DR. GREGORY'S PRACTICE OF PHYSIC.

8vo, cloth, price 16s,

ELEMENTS of the THEORY and PRACTICE of MEDICINE; designed for the use of Students and Junior Practitioners. By GEORGE GREGORY, M.D., Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians. Fifth Edition, considerably enlarged and improved.

FROM PREFACE.

"The object of the author, in the following pages, is to lay before the student an outline of the theory and practice of medicine, unbiassed by attachment to any professed principle, and to delineate those views of pathology which appear to direct the reasonings, and to give a tone to the language, of medical writers at the present period.

The demand for a fifth edition has afforded the author an opportunity of making some alterations in the work, which he hopes will give it additional value. The several diseases of the human body have been thrown into a new arrangement. The distinction between acute and chronic diseases has been abandoned, and a classification has been adopted better suited to the existing state of medical science. The formule medicamentorum scattered throughout the work have received some additions, and have everywhere been adapted to the nomenclature of the new London Pharmacopœia. Five new chapters have been added—namely, on Cachexia, Hypochondriasis, Cynanche Cellularis, Otitis, and Furuncular Inflammation. The results of the author's more recent experience have been incorporated into the text, and such other information introduced as appeared calculated for elementary instruction."

PHYSIC AND PHYSICIANS.

"This is a work of considerable ability and research; there is a vigour and freshness, yet a polished edge, about the composition, that would lead to an inference that the author must be some experienced practitioner, combining the blunt straightforwardness of an Abernethy with the talent and refined learning of an Halford. The book teems with anecdotes of the living and the dead; the work is full of entertainment and instruction. We recommend it to medical men and patients, to the healthy and the diseased, the old and the young."—Exeter and Plymouth Gazette.
