AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION. The annual meeting of the American Medical Association was held at St. Louis, Missouri, on May 2nd, 3rd, and 4th, 1854, under the Presidency of Dr. Charles A. Pope, of that city. The credentials of the delegates were read, and the roll being called, two hundred delegates answered to their names. After the transaction of some business, an address was delivered by the retiring President, Dr. Usher Parsons. From the report of the meeting, we can only extract some of the more important resolutions.

The following resolution, passed at the annual meeting of the New Hampshire Medical Society, was read:—

"At the annual meeting of the New Hampshire Medical Society, held at Concord, June 1st, 1853, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, That it is the decided opinion of the New Hampshire State Medical Society, that no delegate should be admitted to membership in the American Medical Association, who represents a medical society which numbers among its members any person or persons who adopt as their system of practice any form of empiricism.

"Resolved, that the Secretary of this Society be instructed to transmit a copy of this resolution to the Secretaries of each of the State Medical Societies, and to the Secretaries of the American Medical Association, previous to their next annual meeting.

"E. K. WEBSTER,

"Secretary N. H. Medical Society."

At a subsequent stage of the proceedings, a resolution was passed by the Association:—

"That a Committee be appointed to inquire what State or other Society represented in this Association are in fellowship with irregular practitioners."

The Committee of Publication forwarded resolutions, fixing the annual assessment upon the members at three dollars, and authorising the Treasurer to erase the names of all members who shall be a year in arrears. The resolutions were adopted, after having been amended, so as to require the Treasurer, before erasing the name of any member, to issue a circular informing him of his indebtedness.

On the second day, the reports of numerous committees on subjects connected with medical science were called for. In the course of the business, the following motion was brought forward:

"Resolved, That in the opinion of this Association, the practice of professors reading lectures to their classes—no matter with how much care selected from the musty records of antiquity—is a miserable apology for teaching, is prima facie evidence of their inaptness to instruct, and is inimical to medical progress."

In commenting on the proceedings of the American Medical Association, the editor of the Philadelphia Medical Examiner deprecates the manner in which the presentation of reports is managed. He "regrets to perceive that a practice has grown up of holding back the presentation of reports from the meeting of the Association, under the expectation that the authors will be permitted to complete them at their leisure, and afterwards to hand them to the Committee of Publication. This indulgence, though under certain circumstances no doubt occasionally proper, may lapse into an abuse; and it appears to us that it would perhaps be best in no case to allow papers to go into the volume of Transactions, which are not actually presented to the Association. We should prefer, too, as a general rule, to hear all reports read extenso, and not condensed into abstracts. Can the time of the Association be better employed than in hearing these reports? And, apart from the interest and profit which they afford, is it not proper that the Association should be made acquainted with the matter which it is about to send forth as a portion of its Transactions?

"Under the present system of Committees on Specialties, five years are, we believe, allowed a committee for the completion of a report. A considerable number of the committees very properly asked and obtained extension of time, and were continued. There are certain committees, however, reports from which are obviously expected at each session; and some of these were not forthcoming. We think that hereafter chairmen of committees on topics of immediate and passing interest, should either prepare reports, or make a timely transfer of their duties."
