyone need Nestlé's Growing Up Foods?

A fair enough question. Why introduce a special range of foods for pre-school children?

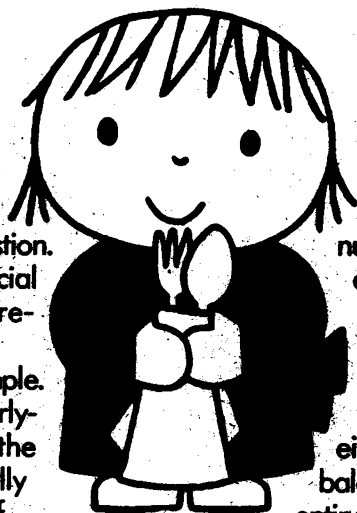

The answer is simple. As you know a properly-balanced diet during the pre-school years is vitally important, as the rate of physical and mental development is faster now than it will ever be again.

And it's at this stage that eating habits are formed. If a child gets used to too many calories now, he may have an obesity problem later. If he is allowed too much sugar and too many sweets he could have dental problems very soon.

Yet at this stage a child will often prefer sweet and fattening things and get faddy about foods that are actually good for him.

And to add to the problem, a mother will not always know which of the many foods around are good for him anyway.

So we've made a range of highly nutritious foods that children actually enjoy eating. They are specifically designed to assist mothers of young children to solve every-day feeding problems, either by replacing badly-balanced foods, or supplementing the normal intake when the child is being difficult about essentials like milk, eggs, meat, etc.

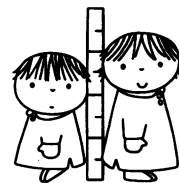

To help the mother plan a well-balanced diet we tell her in simple language exactly what proportion of protein, vitamins and minerals each product provides.

We've made Soups and Drinks, Cereals and Spreads. Even high-protein biscuits. All designed to help a mother make sure her child has a properly balanced diet, and likes it.

Uncle Jim is Cousin Fred

When lack of concentration appears in old age, the problem is often likely to be of organic origin. In particular, the patient may even confuse 'who is who' in her family—as well as suffer simpler lapses of short-term memory. Lucidril can end this confusion by an action that does not depend on improving the blood supply to the brain.

Lucidril gets the deteriorating brain working again. Firstly, it stimulates the metabolism of the brain, probably through different pathways. Secondly, it removes the lipofuscin pigments which are a concomitant of old age and which may impair cellular metabolism.

Lucidril thus improves mental function; as a recent clinical paper has pointed out:

"These preliminary results (with Lucidril) are encouraging, because they indicate that the intellectual impairment exhibited by such patients may be reversible, even when the underlying causes are presumably of an organic nature, such as cerebral arteriosclerosis."

ADJU-FLUAX®

Influenza Virus Vaccine

A major breakthrough in influenza immunisation

Introduction

'Adju-Fluax' [Oil adjuvant influenza virus vaccine (inactivated), bivalent, types A (Port Chalmers) & B (Hong Kong), with adjuvant 65, MSD] is a purified adjuvant vaccine for single-dose primary immunisation and as a booster in persons previously vaccinated. 'Adju-Fluax' contains the recommended contemporary strains of killed influenza virus in an adjuvant consisting of 90 per cent peanut oil USP, 6 per cent isomannide mono-oleate CP (chemically pure), and 4 per cent aluminium mono-stearate CP. Each 0.5 ml dose of vaccine consists of 0.25 ml aqueous influenza vaccine and 0.25 ml adjuvant 65.

'Adju-Fluax' contains 400 IU of A/Port Chalmers/1/73 (H3N2) and 200 IU of B/Hong Kong/5/72. The inactivating agent is formaldehyde (5 mcg/ml) and the preservative, thiomersal (100 ppm). Other inactive ingredients are sodium phosphate, sodium chloride, sucrose, and sodium metabisulphite.

Influenza virus is remarkably capricious antigenically and significant changes may occur from time to time. It is known definitely that influenza virus vaccine, as now constituted, is not effective against all possible strains of influenza virus.

As with aqueous vaccine, protection is afforded primarily against those strains of virus from which the vaccine is prepared or against closely related strains. However, because 'Adju-Fluax' elicits antibody against heterologous strains in a high proportion of subjects, it is reasonable to assume that such subjects will be wholly or partially protected against infection by newer, antigenically different strains of influenza virus; clinical confirmation of this broad protection awaits emergence of the next influenza virus variant.

Indications

For primary immunisation against type A and type B strains of influenza virus, and as a booster in persons previously vaccinated.

Prophylaxis is desirable especially in persons of any age with certain chronic debilitating conditions: rheumatic heart disease, especially mitral stenosis; such cardiovascular disorders as arteriosclerotic heart disease and hypertension, particularly with evidence of cardiac insufficiency; chronic bronchopulmonary diseases such as asthma, chronic bronchitis, pulmonary fibrosis, pulmonary emphysema, and advanced pulmonary tuberculosis; diabetes mellitus or Addison's disease.

Older persons who may have incipient or potential chronic disease, particularly cardiovascular and bronchopulmonary, also should be considered candidates for vaccination.

Dosage and administration

'Adju-Fluax' must be given only by deep intramuscular injection into the deltoid muscle or mid-thigh; it must not be given subcutaneously or intravascularly. Precautions should be taken to prevent injection into a blood vessel.

The vaccine should be administered in summer or autumn to achieve peak antibody levels prior to the influenza season (winter and spring).

Adults, and children 10 years old and over

The entire contents (0.5 ml) of the prefilled syringe should be injected into the deltoid muscle or mid-thigh.

Children under 10 years of age
Recommendations for younger children cannot be made, owing to limited clinical data.

The sterile disposable syringe, aseptically prefilled with 0.5 ml of 'Adju-Fluax', should be removed from refrigeration about five to ten minutes before administration. The preparation is highly viscous when cold and flows more easily at room temperature. It must not be warmed above room temperature. 'Adju-Fluax' should be stored at 2 to 8°C (35.6 to 46.4°F). It must not be frozen.

Contra-indications

A history of hypersensitivity to egg, chicken, or chicken feathers. Sensitivity to the adjuvant components (peanut oil, isomannide mono-oleate, aluminium monostearate).

Precautions

Adrenaline should always be ready for immediate use in case an anaphylactoid reaction occurs.

'Adju-Fluax' is for deep intramuscular injection only. It must not be given subcutaneously or intravascularly. If not given by deep intramuscular injection, it may cause sterile abscess. The necessary precautions should be taken to avoid intravascular injections.

Any febrile respiratory illness or any active infection is reason for delaying use of influenza virus vaccine, except when in the opinion of the physician, withholding the vaccine entails even greater risk.

Side effects

Local reactions showing varying degrees of tenderness, induration, erythema, or pea-sized nodule formation were occasionally observed during the clinical trials and were reversible. When a nodule occurred at the injection site, it typically disappeared in one to four weeks; rarely, it persisted for several months.

Mild fever of short duration has occurred with low frequency following vaccination, and fever above 101°F (38.3°C) has occurred less commonly.

Sterile abscess may occur if the vaccine is given subcutaneously rather than by deep intramuscular injection.

Encephalitis following administration of influenza vaccine has occurred rarely.

Presentation

'Adju-Fluax' is available in prefilled disposable syringes containing 0.5 ml of vaccine. Each 0.5 ml contains 400 IU of A/Port Chalmers/1/73 (H3N2) and 200 IU of B/Hong Kong/5/72. 'Adju-Fluax' is supplied as single syringes, or in cartons containing 10 individually packed syringes, or in outers of 100 containing 10 trays of 10 syringes.

The United Kingdom basic NHS cost is £1.45 per syringe. Quantity discount terms are available.

Product licence number: 0025/0083.

One dose produces antibody levels that are longer-lasting and higher than two doses of standard aqueous vaccine

Merck Sharp & Dohme, world leaders in viral immunology, have developed a new type of vaccine that is a breakthrough in influenza immunisation. One dose produces antibody levels that are longer-lasting and higher than two doses of equivalent aqueous vaccine. Also, 'Adju-Fluax' gives greater protection by providing higher levels of nasal secretory and circulatory antibodies. 'Adju-Fluax' produces antibodies against heterologous strains in a high proportion of vaccinees. Thus, it may provide partial or total protection against infection by newer antigenically different strains of influenza virus.

Over the last ten years, 'Adju-Fluax' has been tested in more than 22,000 people. Follow-up studies have so far failed to detect evidence of long-term adverse effects, and local or systemic reactions were not significantly different from those seen after vaccination with aqueous vaccine.
