The Keflex way to fight bronchitis

Keflex fights bronchitis by penetrating fast and effectively right to the site of infection. In just one hour Keflex concentration in lung tissue is 91% of the serum level! That's how quickly the effective broad spectrum bactericidal action of Keflex can attack the infecting organisms in bronchitis.<sup>2</sup>

Gastric reflux does nasty things to the oesophagus.
Like causing oesophagitis.
And heartburn.

All the more reason for prescribing
Gaviscon rather than simple antacids.

Gaviscon suppresses gastric reflux—simple antacids don't. Recent evidence confirms that Gaviscon reduces the number of reflux episodes as well as the time during which the lower oesophageal pH is acid.<sup>1</sup>

HEPATITIS-ASSOCIATED ANTIGEN AND VIRUSES

Completely Revised Second Edition

by A.J. ZUCKERMAN, Professor of Virology in the University of London; Director of the WHO Collaborating Centre for Reference and Research on Viral Hepatitis, London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine (University of London).

1975. 434 pages. US $49.95/Dfl. 120.00. ISBN 0-7204-4513-2

When Hepatitis-Associated Antigen and Viruses was published in 1972, it was warmly received by the critics:

"it is unique in its organization, breadth and balance."

Science

"constitutes an excellent approach for the physician who wishes to familiarize himself, in considerable depth and detail with the existing developments in the... area."

Clinical Medicine

Rapid progress in human viral hepatitis, which followed the discovery of the association between Australia antigen (hepatitis B antigen) and the aetiological agent of viral hepatitis type B, has been maintained during the ensuing three years. This progress has justified the publication of this completely revised edition which has been re-titled Human Viral Hepatitis. The volume encompasses the most recent advances in our knowledge of the epidemiology, the immune response to infection, the immunopathology and virology of hepatitis B. The progress achieved in identifying the antigens and the agent associated with hepatitis B is reviewed in terms of historical, epidemiologic and pathologic perspectives, and the virologic and immunologic considerations are dealt with in detail. Developments in our understanding of hepatitis A are also outlined from the various perspectives, with special reference to virus-like particles identified in the faeces of patients during the acute phase of hepatitis A.

CONTENTS: The history of viral hepatitis. The aetiology of infective hepatitis. The terminology of hepatitis. The epidemiology of viral hepatitis. The occupational hazard of viral hepatitis. Pathology of the liver in acute viral hepatitis. The clinical features of viral hepatitis. Biophysical and biochemical properties of hepatitis B surface antigen and the core (by Colin R. Howard). The ultra-structure of hepatitis antigens. Laboratory tests for hepatitis B surface antigen and antibody. Laboratory methods for detection of hepatitis B core antigen and antibody. Subtypes of hepatitis B virus. Post-transfusion hepatitis. Hepatitis B antigen in various body fluids. The immunopathogenesis of liver damage in hepatitis B. Genetic factors in viral hepatitis. Maternal transmission of hepatitis. Persistent carriage of hepatitis viruses. Hepatitis B antigen in chronic liver disease. Hepatitis in haemodialysis units. Hepatitis in drug addicts. Arthritis and hepatitis. Hepatitis B antigen in leprosy. Hepatitis B antigen and malignant diseases. Tissue and organ culture studies. Immunization against hepatitis B. Hepatitis in non-human primates. The Milan antigen. Faecal antigens in hepatitis A. Index.

Q. Penny for penny, which is the best protein buy?

Cheddar Cheese.....☐ Standard Eggs.....☐
 Stewing Beef.....☐ Dairy Milk.....☐
 Bread.....☐ Fresh Cod.....☐
 (Answers below)*

*Answers

1st Bread 2nd Cheese
 3rd Milk 4th Eggs
 5th Cod 6th Beef

Yes, your 28 oz. loaf of bread is still the best protein buy on your shopping list. Does this surprise you? Perhaps you never actually considered bread as a very important source of protein in a balanced diet?

Protein, of course, is your prime body builder. But bread contributes other essentials, too. Like Calcium, for stronger bones. And Iron, vital to the blood stream. And the B Vitamins, essential for vitality.

To quote the National Food Survey (1973), Bread's contribution to the average daily diet amounts to: Protein, 16.1%; Calcium, 12.8%; Iron, 18.3%; Niacin, 14.7%; Thiamine (Vitamin B1), 22.2%; Energy value, 14.2%.

And in comparative terms, bread and flour supply your daily diet with more thiamine and energy than any other food; only meat is higher as a source of protein, iron and niacin; only milk as a source of calcium.

How bread compares with other foods nutritionally

The table right, illustrates in detail bread's comparative nutritional values when placed—for the same amount of money spent—against other typical food items on your shopping list.

All bread is good for you

But it's surprising how many people you meet who are almost entirely ignorant of these plain facts. To them, bread is something to be taken for granted.

And the white loaf (which represents over 80% of the bread bought in Britain), hardly ever gets a good word said for it. Yet, though certain minerals and vitamins have to be reduced in the milling of wheat into white flour, they're added to the flour after milling—as a legal requirement, in fact—to safeguard the nutrient level of your bread. (Brown and wholemeal, of course, are extremely good nutritionally, and may be chosen by people requiring extra roughage).

Whichever bread you choose, you're still getting one of the best protein and nutritional bargains on the market. Enjoy your loaf!

APPOINTMENTS

Applicants for medical appointments are advised to check whether the post advertised is included in the Important Notice and to scrutinize carefully the remuneration and terms of service offered. Any member who is in doubt about these terms in relation to B.M.A. agreements should consult the Secretary of the Association.

Advertisers are reminded that the Race Relations Board insists that no descriptive term implying racial, national, or ethnic characteristics may be used in any advertisement. Further, readers are advised not to apply for any appointment which discriminates between applicants on grounds of creed or unreasonably on grounds of sex.

HOSPITAL APPOINTMENTS

Applicants should state names, address, age, nationality, and qualifications, and enclose (unless otherwise specified) one copy of each of three recent testimonials, with a short statement of experience and appointments held. Applications should be sent at once if no closing date is given: Canvassing disqualifies (Statutory Instrument, 1974, No. 361).

All National Health Service hospital appointments are in accordance with the Terms and Conditions of Service of Hospital Medical Staff.

Further details concerning standards of residential accommodation, telephone charges, removal allowances, study leave and other matters should be obtained from the Hospital Secretary; or by B.M.A. members from the Secretary, British Medical Association.

In particular, they will find full details of facilities provided in most hospitals in the United Kingdom in the current edition of the Hospital Gazetteer. If such details are not included members are advised to consult the Secretary of the B.M.A.

Applicants requiring hospital married accommodation are strongly advised to obtain, prior to interview, clarification in writing from the employing authority as to whether such accommodation will be available on appointment.

No advertisement may stipulate that a non-resident must live less than 10 miles from a hospital. Advertisements for post-registration house officers, senior house officers and registrars should state clearly whether the post is resident, i.e. compulsorily resident.

In all advertisements grade should be clearly indicated. Normally a consultant vacancy must be advertised as (a) part-time with the number of sessions clearly stated, or (b) whole-time with the option of maximum part-time.

In the view of the BMA, an advertiser should not insist on possession of English higher qualifications in preference to Scottish or Irish qualifications (or vice versa).

Career at the crossroads?

The decisions you make during the next few months are likely to be crucial to your future career. But are you sufficiently aware of all the worthwhile alternatives open to you? One fast-growing specialty you may not yet have considered offers you the following:

- ☐ The intellectual interest and horizons of hospital research work
- ☐ The immediate financial attractions of general practice
- ☐ The opportunity for international travel
- ☐ Good facilities for keeping abreast of new developments in clinical practice
- ☐ A career structure allowing rapid advancement on merit
- ☐ Regular hours, permitting free time for family and outside pursuits.

It is a professionally demanding career — as an active member of a multidisciplinary team researching and developing tomorrow's medicines within the pharmaceutical industry.

About a third of all the medical research in the UK is carried out by pharmaceutical companies, and there is a strong and consistent growth in the number of physicians choosing to make their careers in this increasingly important medical specialty.

Starting salaries are in the £7500-£9500 range and are strongly progressive: top salaries in the industry compare very favourably with those in other branches of medicine in the UK. Other benefits include a car, the opportunity for an honorary hospital attachment, heavily subsidised health assurance and pension schemes, and generous housing and relocation assistance.

To embark upon such a career you should have a good British medical degree (ideally backed by a higher qualification), good clinical and therapeutic experience, and a questioning research-oriented mind.

If you would like to know more, please write or 'phone for further details — entirely without cost or obligation. We are an independent organisation with wide experience of the pharmaceutical industry in this country and overseas. Over the years we have helped many physicians to further their careers in clinical research, both in the UK and internationally.
